War Offers Best Opportunity to Abolish Saloon Nation Will Ever Have, Says Noted Authority

Bellevue Hospital Superintendent, Who Believes Prohibition Is a Dangerous Doctrine Under Normal Conditions, Says Patriotic Fervor of Present Crisis Might Offset the Shock of Deprivation of Liquor Its Victims Otherwise Would Suffer—"You Can Only Cure Drink Habit by Providing Some Ecstasy to Take Its Place."

By CHARLES W. WOOD.

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 9.

"DRUNKENNESS is a much more deep-seated evil than the prohibitionists imagine."

This, from one of the best-known psychologists of the United States, at a time when the Government is, for the first time, seriously considering the abolition of the sale of alcoholic beverages, was a most startling pronouncement.

"But be sure to say also," he added, "that prohibition is a much more dangerous experiment than the liquor men suppose."

It was Dr. Menas S. Gregory who spoke, the noted physician at the head of Bellevue's psychological ward, where the city's inebriates are treated.

No one is more familiar with the ravages of alcohol than Dr. Gregory. No one is in a position to study its effects more closely. But Dr. Gregory has not been content to study its effects. He has been studying its causes. Any superficial observer, he says, can see what drink does to people; what we need is a scientific understanding of why people drink.

> PROHIBITION would not be established by military decree unless there were a national crisis. And, if there were a national crisis of such magnitude, the people's minds would be in a ferment of excitement. That is just what they would need, physically, if their alcohol were to be taken away—an emotional storm, a tense situation, some extraordinary happening which would compel their attention and call for extraordinary thought and action.—DR. GREGORY.

"When I say," he explained, "that drunkeness is a greater evil than prohibitionists imagine it to be, I do not mean that its results are worse than their statistics claim. I mean that the evil is deeper than the question of the presence or absence of the saloon in the community. To take away the saloon and not provide for the human motives and impulses that called it into being would be a doubtful blessing."

Outspoken Opponent of Drink But He Fears Prohibition

"Then," I asked, "you would not favor national prohibition decreed as a military necessity?"

"That is about the safest way it could happen," was the unexpected reply.

It is his frequent assertions of this sort which makes Dr. Gregory one of the most distinctive figures in the medical thought of the day. His statements often seem, at first thought, so contradictory. He is an out-and-out opponent of drink. He is afraid of prohibition. Yet while he is a thorough believer in democracy, he thinks that prohibition might work well if it were not established by popular vote but by military decree. The position seems inconsistent only because few people understand human psychology as does Dr. Gregory.

"Prohibition would not be established by military decree," he explained, "unless there were a national crisis. And if there were a national crisis of such magnitude the people's minds would be in a ferment of excitement. That is just what they would need, physically, if their alcohol were to be taken away—an emotional storm, a tense situation, some extraordinary happening which would compel their attention and call for extraordinary thought and action.

Reformers Fail Because They Ignore Elemental Influences

"There is nothing very complicated about this," Dr. Gregory went on. "If the people only understood a few simple facts of psychology, the drink problem could be more rationally approached. The real objection to alcohol, as everybody knows, is its effect upon the human mind. But those who see the effects have generally contented themselves with analyzing alcohol; they haven't stopped to inquire what the human mind is like. The result is that the arguments advanced for total abstinence and prohibition have usually been almost as stupid as the arguments advanced against them.

"Reformers never accomplish anything much, because they are forever dealing in thoughts. They forget that there is something in the human mind more fundamental than thoughts—the elemental impulses from which thoughts arise. These elemental impulses are neither good nor bad; they are simply impulses which may be satisfied in good or bad ways. All the sin, all the evil, all the misery in the world is due to man's attempt to satisfy these desires. But so is all the achievement, all the beauty and all the joy of life. When reformers ignore this second fact, they defeat the very object at which they aim.

"You cannot control fundamental human passions by legislative 'Thou shalt nots.' You may repress them for a time or dam them up—but look out for an explosion or a breaking of the dam.

"The intoxication impulse is one of these fundamental human passions. It is not necessarily the impulse to drink, but it is an impulse which calls for drink when there is no other way of expressing itself. It is the impulse to transcend the hard realities of life, the impulse to expand, to abandon one's self completely to something beyond the range of practical necessity. The impulse which leads men to drink is the same impulse which leads them to the higher things in life—to poetry, to prohibition propaganda or to prayer.

"The scriptural injunction, 'Be not drunk with wine but be filled with spirit,' is in line with the most advanced psychology. Any man who has a tendency to get drunk needs something more than morals to keep him straight. He may need religion—emotional religion—at any rate, he needs an experience of something away beyond the confines of the practical.

"A great love experience may answer the demand. Many a man has been saved from drink by such an experience; but the woman who sets out to save a man is quite likely to fail. Too often she fancies she can do it by managing his life, by keeping track of him, by making him account for all his time and money. You can't blame her for doing this, but it seldom reforms a drunkard. That is because she appeals to his sense of duty, to his judgment and to his personal honor. To reform a drunkard you have to appeal to something deeper down in the human nature than that. You must appeal to his soul—to his elemental impulses.

Merely Taking Away Liquor Not Cure for Drunkenness

"It isn't that the drunkard always has less honor than the sober citizen. He may have more, and be shaken at the same time by turbulent, unsatisfied passions that the sober, efficient and practical citizen knows nothing about. He seldom understands his own case, and he thinks he can quit by swearing off, just as people think they can 'cure' him by taking away the liquor. Unless some provision is made to satis-

"WE have finished with stones for a little," said the officer. "We are going to a mountain of mud. It is dry now, but this winter it never stayed quiet."

An acre or so of the climbing roadside was still uneasy and had slid face down in a spatter of earth and tree roots which men were shoveling off.

"It's rather a fresh road. All together, we have about 4000 miles of new roads—and old roads improved—on a front of 600 kilometers. But, you see, our kilometers are not flat."

The landscape, picked out in all the greens of spring, was that of early Italian holy pictures—the same isolated, scarred hummocks rising from the enameled meadows or drifts of bloom into the same elaborate entablatures of rock, crowned by a campanile or tufted with dark trees.

On the white roads beneath us the lines of motors and mule transport strung out evenly to their various dumps. At one time we must have commanded 20 full miles, all working at once, but never could we spy a breakdown. The Italian transport system has been tried out by war long ago.

The more the road sunk to the plains the more one realized the height of the mountains dominating us all around.

Podgora a Little Gibraltar, One Side Sheer 800 Feet

Podgora, the mountain of mud, is a little Gibraltar about 800 feet high, almost sheer on one side, overlooking the town of Goritzia, which in civil life used to be a sort of stuffy Cheltenham for retired Austrian officers. Anywhere else Podgora Hill might be noticeable, but you could set down half a dozen Gibraltars among this upheaval of hills, and in a month the smooth Italian roads would overrun them as vine tendrils overrun rubbish heaps. The lords of the military situation round Goritzia are the four and five thousand foot mountains, crowded one behind the other, every angle, upland and valley of each offering or masking death.

The mountains are vile ground for aeroplane work, because there is nowhere to alight in comfort, but none the less the machines beat over them from both sides and the anti-aircraft guns, which are not impressive in the open plains, fill the gorges with multiplied coughings more resembling a lion's roar than thunder.

The enemy fly high, over the mountains, and show against the blue like bits of whirling ash off a bonfire. They drop their bombs generously and the rest is with fate—either the blind crack on blank rock and the long harmless whirr of silvered stone, or that ripe crash which tells that timber, men and mules have caught it full this time. If all the setting were not so lovely, if the lights, the leafage, the blossom and the butterflies mating on the grassy kips of old trenches were not allowed to insult the living workmen of death, their work would be easier to describe without digressions.

All Valleys Death Traps, and Only the Heights Count

When we had climbed on foot up and up and into the bowels of the mountain of mud, through galleries and cross galleries, to a discreetly veiled observation point, Goritzia, pink, white and bluish, lay to all appearance, asleep beneath us amid her full flowering chestnut trees by the talking Isonzo. She was in Italian hands—won after furious fights—but the enemy guns from the mountains could still shell her at pleasure, and the next move, said our officer, would be to clear certain heights.

"Can you see our trenches creeping up to them—from their menace?"

There and there he pointed, the Italian troops would climb and crawl, while thus and thus would the fire of our guns cover them, till they came to that bare down and must make their rush—which is really a climb—alone. If that rush failed, then they must dig in among rocks. And lie out under the bitter skyline, for this was war among the mountains, where valleys were death traps and only heights counted.

Then we turned to the captured hills behind us that had lived so unconsidered since they were made, but now, because of the price paid for them, would stand forth memorable as long as Italy was remembered. The heathen mountain in front had yet to be baptized and entered on the roll of honor, and one could not say at that moment which one of them would be most honorable, or what cluster of herdsmen's huts would carry the name of a month's battle through the ages.

The studied repose that heralds a big push cloaked both lines. No one, except a few pieces who were finishing some private work, was saying anything. The Austrians had their own last touches to put in, too. They were ranging on a convent up a hillside—one deliberate shell at a time. A big gun beneath us came lazily into the game on our side, shaking the whole mountain of mud, and then asking questions of its observing officer across the valley.

A Toboggan Road Takes One From Podgora Into Goritzia

Suddenly a boy's voice, that had been taking corrections, spoke quite unofficially at the receiver in the gloom under our feet. "Oh! Congratulations," it cried. "Then you dine with us tonight, and you'll pay for the wine."

Everyone laughed.

"Rather a long walk," said our guide and friend. "The observing officer—he is down near Goritzia—has just telephoned that he has been promoted to aspirant—sub-lieutenant, don't you say? He'll have to climb up here to the artillery mess tonight and stand drinks on his promotion."

"I bet he'll come," someone said. There were no takers. So you see, youth is always immortally the same.

We dropped from Podgora into Goritzia by a road a little more miraculous than any we had yet found. It was in the nature of a toboggan run, but so perfectly banked at the corners that the traffic could have slid down by itself if it had been allowed.

As we entered the town men were mending the bridge across the river—for a reason. They do a great deal of mending in Goritzia. Austrians use heavy pieces on the place—12-inch stuff sometimes—dealt methodically and slowly from far back, out of the high hills. I tried to find a house that did not carry that monotonous stripling of shrapnel, but it was difficult. The guns reach everywhere.

There was no air in the still hollow where the place lay—hardly a whisper among the domed horse chestnuts. Troops were marching through to their trenches far up the hillside beyond, and the sound of their feet echoed between the high garden walls where the service wires were looped among pendants of wisteria in full flower.

Hundreds of Civilians Remain In the Shell-Shattered City

There are several hundred civilians in the city who have not yet cared to move, for the Italian is as stubborn in these things as the Frenchman. In the main square, where the house fronts are most battered and the big electric light standard bows itself to the earth, I saw a girl bargaining for some buttons on a card at a shop door—hands, eyes and gesture, all extravagantly employed, and the seller as intently absorbed as she. It must be less distracting than one thinks to live under the knowledge one is always being watched from above—breathed upon in the nape of the neck, so to speak, by invisible mouths.

A little later I was being told confidentially by some English woman among a garden of irises, who owned a radiograph installation and a couple of shrapnel dusted cars, that they had been promised, when the push came, that they and their apparatus might go into Goritzia itself, to a nice underground room, reasonably free from shells, which disconcert the wounded and jar the radiograph and—"wasn't it kind of the authorities?"

The amazing motor lorries were thicker on the more amazing road than they had been. Our companion apologized for them. "You see, we have been taking a few things up to the front this way for the last few days," he said.

"Are all Italians born driving motors?" I demanded, as a procession of high hooded cars flopped down the curve we were breasting, pivoted on its outside edge, their bonnets pointing over a 400-foot drop, and slid past us with a three-inch clearance between hub and hub.

"No," he replied. "But we, too, have been at the game a long time. I expect the bad chauffeurs have all been killed.

Mules as Stubborn and Hard to Kill There as in Missouri

"And bad mules." One of them was having hysterics on what I thought—till I had climbed a few thousand feet higher—was the edge of a precipice. "Oh, you can't kill a mule," and sure enough, when the beast had registered its protest, it returned to the dignity of its sires. The muleteer said not a word.

We bored up and into the hills by roads not yet mapped, but solid as lavish labor can make them against the rolling load of the lorries and the sharp hoofs of the mule, as well as the wear and tear of winter, who is the real enemy. Our route ran along the folded skirts of a range not more than three or four thousand feet high, more or less parallel with the Isonzo on its way from the north. Rivers that had roared level beside us dropped and shrunk to blue threads half visible through forest. Mountains put forward hard, shady knees, around which we climbed in a thousand loops that confused every sense of direction. Then because the enemy, seven miles off, could see, stretches of the crowded road were blinded with reed mats, while torn holes above or below us proved that he had searched closely.

After that the colossal lap of a mountain alive with dripping waters would hide us in greenery and moisture till the sight of a cautious ash tree still in bud—her sister 10 minutes ago had been clothed from head to foot—told us we had risen again to the heights of the naked ridge.

Up to the Lofty Ridge of the Waiting Cannon

And here were batteries upon batteries of the heaviest pieces, so variously disposed and hidden that finding one gave you no clew to the next. Elevens, eights, fours, sixes and elevens again, on caterpillar wheels, on navy mountings adapted for land work, disconnected from their separate tractors or balanced and buttressed on their own high-speed motors, were repeated for mile after mile, with their ammunition caves, their shops and the necessary barracks for their thousand servants studded or strung out on the steep drop behind them. Obscure pits and hollows hid them, pointing to heaven, and how they had been brought up to be lowered there passed imagination as they peeped out of the merest slits in green sod.

They stood back under ledges and eaves of the ground where no light could outline them, or became one with a dung heap behind a stable. They stalled themselves in thick forest growth, like elephants at noon, or, as it were, crawled squat on their bellies to the very bows or crests overlooking seas of mountains. They, like the others down the line, were waiting for the hour and the order. Not a half dozen out of the multitude opened their lips.

When we had climbed to a place appointed, the shutter on an observation post opened upon the world below. We saw the Isonzo almost vertically beneath us and on the far side were Italian trenches that painfully climbed from the bank to the crest of the bare ridges where the infantry live, who must be fed under cover of night until the Austrians are driven out of their heights above.

No Strategy Possible Where the Heights Reveal Everything

"It is just like fighting a burglar across housetops," said the officer. "You can spot him from a factory chimney, but he can spot you from the spire of the cathedral—and so on."

"Who sees those men down yonder in the trenches?" I asked.

"Everybody on both sides, but our guns cover them. That is the way in our war. Height is everything."

He said nothing of the terrific labor of it all, before a man or a gun can come into position—nothing of the battle that was fought in the gorge below when the Isonzo was crossed and the Italian trenches clawed and sawed their red way up the hillside, and very little of the blood-drenched snout of the height called the Sabotino that was carried, lost and recarried most gloriously in the old days of the war, and now lay out below as innocent seeming as a mountain pasture.

They are a hard people, these Latins, who have had to fight the mountains and all that is in them, meter by meter, and are thankful when their battlefields do not slope at more than 45 degrees.

Pershing a Fighting Man With a Record of Victories for Peace

Firmness, Discretion, Mastery of Detail and a Knowledge That, When Killing Is Necessary, It Must Be Done With Dispatch and on an Adequate Scale, His Distinguishing Characteristics.

By ROWLAND THOMAS.

Author of "The Little Gods," "Fatima," "Felicidad" and other Novels.

THE recent selection of Major-General Pershing as commander of the first expedition of American troops to France called up in my mind the picture of a restaurant in Manila, close by the Bridge of Spain, and of a fit-looking six-foot man who sat across a luncheon table there, brown with the triple tan of field service in the tropics, lean and hard with the exertions and deprivations of a year's campaigning. For that was back in 1903, and Capt. Pershing, as he was then, had just come up to Manila from Moroland and the picturesque exploits around Lake Lanao which later led to his being jumped to a brigadier generalship over the heads of 862 of his seniors, the record promotion for a West Pointer.

He spoke very grudgingly of his adventures and himself, but out of the few words emerged the impression of a man who for twenty years had been doing what came to him to do without carelessness or impatience or mistake, without any selfish grasping after opportunity and equally without weak failure to make the most of every opportunity that came.

Firmness, discretion, dash, mastery of detail and comprehensive breadth of vision, complete patience and relentless determination—those contradictory qualities I seemed to find somehow united in John Pershing when, in his forties, still only a captain, he got his first real chance to display his powers. And those, I believe, are the qualities which make him today, in the opinion of many, one of the most brilliant and the mose dependable general officer in our army.

MAJOR-GENERAL PERSHING.
(Press Illustrating Photograph.)

From the outset of his military career he has had a quiet way of attracting distinctions to himself and saying nothing about them. At the start he won the highest honor West Point can grant her sons when in 1886, 26 years old, he was graduated as Senior Cadet Captain. No "grind" or military athlete can hope to win that place, which betokens at the same time scholarly excellence and soldierly distinction, a sound and well-trained mind in a body expert in the management of arms and horses and, above all, the self-control which warrants the responsibility of commanding others.

He Pursued Geronimo.

He left the academy for a more rigid training school, the Southwest, where he was plunged at once into the closing campaign against Geronimo and his Apaches as a Second Lieutenant in the old Sixth Cavalry, and in August, 1887, scarcely a year from school, won special commendation from that tough old Indian fighter, Gen. Nelson Miles, for "marching his troop with pack train over rough country, 140 miles in 46 hours, and bringing in every man and animal in good condition." Such compliments to youngsters were rare where Miles and Chaffee and that lovable demon Lawton were afield, and every man was a horseman.

In 1889, while at Fort Wingate, Lieut. Pershing with 10 troopers rescued a mixed group of cowboys and horse thieves, besieged by a hundred enraged Zunis, and arrested the horse thieves after he had rescued them, all without firing a shot. By Gen. Carr, another seasoned veteran, he was "highly commended for discretion"—not a common quality in a young man with a body as tough and powerful as his horse's and a demonstrated liking for rough-and-tumble work.

In the early 90's came the Sioux wars in Dakota, where First Lieutenant Pershing, because of his knowledge of Indian fighting, commanded the Sioux scouts, and the Cree campaign of 1896, where he won "special recommendation for judgment and discretion." That ended his western training, which has left him stamped to the end of his days as a man of the Southwest, silent, with frank unprying eyes that look men through and through, gentle of voice, chary of mere words, laughing but seldom, smiling a slow quiet smile more of the eyes than lips, and gifted with incisive turns of speech.

After the Indian campaigns were over the old army settled into the ruts of post routine. Pershing did not settle with it. Detached as military instructor at the University of Nebraska, he seized the occasion to secure an L. L. B., and soon thereafter went back to West Point as one of the tacticians so well disliked by the cadets if they are efficient. He was there in 1898, when the Spanish War broke out, and immediately applied for return to his regiment, the Tenth Cavalry.

For his services in Cuba, and especially at El Caney, he won a majorship of volunteers and the following official commendation from his Colonel: "I have been in many fights and was all through the Civil War but on my word, he is the bravest and coolest man under fire I ever saw in my life."

Then came 12 months at a desk in Washington, spent "solving difficult and vexatious problems" as head of the division of Customs and Insular Affairs, whereupon he applied for duty in the Philippines and in September, 1899, was sent to the Department of Mindanao and Jolo, and made Adjutant. There began his study of the "Moro problem."

Became Gen. Chaffee's Aid.

In 1901, Gen. Chaffee, commanding the Division of the Philippines, found himself in need of a proved young officer. And John Pershing, just made a Captain, of superbly powerful and healthy body, clear, well-disciplined mind, cool, discreet, efficient—was ready when the great opportunity and the great responsibility came and he was sent single-handed to cope with the oldest of all the difficulties Spain had left behind her, the one she had always shirked.

Up in the hills of western Mindanao, some 30 miles from the sea, lies Lake Lanao, and around it live 100,000 fierce, proud, restive uncivilized Mohammedan Malays, a set of industrious, frugal, murderous farmers who love a fight so well they are willing at any time to die to enjoy one, and whose simple creed makes the killing of Christians a virtue. Every little datto and sultan there is a military chieftain with primitive power of life and death over his people, and every little village is a fortress, or was, in 1901, although the Spaniards for three centuries had been spasmodically trying to establish western law and order among the Lanao peoples.

Such folk were naturally eager to

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Marine Corps Needs 4000.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Please print the following copy of statement by the Secretary of the Navy:

"There are no better soldiers in the world than those in the United States Marine Corps, familiarly known as 'Soldiers of the Sea.' They have won their place by their splendid bearing, courage and bravery. Always among the first and often the first to land wherever the country needs trained armed men, they have borne themselves in such a manner as to win complete admiration and fullest confidence of the American people. Service in the Marine Corps is a badge of honor and promotion in the corps can be attained only by merit. In no other military service is promotion more certain to a man who demonstrates his capacity.

"June 10 to June 16 has been designated by the Marine Corps recruiting service as 'Marine Corps Week,' and a special effort will be made during those days to add 4000 recruits to the Marine Corps, the number desired to bring the corps up to the strength lately authorized by Congress. Young men with real American stuff, ready to serve in all parts of the world, on land and sea, will find in it a place where they can serve their country in a way to win its gratitude with the opportunity of winning distinction for themselves."—Josephus Daniels.

I bespeak your generous co-operation and support by patriotic organizations, business houses and influential citizens in making successful this extraordinary recruiting effort.

GEORGE BARNETT,
Major-General Commandant U. S. Marine Corps, Washington, D. C.

Thoughtless Oratory.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

One of the "Four-Minute Men," speaking in favor of the Liberty loan bonds at a local theater recently, stated, in substance, this: "The savings banks may fail and the national banks may fail, but Uncle Sam will still be doing business just the same."

Such statements may sound all right from an oratorical standpoint, but it is a poor policy to give utterance to any such thoughts. Pray tell, how can the Government be safe if all the national banks, savings banks, trust companies, building and loan associations and other financial institutions are unsafe? Liberty bonds are safe and desirable investments, but statements should not be made, especially by public speakers, that other investments are not also safe and desirable.

Children's Savings Buys Liberty Bonds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am transferring the savings accounts of my two children to the purchase of Liberty Bonds.

It has occurred to me that there are thousands of these accounts in St. Louis which can be transferred in view of the fact that the money would not be needed for years, and the transfer would mean the same or better degree of safety; an equal or better rate of interest and at the same time put the money to a patriotic use.

Don't you think it would be worth while to make mention of this in your columns?

Give Dad a Chance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The human mind has wrought many inventions for the convenience and comfort of mankind, but it has yet to conceive of a plan by which the business world can see anything but dollars. The golden rule has no place in the game. Love thy neighbor as thyself is an iridescent dream. There is no place for Dad after he has attained the age of three score years. Look over the want ads; it is boys, girls, young men or men from 30 to 40 years of age, but nobody wants Dad. One of the most pitiful sights to behold is a man who has retired and sits around waiting for a ride in a hearse. Is Christianity a thing to be believed only, or should it be understood and practiced?

BRAZILLE.

A Heroic Law.

From the Philadelphia Record.

West Virginia's new law, which requires that every able-bodied citizen of that State between 16 and 60 shall work at least 36 hours a week, is termed a war measure, but even at that it seems an extraordinary invasion of personal rights. It will be interesting to note whether, in the event of opposition, it will be upheld by the courts. One effect at least can be depended upon. There will be no invasion of West Virginia by the idle rich.

SENATOR HARDING'S OFFENSE.

Senator Harding of Ohio has to some extent mitigated his offense in charging that subscriptions to the Liberty Loan were retarded by lack of confidence in the administration and that Senators were withholding information that might call for investigation and would shake public confidence.

We quote fully the foolish and extraordinary statement of the Ohio Senator that the measure of his folly may be the better understood.

Challenged by indignant Senators, particularly Senator Reed, to state any information he might have in his possession to sustain such a serious charge, Senator Harding made a weak semi-retraction, declaring that his remarks did not mean "anything dishonorable or of a scandalous nature" and added: "I have information relating to unpreparedness."

Senator Harding's statement, in its original form, unchallenged and unexplained, was of a kind that might do infinite harm. It suggested suppressed information on the part of public officers concerning sinister and menacing conditions in the Government, which, if known, would destroy public confidence. It suggested widespread popular distrust, which checked the loyalty and enthusiasm of the people.

As explained, it meant nothing more than that Senator Harding and other Senators had information of unpreparedness about which they were not making speeches in public. Knowledge of unpreparedness is not confined to Senators. It is known generally that the country was woefully unprepared to engage in a great war, but this knowledge stimulates rather than checks popular support of and co-operation with the Government. Information of that sort should help the sales of Liberty Bonds, which are needed for preparedness.

We do not believe, and we do not think that Senator Harding believes, that the people lack confidence in either the purpose of the administration to prepare for the war or in the methods adopted to this end. We do not believe that he believes that the people are refusing to take Liberty Bonds on this account. As a matter of fact, they are not refusing to take them.

If the Senator believed this, he adopted a vicious mode of helping the situation. The remark grew out of a partisan debate and shows to what lengths of indiscretion and ill-will partisanship will lead public men who ought to know better. It illustrates the curse of partisanship in Congress and the country.

The confidence that is shaken by Senator Harding's remarks is public confidence in his own judgment and loyalty. It should be a lesson to all his fellow Congressmen to avoid partisanship as a plague in a crisis of this kind and to devote themselves single-heartedly to the safety, the honor and the interest of the nation.

CALL FOR MR. HOBSON.

In an address touching upon the increasingly friendly relations between the United States and Japan and reminding his hearers that Japan has arranged to be of the greatest possible industrial service to America in the war, Premier Terachau recently said:

> International questions between the two countries in the last 50 years have been amicably settled through mutual good will and concessions. Today * * * we are like closest neighbors. Our ties have been strengthened by a community of interests and we are on the eve of joining our resources in chastising our common obdurate foes in the cause of the peace of the world. * * The United States and Japan have too important a mission in the world to quarrel on account of petty local questions.

This should be highly interesting to Mr. Hobson and the other Japanophobes who have filled the land with hysterical shrieks of "Yellow Peril!" for the last few years.

THE WHEAT CYCLE OF THE WORLD.

The wheat calendar of our country under which the harvesting activities begun in Texas in May are continued through narrow zones in a northerly march ending at the Canadian line in August is impressive enough in its sweep of days and parallels of latitude. There is, however, another and greater wheat calendar that takes in the whole year and is synchronized to almost all arable areas in the two hemispheres.

The annual cycle begins in January with the wheat harvest of Argentina, New Zealand, Chile and Australia. In February and March come the wheat harvests of Upper Egypt and India, and in April those of Lower Egypt, Syria, Cyprus, Persia, Asia Minor, Mexico and Cuba. Not only Texas, but Algeria, Central Asia, China, Japan and Morocco harvest their wheat in May. In June Turkey, Greece, Italy, Spain, Portugal and Southern France as well as our south central tier of states advertise for harvest hands.

In July states in the latitude of Nebraska and also Rumania, Bulgaria, Austria, Hungary, Southern Russia, Germany, Switzerland and Southern England are busy with their harvest. August is perhaps the most important month of all to the grain, for it is then that Northern Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana, the provinces of Western Canada, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Poland and Central Russia gather the king of crops. In September and October are the harvests of Scotland, Sweden, Norway and Northern Russia. November is the harvest month of Peru and South Africa. Burmah and New South Wales harvest in December.

Just as there is no moment in the year when some one is not born and some one does not die, so there is no moment when golden grain is not being bound up somewhere into sheaves and prepared for uses to which all other foods are subordinate.

To compile the almanac of wheat is only another way of indicating the universality of this grain crop and its unapproachable importance to the human race.

THE TAX COMMISSION.

The Governor will be required in a few days to appoint the members of the Tax Commission created by an act of the last Legislature. It is perhaps the most important of the measures devised by the Governor and enacted by the Legislature to remedy the financial condition of the State.

The powers of the commission are broad and extensive, embracing practically the control of the assessment for taxation of all the property of the State, the action of the District and County Assessors being subject to its direction and approval. It possesses original jurisdiction over the valuation for taxation of public utilities, and must adjust and equalize the valuation of all property, real and personal, among the several counties of the State. It may also prescribe the forms of all blanks and books that are used by the various officers of the State in the matter of taxation. Its powers extend even to a survey and examination of the administrative offices in the endeavor to bring about economy in administration. It is, in effect, the State Board of Equalization in continuous operation, instead of in a short annual session, and with greatly enlarged powers over those granted to that board.

As the commission now to be appointed is the first one under the new law, necessarily its action will establish precedents for future boards, and the forms and rules of procedure adopted by it will require careful thought and skillful preparation. Evidently, then, the selection of the personnel of the commission is of vital importance if the intent of the Governor and of the Legislature is to receive its promise of fulfillment.

Prudence suggests that one at least of the members of the commission should be a lawyer who is conversant with the taxation laws and the interpretation put upon them by our courts, and competent to draft efficiently the forms and documents that will be required in the execution of the commission. The other members should be experts on taxation and revenue questions.

COMMUNITY SINGS.

The Kansas idea of "Community Sings" apparently is spreading. For several years the University of Kansas has had on its rolls a man whose chief work is to encourage community enterprises where all present sing at least a part of the time.

Last week there was held in Birmingham, Ala., such a meeting and reports of the meeting say that the 4000 persons present sang with great volume when requested so to do and then applauded the songs. This success has given rise to a request that more such meetings be organized. Also the educational department of New York State has made public a report of the success of community singing campaigns in that State.

The purpose of this propaganda is to bring the people together in some form of exercise so that they may get acquainted and feel that they have something in common; a modified revival of the old "town meetings" of our early days.

DEADLOCK OVER 37 PAJAMAS.

Sister Susies sewing shirts for soldiers under the auspices of the Woman's Political Union of Roselle, N. J., made 37 suits of pajamas and sent them to the Red Cross organization at Elizabeth. But tags bearing "Votes for Women" were securely attached to the garments and Mrs. E. W. Lyon of the Red Cross chapter refused to accept them. "We shall be happy to have them if the inscriptions are removed," says Mrs. Lyons, "but our orders prohibit inscriptions of any kind."

Miss Mary Mulford, president of the Political Union, says the inscriptions will never be removed. What is to be done in such a case? How long are our soldiers to be deprived of 37 suits of pajamas while the ladies prolong the inexcusable deadlock?

We don't want articles intended for our defenders' wear converted into veritable posters or signboards, but the ruling is rather sweeping. Other tests would be more useful. Any ladies who have made 37 suits of good, serviceable, rip-proof pajamas, whose buttons won't fly off the first night they are put on, have acquired a proprietary equity in the war that ought to be recognized. If they want to put "Votes for Women" on their handiwork, where is the power that shall forbid them?

The protesting ladies at Elizabeth forget the new status and dignity newly conceded to the "Votes for Women" slogan. It takes its place right alongside of "In Union Is Strength," "Keep Your Powder Dry," "Equal Rights to All and Special Privileges to None," "Remember the Maine" and other great national mottoes. Those 37 suits of home-made army pajamas could have no better reminder of patriotic duty and democratic progress.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S DEGREES.

The name of Woodrow Wilson has been added to the list of the illustrious men whom the ancient University of Bologna has honored in its long history of upwards of a thousand years. In conferring an honorary doctor's degree upon the President, the venerable institution has given him the highest token of esteem in its power.

Honorary degrees from these old European schools are not as easily obtained as they are from many American colleges. Something more than the gift of a library or a dormitory is usually required. In awarding its degree the faculty has attested Mr. Wilson's high scholarship, his broad vision, his universal sympathy for humanity.

Although no doubt many of the American's achievements were in mind, one would like to think that the thesis which brought him the honor was his single address in the United States Senate of last February, when he proposed an international league to enforce peace. If any one document might be calculated as sufficient to warrant him a place on rolls graced by the names of Dante, Petrarch and Tasso, surely it would be this one.

MR. ANTWINE ON JAPAN.

"IT seems to me that if I were the Preisdent I would not lose any time in getting a good war commission off to Japan. As nearly as we may judge by what we hear from that country, Japan is not only sincerely in the war, but is eager to do her part. We are told that she has virtually warned Russia against making a separate peace, and she has her destroyers in the Mediterranean helping to put down the submarine.

"Some one has said that Japan and the United States can win the war. Of course they can. A complete co-operation between them could wind it up in a hurry. So far as I have been able to learn, Japan is even better prepared than we are to put troops in Europe, and there is no indication that she is unwilling to do so. No doubt our own determination to do this is a powerful incentive to her to do the same thing. If that is so, the sooner we reach such an understanding with Japan, the quicker the war will end. As has been pointed out by people who know the situation, the Central Powers are in no position to withstand an attack by Japan on the Balkan front at a time when the United States is throwing her forces against the Kaiser's line in Flanders.

"Possibly a commission is already on its way to Japan from this country. I do not know. If not, we may be sure it has been suggested in the Government councils. I hope very much to see it done. Our own country, it seems to me, is in a better position than any of the allies to induce Japan to throw her great forces into the fight. We need that bond with Japan in the Pacific, and not to avail ourselves of her friendly advances seems to me to be a mistake. There may be reasons of which we know nothing why we ought not to send a delegation of hand-picked gentlemen in silk hats to Japan on that very errand, but I cannot imagine what they could be. We have been warned that if Russia has quit we must take her place. Very little has been said of the possibility that our own country and Japan can more than take her place.

"However, I am not saying this in any spirit of criticism. I am only saying it in the belief that not everything can occur to the war councils at Washington. It is the duty of us all to think what can be done to restore peace in the world, and I have merely been thinking of the great possibilities of this plan. If there is nothing in it, let us all hope it will not make anyone mad."

JUNE'S SUMMER SONG.

LORD of the sky, benignant Sun,
Work of thy hands is never done;
In shady nooks, in the hawthorne leaves
The robins tell of May's past days,
The woodlands ring with Summer lays
The oriole in liquid weaves.

And where the slanting rays are bent
The fairies pitch their moonbeam tent,
The dandelions—an outlaw race—
A fugitive, anon is seen
In hiding in some sheltered place
Where grass is waving high and green.

The blackbirds all their gossip bring
Unto the oak, hard by the spring,
And o'er the meadow all day long
I hear the thrilling of the lark,
As if his heart would break in song,
And then my faithful mastiff's bark.

Bold citizens of field and sky
Scoff at me as I pass them by,
Usurp my rights to flower and tree—
And if I seek for solitude
I find a gay society
Far in my deepest forest wood.

The merry jargon of the birds, the quaver tones of brook and bee,
The mooing of the distant herds, insolent squirrels in their tree!
In idleness I would but dream
Of Iris in her golden prime,
Adrowse beside some pebbled stream
And weave her splendors into rhyme!

JUNE.

We trust the advertising men who spent last week in St. Louis were impressed by our climate. One can know the truth of our climate only by spending a few days here in Summer. It is much too variable for justice to be done it by merely dashing in and out. The advertising men saw it in all its moods. It was one day hot, another day windy, another day June with all its witchery. It sometimes rained. At other times the sunlight was dazzling. Again it was soft and smoky, as if the very spirit of Whistler pervaded the air. We have no climate that is our own. We have only a little of everyone else's climate, and whatever anyone else claims for his climate is therefore true of ours.

ALAS! WE ARE TINLESS.

GORMAN.—Americans like to think there is nothing in the way of metal that we cannot provide for ourselves if we please and, as a matter of fact, we can come very close to that ideal; but with all the prospecting that has been done no one has yet found enough tin within our borders to meet an appreciable fraction of the demand. There is some hope that Alaska may yet develop a tin-mining industry, but if that should never happen the United States will not be worse off than most of the world, for tin is a metal of very local distribution. Cornwall, Hungary, Bolivia, South Africa, Australia, two small islands in the Dutch East Indies and the Malay Peninsula nearly complete the list of places where tin has been found in large quantities. Of these the Malay Peninsula and the Islands of Banka and Billiton are overwhelmingly important. The New York Metal Exchange reports that in 1915 we imported 47,000 tons of tin, of which 42,000 came from that region. The trade is in the hands of the Dutch, who have maintained grip upon it for years and dominate the market. It is interesting to learn that through the American Smelting and Refining Company an effort is being made to declare American independence on tin, or, at least, to modify our dependence somewhat by importing ore or crude metal from Bolivia, which is to be smelted in this country. Bolivia is the nearest rival of the Asiatic tin country, and with the help of the Canal ought to be able to reach the United States with its ores in a way that will be of advantage to both countries.

BEAUTY CULTURE.

CONSTANCE.—Hair deadened by measles or fever should be allowed to fall, thus making way for a new and vigorous growth. Pyle's Personal Hygiene says: Shampooing, brushing, massage of the scalp and attention to general health, are the only means of preserving a good head of hair and aiding its restoration after falling. * * * Only electrolysis will permanently kill superfluous hair, and is not always successful. Application of equal parts of peroxide and ammonia is said to bleach and rot hair, and, in time, discourage its growth. This must be used several times a week many weeks before any change is noted.

CHARGE OF THE LIGHT-BRIGADE.

KLEESCHULTE.—Dec. 2, 1854, Tennyson wrote the "Charge of the Light Brigade" in a few minutes, after reading the description in the Times, in which occurred the words "someone had blundered:"

Half a league, half a league,
Half a league onward,
And all in the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.
"Forward, the Light Brigade!
Charge for the guns!" he said,
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

"Forward, the Light Brigade!"
Was there a man dismayed?
Not though the soldier knew
Someone had blundered!
Theirs not to make reply;
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die;
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon in front of them
Volleyed and thundered;
Stormed at with shot and shell
Boldly they rode, and well,
Into the jaws of death,
Into the mouth of hell
Rode the six hundred.

Flashed all their sabers bare,
Flashed as they turned in air,
Sabering the gunners there,
Charging an army, while
All the world wondered!

Plunged in the battery smoke,
Right through the line they broke;
Cossack and Russian
Reeled from the saber stroke
Shattered and sundered.
Then they rode back, but not—
Not the six hundred.

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon behind them
Volleyed and thundered;
Stormed at with shot and shell,
While horse and hero fell,
They that had fought so well
Came through the jaws of death
Back from the mouth of hell,
All that was left of them—

When can their glory fade?
O the wild charge they made!
All the world wondered.
Honor the charge they made!
Honor the Light Brigade—
Noble six hundred!

CHICKEN SALAD RECIPES.

R. G.—(1) With two cups of cold roast or boiled chicken cut into dice, mix a pint crisp celery cut into half-inch lengths. Season with salt and pepper and moisten with dressing. Turn into chilled bowl, cover with the dressing, and garnish with slices of hard-boiled egg and bits of celery tops. (2) Cut into dice cold roast or boiled chicken. Add about half as much blanched celery, chopped fine, and one cup chopped nut kernels. Walnuts are delicious but other nuts may be used, if preferred; celery may be omitted. Mix with French dressing and set away for an hour. Just before serving stir in some mayonnaise dressing. Arrange on lettuce leaves and decorate with the tender tips. Cover with thick mayonnaise and serve. (3) Boil fowl tender, letting cool in water in which it is cooked; when cold cut into small pieces and add an equal quantity of celery. To each chicken chop three hard boiled eggs and two cucumber pickles. Chill, mix and serve on lettuce leaves on a flat platter, with a border of holly around the edges and a sprig of it in the center. (4) Broiled chicken salad: Cut the legs off a cold roasted or boiled chicken, dust them over with salt, pepper and a little dry English mustard. Squeeze some lemon juice over them, put them on a well-greased gridiron, and broil till nicely browned on both sides over a clear fire. Serve with lemon and parsley butter. (5) Chicken salad filling: Use a salad made in the usual proportion but with all the ingredients finely chopped before mixing with the mayonnaise. Tiny finger rolls are used instead of bread. (6) In making chicken salad, use the oil that comes out of the chickens when boiled, instead of olive oil. This adds greatly to the flavor of the salad. (7) About 4 pounds of fowl are allowed to each quart of salad. You will need [illegible] pounds of chicken to make salad for [illegible] people.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THANK YOU.—Phone florists.

AND OBLIGE.—Phone universities.

E. S.—To raise Chinese sacred lily in water, remove brown dried skin and all the hard callous at base of bulbs. Do not separate bulbs, but take sharp knife and score main bulb as though to quarter it, but do not cut more than a quarter of an inch deep. Cut off one end shoot also—this wastes bulb, but develops foliage growth. Arrange bulbs in glass bowl, steadying with pebbles, bits of marble and shells; also put in broken charcoal to keep water sweet. Water may be changed once or twice before they bloom. Place in dark cupboard or closet 10 days, until roots are well started.

TOO MUCH EFFICIENCY

By E. J. RATH

Author of "When the Devil Was Sick," "One-Cylinder Sam," "The Man With the 44-Chest," etc.

CHAPTER XV.

A Prophylactic Party.

AS a Christmas morning resolution, H. Hedge decided to square himself—and when he decided anything, it was equivalent to doing it. He summoned the three Brookes from the gymnasium. Constance was flushed from a vigorous session with the punching bag, although she was breathing easily.

"Fine condition," the efficiency man told himself as he looked upon her with frank approval. "Sound wind—and a remarkably good short-arm punch. Choppy little hook, too. If she would only extend her efficiency!"

"Well, what's the particular crime now?" demanded Billy.

"We are giving a party," said H. Hedge, coming out of his reverie.

The Brooke children flopped into chairs.

"O-oh!" exclaimed Alice. "New Year's eve."

"I believe so—yes."

"What sort of party?" asked Alice.

"Is there more than one kind?"

"Several," affirmed Constance, finding her voice. "There are bridge parties, dancing parties"——

"This will be a dancing party, then. Remember, Dec 31. Party. O. K."

He made a memorandum on a pad.

"That's all," he added. "You may go."

The Brookes arose from their chairs and the efficiency man dismissed them with a wave of his hand.

The Brooke children filed out of the library and went back to the gymnasium. Billy tapped his forehead knowingly.

"Balmy," he said.

"Perhaps," assented Constance. "But it was too good a chance to lose. We just can't live if we don't do something."

"And I'm going!" cried Alice triumphantly.

Any sort of a party was an important affair for Alice, because she had not yet been "introduced," and was still at an age that required her to mope in her room during most of the parties in the Brooke mansion. The efficiency man had not seen fit to elimiate her, and she had been careful not to raise the point.

"You don't imagine he's getting human?" asked Billy, still dazed by the news.

"Not permanently," said Constance. "That's too much to expect. But it sounds as if he was going to take a night off."

The three Brookes waited for H. Hedge to say something more about the party, and in vain. They were afraid to bring up the matter themselves, for fear of an argument and a clash that would lead to cancellation. They simply knew that invitations had gone out, for Horace mailed them. Who had been asked and who omitted they did not know; the efficiency man had possession of the social list and had used his own judgment.

"I hope he didn't forget to invite us," observed Alice, "so long as it's going to be in our house."

"He said it was our party," Constance observed, "although we don't seem to have anything to do with it, because he'll do what he pleases anyhow. This is his last chance, so far as I am concerned. He stands or falls on this party."

"He's been falling for so long that it doesn't seem to make any difference whether he hits bottom or not," complained Alice. "If he fell a million miles he'd still be here, I guess."

The Brooke children went for a long walk on the day of the party, returning only half an hour before dinner. They found the efficiency man in evening dress.

"You'd better hurry up," he said, glancing at his watch. "You'll have to dress before dinner."

"Before dinner!" echoed Billy. "Isn't there lots of time afterward?"

'Dinner at 7; party at 7:30. Hurry."

Constance felt that she was going down in a runaway express elevator.

"You don't mean to say you have invited people here at 7:30?" she demanded.

"Certainly!"

"Why no party begins before 9:30 at the very earliest!"

"This one does."

"Why, it'll take three-quarters of an hour for my hair!"

"Takes eight seconds for mine," remarked H. Hedge. "Four minutes and forty seconds to shave. Six to dress. And you don't shave. No reason why you can't be ready."

Constance fled, followed by her brother and sister.

"Shall we confer?" asked Billy grimly as they reached the second floor.

"Oh, what's the use?" cried Constance with a tragic gesture. "I'd fly out of the window, if I could! But we're in for it. We might have known something awful would happen. We ought to have been firm and refused to have a party. But what can we do? He's gone and invited a lot of our friends and we've simply got to receive them. Hustle into your clothes, Alice. Wear the pink. I'll let Matilda help you; I'll manage without her. Move now, Billy, and don't spend half an hour with your tie. Remember that we're all to be publicly executed at 7:30."

In spite of these admonitions the three Brookes were late at dinner, and after a hasty meal they retreated upstairs again for further sartorial attentions. It was long past 7:30 when Constance descended to the main floor. She was just in time to see the front door close on a couple in evening dress. They were going out!

Constance paused in the hall at the foot of the staircase. She was a radiant figure, but she did not feel radiant. She felt that the elevator was dropping again.

A gurgling noise close beside her caused her to turn sharply, and she beheld a young man with a handkerchief to his face, shaken with a violent paroxysm of coughing. It was Tommy Treadwell.

"Hel-hello, C-Connie," he gasped. "I—I"——

He strangled again.

"Why, Tom, what in the world is the matter?" demanded Constance in genuine alarm.

"Ex—excuse me. I"——

Once more a spasm took charge of him, and Constance began to pound him energetically on the back. After a minute, Tommy Treadwell regained a measure of control and wiped his streaming eyes.

"Better now?" asked Constance anxiously.

"Yes—thanks. Sorry to be such a nuisance, but"——

"You shouldn't have thought of coming out with such a cold," she chided.

"Cold? I haven't got a cold."

"Then whatever is the matter?"

Tommy pointed toward the library and whispered hoarsely:

"Been sprayed!"

"Sprayed!"

"Uh-huh. Nose, throat, tonsils—the whole works."

Constance stared at him in unbelief.

"Had my lungs tested and my heart listened to, just like I was joining the army."

"Tom!"

"Honest. And they put down my age, and who was to be notified."

"Who did this thing?"

"The doctor. He's all dressed in white, and he's got a nurse with him and a whole kit of full of tools."

"What doctor?"

"Search me, Connie. But he's on the job, anyhow. I got through, but he's been turning some of 'em down. Notice that couple who went out just as you came down?"

Constance nodded faintly. She was clutching the newel post for support.

"That was Florrie Richmond and her brother. Couldn't pass."

"Who—Florrie? What was the matter?"

"Oh, Florrie got by all right. It was Clarence. He had a spot on one tonsil. When they wouldn't let him stay, Florrie got mad and went away with him."

Constance moaned.

"They ruled Hildegarde Forrest off the track, too," observed Tommy with a reminiscent grin. "She was half a degree subnormal and they wouldn't let her start. Teddy Wall is out of it, too. They wanted to compress the turbinate bone in his nose, so he could breathe better, and he said he'd be —— He said they couldn't do it."

Constance passed a weary hand across her eyes. She had become haggard.

"What's it all about, anyhow, Connie?" asked Tommy. "Some kind of a joke?"

"A joke!" she gasped. "A joke!"

Suddenly her limp form stiffened and she made a dash for the library.

The first figure she observed was that of a tall man in a long white robe. He was bending over somebody who sat in a chair. At his side stood a woman in the uniform of a nurse. She was holding a bottle in one hand and a ferocious nickeled instrument in the other. The efficiency man was close by, armed with a pad and a fountain-pen.

As Constance paused, rigid, there was an abrupt commotion, and a young man in evening attire sprang out of the chair and pushed the man in white violently away from him.

"You let me alone!" he bawled. "I don't care if I've got hydrophobia. You'll not stick that thing down my throat."

The doctor looked at H. Hedge.

"If you won't submit to examination I cannot permit you to stay," said the efficiency man to the patient.

The patient glared for five seconds and then stalked from the room.

"Next," called the doctor.

At that point Constance intervened. She walked across the library and planted herself resolutely in front of the efficiency man.

"Explain!" she commanded.

'Certainly," he said suavely. "I am safeguarding the members of the household."

"You mean"——

"Just this, Miss Brooke. I am charged with the care of you three children. That extends to your health, among other things. Large assemblies of persons offer exceptional opportunity for the transmission of infectious and contagious diseases. I do not propose to have any of you run the risk of illness. Neither do I propose, if all reasonable care can prevent it, to have any guest in this house participate in dancing unless his or her heart and lungs are in proper condition to endure the strain. It would be embarrassing to be compelled to call a Coroner. I am, therefore, taking every precaution. Dr. Wardell will not only conduct such examinations as may be necessary, but will also remain in attendance during the evening, ready to perform professional services whenever they may be required. And may I compliment you upon your gown?"

Constance did not hear the compliment. Her ears had ceased to record any definite sounds, somewhere in the middle of the efficiency man's explanation. She was quivering with silent rage.

"If you will go across the hall into the parlor," observed H. Hedge, "you will find a number of your guests, who, I am happy to say, have passed a satisfactory examination. I suggest that you join them. They should have been dancing before this, but do not seem to have begun. I wish you would ask them to start. Unfortunately, I shall be busy here for some time."

He gave her a nod of dismissal and turned to make a note of the name, age, and address of a terrified little blonde in blue, who was holding out a rosy tongue for inspection, and having her pulse perused at the same time.

Constance made her way mechanically in the direction of the room that H. Hedge insisted upon calling a parlor, to her daily horror. She was making a violent effort to preserve her sanity. The company of young people upon whom she gazed did not appear to be attending a party. They were making about as much noise as the figures on a movie screen. Most of them were gathered in little groups. Occasionally there was a whisper, but for the most part silence. Constance hesitated at the threshold. The situation was at the verge of fatality.

She crossed the room quickly and went into the music-room, where she found Horace, the butler, standing stiffly at attention.

"Where is the music?" she demanded, glancing about her. "Tell them to start at once."

"I am the music, Miss Brooke," said Horace in a hollow tone.

"You! What do you mean?"

"There is no music except me, miss. I am—I am"—— The butler's voice faltered. "I am to play that thing."

He pointed gloomily in the direction of the phonograph, which had been moved in from the library.

"You've been playing that!"

"Twice, Miss Brooke. 'Too Much Mustard' and 'Oh, You Beautiful Doll.' Nobody danced. I am about to try 'Cupid Astray.'"

With a suppressed shriek of horror, Constance charged upon the music-machine, slammed the lid and locked it.

"Throw that key out of the window," she commanded, "and find my brother immediately. Bring him here!"

She flung herself at the piano and began playing wildly, conscious only of a desire to make a terrific noise.

Billy Brooke had to shout in her ear before she was aware of his presence.

"Make them dance!" she screamed. "Make them do something! I'm going crazy. I'm going to play and play and play until I die. Make them dance, run, jump—or anything. I don't care. We're all going to commit suicide when it's over, anyhow, so what difference does it make? Ha, ha!"

She laughed hysterically and beat out a two-step until her fingers throbbed. She was still playing when the efficency man, having superintended the examination of his last guest, who was rejected for adenoids, joined his antiseptic party and gravely demonstrated the Danse Economique.

At 10 o'clock there was a service of sandwiches in sealed and sterilized wrappers, accompanied by lemonade and ginger ale, the choice of which was optional among the guests. This took place in the dining-room, where numerous camp-chairs had been arranged in soldierly rows along the walls.

But of all this Constance was unconscious. She had escaped to a far corner of the conservatory, where she wept dismally into a tiny square of lace. It was here that Tommy Treadwell found her, and presently she was weeping against Tommy's shoulder while he tried awkwardly to soothe her.

"I can never look anybody in the face again," she wailed. "I can't stand it. I'm going to run away!"

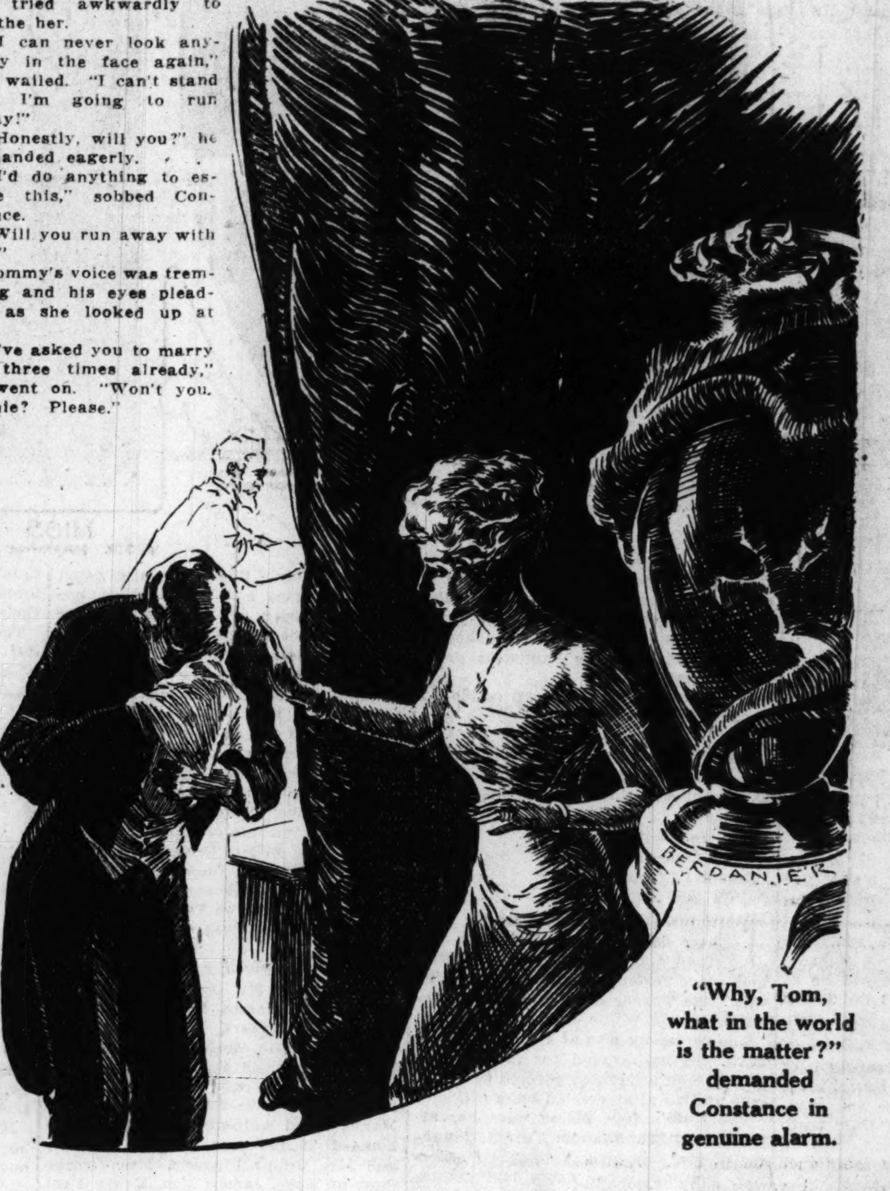
"Honestly, will you?" he demanded eagerly.

"I'd do anything to escape this," sobbed Constance.

"Will you run away with me?"

Tommy's voice was trembling and his eyes pleading as she looked up at him.

"I've asked you to marry me three times already," he went on. "Won't you, Connie? Please."



"Why, Tom, what in the world is the matter?" demanded Constance in genuine alarm.

Connie buried her face against his coat again and tried to think. She was fond of Tommy Treadwell, and it was true that he had asked her three times. But Constance had never taken Tommy seriously, because she did not want to. She had never felt like marrying anybody. She was still living her girl days. There would be plenty of time to marry later on. As for Tommy—well, when the time came, it might be him, or it might be somebody else. She did not love Tommy, she was quite sure; but she did like him tremendously.

It was hard to think, although she wrestled with her problem heroically. A voice seemed to be crying into her ears. "Escape! Escape! It's your chance!" The idea of escape dominated her. And Tommy was offering the way to freedom.

"Please marry me, Connie," he urged softly. "I'll be awfully good to you."

She knew that. She knew Tommy Treadwell for true blue, and she knew that he would walk Broadway on his hands and knees for her, if she commanded. But she did not love him.

"Escape!" urged the little voice.

Tommy stroked her hair and talked pleadingly.

"Marry me, Connie, and I'll take you away from it all. You just see if I don't make you happy."

He talked with the fine confidence and sincerity of youth.

"Answer me, Connie dear. Will you marry me?"

Constance did not answer. She did not have time. The voice of a third person intervened.

"Miss Brooke will not marry you," said the efficiency man calmly.

Constance sprang back with a cry, and Tommy Treadwell flushed, but stood his ground.

"What have you got to say about it?" he demanded.

"Everything. Kindly get your hat and coat from the butler and leave."

"You mean to tell me I haven't a right to ask Connie to marry me?"

"No; I did not say that. You have the right. You have exercised it. Very good. That settles it."

"But you"——

"I do the answering; you do the asking," said the efficiency man blandly. "You will go now."

"And suppose I don't take your answer?"

"Take it or leave it—it goes."

Constance's first emotion was one of utter humiliation, which was quickly succeeded by rage. She flashed a look of defiance at H. Hedge.

"I will marry whom I please!" she stormed. "I will"——

"You will go to your room, Miss Brooke," interrupted the efficiency man.

'I won't. I'll"——

Tommy Treadwell, with a sense of true delicacy, put an end to the scene.

"You're all unstrung, Connie," he said gently. "Better get some rest. Good night."

She hesitated, then buried her face in her hands and walked away slowly. As she passed Tommy, he whispered swiftly:

"I'll phone tomorrow. Be ready."

He did not even say good-night to H. Hedge, but strode from the conservatory and a minute later left the house.

As for the party, it ended, according to fixed time limit, at 11 o'clock. There were not very many left at that hour, so that no extensive hardship was done. Only the efficiency man was about downstairs when the New Year came in with a tolling of bells.

"He looks rather sound and sensible," mused H. Hedge as he turned out the desk light. "But, as for marrying Constance—certainly not! I cannot permit it."

CHAPTER XVI.

The Elopement.

CONSTANCE arose early. It was scarcely 7 o'clock, but there was a strategic reason for the unusual event. Constance was going away; she was about to quit the shelter of the Brooke rooftree for that of another, and it was essential that the efficiency man should be unaware of the fact until it had been accomplished.

Constance was going to be married. Yes, to Tommy Treadwell, of course. He was her refuge in time of tribulation and despair.

"It makes no difference," mused Constance as she dressed hastily, "that I don't love Tommy. He understands. He knows I like and admire him, and he's going to be satisfied with that. I think he's almost heroic to marry a girl that he knows doesn't love him. But I can't exist here. And I must—yes, must—find a new home for Billy and Alice. Tommy has promised to take both of them until father returns. I suppose it will get into the papers, but—— Oh, anything is better than this!"

Tommy was to call early, for Constance did not propose to face H. Hedge at breakfast. She had seen the last of him, she fervently hoped. That is, she thought she hoped. Yet it was curious and disconcerting that the image of the efficiency man kept impinging upon her mental vision.

"If he would only stop being efficient," she said aloud, viewing her dark blue traveling costume in the mirror. Then she found herself flushing. "Well, suppose he did stop. What then?"

She packed a grip, carefully yet swiftly; later she would send for the rest of her wardrobe. As she did so, she kept shaking her head emphatically.

"I must think of nobody but Tommy," she said. "It's not fair to think about anybody else."

The breakfast gong had not sounded when Constance made a final survey of herself, seized a big muff, picked up the grip and moved briskly to the door of her room. At the threshold she paused long enough to look up and down the hall. She did not want to meet either Billy or Alice; she would telephone them after it was all over. The hall was empty of life, so Constance stepped out and headed for the rear staircase.

One flight she descended rapidly, which carried her as far as the main floor, and then she began to follow more cautiously the second flight, which was poorly lighted and had two sharp turns. At the first turn she paused abruptly. She heard footsteps in the semigloom below. Somebody was coming up the stairs.

Constance peered over the balustrade and held her breath. A servant she did not mind. But it was not a servant—it was H. Hedge. Her first impulse told her to turn and run; but the time was too short and the grip too heavy.

"Face it!" she told herself with quick resolve.

But she did not want to face the efficiency man with the grip, so she tried to hold the latter behind her skirts. It was an awkward maneuver. The grip hammered at her heels as she resumed descent of the staircase. Then it slipped from her fingers. An instant later it struck her in the hollow of a knee. Constance staggered, swayed and pitched forward, uttering a sharp cry.

She came to a halt half a dozen steps below. Tightly gripped around her waist was one arm of the efficiency man; the other was clinging desperately to the rail. Both of Constance's arms were around his neck. She could feel him struggling desperately to maintain a balance. With a gasping intake of his breath, he presently achieved it. The grip shot past them, rounded a turn, and landed noisily on the floor of the basement hall.

"You servants are tremendously careless," growled H. Hedge as he settled Constance back on her feet.

"I'm not a servant!" she snapped, instantly regretting the disclosure.

He twisted his head to peer into her face. Their eyes were not six inches apart in the half light.

"It's Constance!" he exclaimed.

Never had the efficiency man called her that before.

"Yes, it's I!"

"You might have had a bad fall," he chided. "The front stairs are better lighted."

"I chose the back ones," she retorted.

"You're unusually early this morning."

"Possibly."

H. Hedge seemed willing to prolong the conversation.

"It's not eight yet," he remarked.

"I know it."

"Didn't you drop something?"

"Of course."

"I'll go down and get it for you." But he made no move.

"Don't bother. I'll get it."

"But I insist."

"No!" He paused and considered.

"It's a nice morning," he observed irrelevantly.

"I believe so."

"Going for a walk?"

"Yes—no!"

"Why not say 'perhaps'—you get the same idea compressed into one word."

Constance was becoming anxious. She knew that Tommy Treadwell and his blue roadster were waiting below in the courtyard.

"Let me go!" she exclaimed.

Up to that point she had been too bewildered to notice that there had been no change in their positions since H. Hedge interrupted her headlong plunge.

"Not until you let me go," answered the efficiency man. "And then maybe"——

With a little cry of dismay she disengaged her arms from his neck.

"Let me go!" she repeated.

"Temporarily or permanently?" he asked with great deliberation.

"B-both!"

H. Hedge shook his head sadly.

"I never could do two things at once," he said. "It's unscientific even to try."

"Please—please!"

"In that case, temporarily," he declared, as he reluctantly withdrew the arm that held her close.

Constance's cheeks were fiery; she prayed that the gloom of the back stairs rendered all colors neutral.

"Thank you—for catching me," she said coldly as she passed him.

"Thank you—for falling," he remarked happily, as he watched her finish the descent of the staircase.

For nearly a minute he stood there, gazing downward. He had seen Constance retrieve her grip and then hastily make her way toward the back door. He heard it close behind her. H. Hedge was puzzled.

Out in the courtyard stood a roadster, the engine idling wheezily. Tommy Treadwell was standing beside it, nervously tapping on a fender. His eyes lighted with happiness as he sighted the furred figure of Constance and he sprang forward to assist with the grip.

"You dear old trick!" he cried.

"Morning, Tommy," said Constance.

She said it cordially enough, yet without that tender enthusiasm which ought to mark the salutation of a bride-to-be. Constance was flurried and preoccupied. Her mind was on the affair of the staircase—and H. Hedge. Why did he pester her so? And yet, if he hadn't been there—— Well, if he hadn't been there, she wouldn't have dropped the grip!

Tommy had seized the grip and swung it up on the baggage carrier in the rear, when he began an adjustment of the straps. Meantime, Constance stepped in and settled herself nervously in one of the bucket seats.

The efficiency man arrived in the courtyard while Tommy was still working at the grip. As Constance sighted him, she observed with a sinking heart that he was clothed in one of his ominous calms.

"Good morning," he said, as he walked across the open space.

Constance paled slightly and did not answer. Tommy Treadwell fumbled furiously at a strap and said nothing.

Hedge reached the side of the car, leaned over, pressed a button on the dash and turned off the ignition. The engine stopped.

"You let that car alone!" called Tommy angrily.

"All right; I will," said the efficiency man, stepping back a pace and eyeing Constance.

Tommy finished with the grip and came around to the side of the car.

"Well?" asked Hedge.

"Well?" echoed Tommy.

"What's the idea?"

The elopers exchanged swift glances and Tommy became emboldened.

"Well, if it'll give you any satisfaction to know," he announced, "Connie and I are going to be married."

"You surprise me," said the efficiency man. "I thought we had concluded that matter last night."

"You thought wrong. It's all settled."

"True; it's settled. Miss Brooke is not going to marry you."

Tommy flushed a dull red and there was a fighting look in his eye.

"Are you, Miss Brooke?" asked Hedge.

Constance compressed her lips and nodded.

"Which shows how error will persist," said the efficiency man, apparently talking to himself.

He stepped around to the rear of the car, unloosened a strap with a deft motion and swung Constance's grip to the pavement.

"You may as well alight, Miss Brooke," he said.

Tommy Treadwell sprang forward and confronted him across the grip.

"You'd better keep out of this," he said grimly.

Tommy was quite a large young man, fully as large as Billy Brooke. He was taller than the efficiency man, and wider. But H. Hedge did not appear to be observant of Tommy's bulk just at that instant. He was looking only at Tommy's eyes.

"I can't keep out of it," he said simply. "It happens to be my duty to stay in it. Go in the house, Miss Brooke."

Constance remained immovable in her seat and maintained silence.

"You're the one that's going in the house," announced Tommy, clenching his fists. "And maybe they'll carry you in, if you don't get out of here in about ten seconds."

"I'm sorry you feel that way about it," said Hedge.

"Well, if you're sorry, beat it! If you don't there'll be trouble."

"Trouble? I'm sure there will be no trouble."

The efficiency man spoke in a deprecatory tone.

"I see that I've got to lick you," observed Tommy Treadwell, and there was no reluctance in his voice or manner.

"I'm afraid you will have to."

Constance, who had listened to this colloquy with her face averted, now turned and bestowed a curious glance upon the efficiency man. If she expected to see his dark hair bristling and his eyes snapping, she was disappointed. He looked exactly as he always did in the library. She looked at Tommy. He was bristling beautifully.

"Here goes," said Tommy.

The efficiency man nodded.

CHAPTER XVII.

Deserting to the Enemy.

TOMMY TREADWELL let fly with his right arm, straight from the shoulder. Hedge did not have his hands up, but somehow the blow missed him entirely. Perhaps it was a case of Providence, or perhaps it was because he flirted his head a few inches to the right, accidentally. In any event, it missed him clean, and Tommy fell over the grip.

He arose, chagrined and mad clear through. This time he came in swinging. Just what the efficiency man did it is difficult to say, for he did not appear to be doing anything, except failing to get hit. He had his hands up, but he was not using them on Tommy. He was dodging punches, stopping punches, diverting punches, but he was contenting himself with that. His face wore a thoughtful look. He was not giving ground, but at the same time he seemed to be engaged in a purely negative way.

It is more exhausting to hit nothing than something, and Tommy Treadwell was hitting nothing at the rate of about 60 blows a minute. It did not improve either his wind or his temper. Constance, whose sympathies were curiously impartial, found herself wondering why a girl like herself could hit a punching bag so easily, while a big man like Tommy could not hit an efficiency man.

It went thus for some minutes, and finally the efficiency man began to speak.

"I do not know," he said, as a left swing passed over his head, "where you studied the art of boxing. But there is no doubt that you waste a tremendous amount of effort. You do not box efficiently. In the first place, you should not swing at all. It causes the fist to travel in an arc, rather than in the shortest way. Observe—you missed me again."

Tommy, indeed, had, and nearly lost his balance.

"Furthermore," added H. Hedge, as he sidestepped a fresh volley, "when you use the straight blow you start it too low and too far back. You are prodigal with muscular effort, for which you do not obtain sufficient return, save in the form of exercise. Observe again. You should not start an uppercut from the ground; it takes too long. Don't start it below the waist."

Tommy, breathing now in gasps, charged again.

"Your footwork is bad," continued the efficiency man. "You travel a great distance, but you do not arrive. I don't wish to be rude, but it is my duty to say that you are clumsy. You are mastodonic, it is true; but the mastodon is an extinct animal. Why be extinct?"

Tommy was missing more obviously than ever. He was tired.

"Now, if I can, let me illustrate an efficient blow," said H. Hedge. "The truly efficient blow is conceived with deliberate purpose and executed with due economy. It travels the shortest possible distance and, theoretically, carries with it the exact amount of necessary power. It may be delivered with either hand. In this case, we will assume that it is to be delivered with the left. Thus!"

The quick eye of Constance Brooke noted a fleeting and surprising change in the face of the efficiency man. It had been impassive until now. But as he said "Thus," his jaws tightened, his eyes narrowed, and his forehead contracted in a scowl that frightened her. His fist came from nowhere, but it landed somewhere, and his body was following it. Tommy Treadwell, already wabbling from his own efforts, turned halfway around, staggered and fell flat on his face.

Constance uttered a cry and covered her eyes.

For an instant Tommy groped at the pavement, then began to arise, uncertainly.

"Don't make me do it again," said the efficiency man in a changed voice. "You haven't a chance."

Tommy, however, was not satisfied. He wheeled as he reached an erect position and closed in. H. Hedge, again with the sudden scowl on his face, did it once more.

This time Tommy was longer in arising, and when he did it was to sit on the running board of the car and rest his head in his hands.

"Now, if you please, Miss Brooke," said Hedge quietly, as he picked up her grip.

Constance, still averting her eyes, suddenly sprang from the car and dashed into the house, where she ran madly upstairs, half choked with hysterical sobs. The efficiency man looked at the crest-fallen knight on the running board and shook his head slowly.

"Sorry if I hurt you, old man," he said. "But, really, you mustn't try to marry Miss Brooke."

Then he, too, disappeared into the house.

"I wish," said the efficiency man on the day after New Year, "that you would reconsider."

He was addressing Constance Brooke, who had entered the "office" for the purpose of getting a book. Since the episode of the courtyard there had been no speech between them. Constance had been having meals sent to her room, a proceeding to which H. Hedge interposed no objection. He was in a mood to make concessions; he was thankful for the gloom of the back stairs.

Constance looked at him sharply and flushed.

"I have reconsidered," she said shortly. "I shall not marry."

The efficiency man's pulse skipped a beat; but he preserved an exterior calm.

"Very good," he nodded. "I presume you refer to Mr. Treadwell."

"To anybody—everybody!"

Her back was turned toward him and her fingers were running lightly over the books on a shelf.

"That is what I should call a wholesale reconsideration," he remarked judicially. "It is sufficiently inclusive to be ominous. The world will wear mourning. However"——

He paused as he noted the deepening pink of her ears.

"However"——

He paused again, this time to observe more closely the poise of her well-set head. Constance dropped a book on the floor and stooped to recover it.

"However, that is not what I wanted you to reconsider."

She picked up the book and faced him, her cheeks aflame. He was laughing at her, she knew; he had tricked her! Yet his face was impassive and wholly devoid of mirth. In fact, it was thoughtful. Even in her anger and confusion, she wondered what imperious necessity compelled H. Hedge to be so consistently intolerable.

"What I wanted you to reconsider," he explained, "was your decision not to assume the duties of a secretary in this establishment."

"Oh!" she said faintly.

Yes, he had tricked her! She was raging at herself for having fallen into the snare. Yet how was she to know that he did not intend to refer to the downfall of Tommy Treadwell? Her own mind had held no other thought for the past 24 hours. The whole business of trying to escape from serfdom had humiliated her. She was even angry at Tommy. Perhaps he had done his best, but why hadn't he done better? He was bigger than H. Hedge; he looked stronger. Why didn't he win? Perhaps efficiency really meant something, after all.

Yet, as she stood confused and exasperated, the turmoil of her mind suddenly resolved itself into calm. In that instant a great idea was born. Constance was utterly amazed at the discovery. The idea was nothing that she had groped or striven for; it simply flashed upon her. Yet it was the solution of the whole terrible problem!

"Buck up!" she whispered to herself. "Play the part. This is where you win!"

As Military Service Has Depleted Men's Ranks, a Dull Social Season Is Anticipated and Women Are Engaged in Patriotic Work in Some Form—Dances and Dinner Parties Give Way in Many Instances to Comfort Work for Soldiers and Sailors.

Only a few more big weddings are left on the calendar and it will not be long before the women—the men of the social set almost all having gone into service somewhere, some to the Ambulance Corps in France and others into the Coast Patrol and training—will soon be going away to the summer resorts where it has been the custom for various sets to congregate.

The summer resorts, excepting those along the coast, will be the most "Adamless Edens" ever seen, and the coast, where the white squadron used to stop on its summer cruise, now all gray and too busy with the work in hand for teas and dances at the ports of call; so even those places will be dull.

What an odd summer it will be!

The ranks of the Country Clubs here are so depleted that there are scarcely enough men to dance with. Galleries are full of knitters, and the links have hardly a young man.

The most exciting happenings are the announcements of engagements and the "war weddings" which follow.

It is all very strange, but things that were once of so much importance—dances and dinner parties—are giving place to more important affairs in which women of the social set are taking important parts.

"Everybody who is anybody" is very much occupied with some patriotic movement of national interest.

THE Comfort Committee of the Navy League will open headquarters tomorrow at 312 North Eighth street, opposite the Postoffice, where instructions for knitting helmets, wristlets and jackets for the sailors of the United States Navy will be given and where finished articles will be taken for shipment.

Mrs. Norris B. Gregg, who was appointed from Washington as chairman of the St. Louis committee, has just returned from Washington where she went for instructions, but on account of her necessary absence from the city, she has resigned active chairmanship, which has been assumed by the vice-chairman, Mrs. William A. Stickney.

So fast has the the organization grown that over 400 pounds of wool have been used.

Branches have been established in Webster, Kirkwood, Clayton, Ferguson, St. Charles, Alton, Edwardsville, Troy, Mexico and other places.

A fund has been raised for wool, which now is $2 a pound, so that it may be furnished to women who are willing to knit but are unable to purchase materials.

Women of St. Louis may be seen knitting on the cars, in their automobiles—anywhere they stop for a moment, they begin to knit. There are knitting parties and, whenever several are gathered together, they are knitting with all their might.

At first they used the blue as well the gray yarn, but now it is only the gray that is used as it does not discolor in the salt air.

Knitting for the navy is a necessity, for coast patrol has brought so many men into the service that the navy has not been able to provide knitted articles enough for their comfort, so the Navy League which, by the way, is not a branch of the Red Cross but an organization of long standing and of much importance, and has to do with the welfare of the Jack Tars and men of the navy, started the wheels going and are trying to have warm things for the men who stand their watches in the sea where it is always cold at night.

At headquarters here anything that anyone wishes to know can be learned about knitting and lots of other things about the navy and needs of our sailors.

THE big ball game Friday afternoon for the benefit of the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society brought out more than 10,000 persons, who filled the grand stand at the Cardinal Park. It was the gayest scene, the gayest crowd and the gayest game imaginable.

It was the proper place for sport clothes and every other woman in that vast throng was wearing a sweater. They were the kinds that fasten on the side, fasten in front and those of great breadth and thickness, some being without sleeves. They were worn by women old and young—fat and thin—it made no difference.

And the colors—all shades of green, light pink, dark pink, blues of every name and various shades of yellow.

All the hats worn with the sweaters were either of the same shade or had a bit of the color for trimming.

The grand stand was a maze of color added to by the girls and young matrons, who also, in vari-colored sweaters, went through the audience selling programs, etc.

Seven thousand packages of popcorn and peanuts were sold, which will add greatly to the fund, and, it is said, the gate receipts will net about $10,000.

MISS JOSEPHINE CARRADINE daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Carradine of 5736 McPherson avenue, will be married June 25 to Dr. E. K. Dixon at the Church of the Ascension, the Rev. John S. Bunting officiating. Dr. Dixon is the son of Mrs. Charles S. Dixon, 6164 Berlin avenue and a grandson of the late Dr. William H. Woodward. Miss Glendy Carradine will be her sister's maid of honor and Miss Hadley Richardson will be bridemaid. Brandt Van Blarcon Dixon will be best man for his brother. Miss Carradine's sister, Mrs. Ben Allan Samuel of Chicago will come here for the wedding.

Capt. and Mrs. George W. Crane of 4201 Connecticut street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Bertha Crane, to A. C. Boeddeker of 6517 Smiley avenue.

A lot of dark-colored hats of exceptional style and quality will be sold at $3, $5 and $8. New light-colored sport hats just received. Sally Meagher Millinery Co., 801 Century Bldg. ADV.

ST. MARGARET'S CHURCH was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday morning when Miss Evelyn Regina Liston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Liston of 4052 Russell avenue became the bride of Frank Joseph Reeves. The Rev. J. J. O'Brien officiated. A bridal breakfast at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in a white georgette crepe and fillet lace trimmed in pearls. Her veil was of tulle and she carried an armful of bride's roses. Miss Irma Liston, her only attendant wore a frock of pink georgette crepe with a large white hat and carried pink Killarney roses. John Keely was best man.

Mr. Reeves and his bride will visit Chicago, Buffalo and Toronto, Canada, on their bridal tour. They will be at home after July 1 at 4033 De Tonty street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Loenstein of 3950 Flora boulevard will be at home informally on the afternoon and evening of June 17, in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Loenstein formerly resided at 4013 Russell avenue and have recently moved into their new home.

MISS LILLIAN JANE ETHERINGTON became the bride of Victor E. Collett of Boston at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs Thomas Etherington of Longfellow and Midland avenues, St. Louis County, Thursday evening, the Rev. Frank Gonzales, pastor of the Fountain Park Congregational Church officiating.

The ceremony was performed in the living room before a bower of green foliage. The bride was charming in a white georgette crepe gown made on simple lines. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride roses arranged in a shower. Miss Grace Woodin was maid of honor and John Etherington, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

A reception to 500 guests followed the ceremony. The dining room was decorated in pink roses and peonies. In the center of the table a large wedding cake reposed, which was cut by the bride and distributed to guests. The happy couple received many handsome presents.

THE marriage of Miss Blanche Turner, daughter of Mrs. John W. Turner to Kelton Ewing White, took place yesterday afternoon at "Hillside," the Turner country home, in Arcadia, Mo.

The ceremony was at 4 o'clock on the lawn, the background for the wedding party being a pavilion covered with foliage and an altar erected before it.

The bride's four nieces were her attendants. Miss Blanche Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Voluntine C. Turner, who made her debut last season, was maid of honor and Misses Mary Soulard Turner and Beatrice Turner, her younger sisters, and Miss Marie Clarkson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Frasier. Friday afternoon Mrs. Murphy had a box party at the big ball game for the Tuberculosis Society and the girls were among those who sold popcorn and peanuts.

FIVE honors were carried off by two of the girls who graduated at Mary Institute Friday. Besides being "High Honor" girl Miss Elizabeth Nulsen received the alumnae prizes for French and English and the College Club scholarship. Miss Elizabeth Wood won the alumnae latin prize and the Washington University scholarship. To Miss Caroline Shelton went the Alumnae essay prize.

Every year Dr. Edmund H. Sears, principal of the school, gives a special prize and every year it is one of the most interesting moments in the exercises because the winner has been picked out for qualities that have no place and can have no recognition because they are too personal, and usually everybody weeps while the presentation is being made. Miss Virginia Shallcross Gordon was the girl chosen for her dignity, kindness, sweetness and graciousness—for being a good loser and sporting winner.

Miss Gordon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gordon of 38 Westmoreland place, and is one of the best basket ball players in the school. She was one of the honor graduates besides.

Miss Nulsen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Nulsen of 3417 Longfellow boulevard, and will go to Vassar next autumn.

REPORTS SUCCESS WITH NEW DRUG HABIT CURE

Atlanta Health Official Asserts Simple Treatment Works Wonders—Drink Victims Included.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 9.—By a secret treatment known only to four persons, Dr. Roy Harris, secretary of the State Board of Health, is curing drug addicts in 36 hours, and is convinced that drunkards can be cured by the same method in even less time.

Acting for the board, he opened a hospital at 81 Washington street, Atlanta, two weeks ago, where the secret treatment is being used. It depends on a drug which is not new, but which is new in its application.

The process was discovered last Christmas by Dr. Charles F. Stokes, formerly Surgeon-General of the United States Navy. It was confided by him to Dr. Harris, Dr. George Criel of Cleveland, a leader in investigative science, and a third man. Dr. Stokes wanted the others to help him verify the efficacy of the treatment before he made it public.

Dr. Criel has been prevented by relief work in France from applying the new process, and today it is in use at only two places—New York and Atlanta.

Dr. Stokes is treating patients in New York and Dr. Harris in Atlanta, and both report almost miraculous results. The age of the addict and the time which he has been a victim to drugs make no difference.

Practically every case—where the victim wishes to be cured—yields to 36 hours' treatment, and addicts who have been in the grip of drugs for half a lifetime are freed of the habit in 48 hours. Alcoholism is cured in even shorter space.

"When Dr. Stokes first told me of the treatment," said Dr. Harris, "I was skeptical. It seemed so astounding that I couldn't accept it as a scientific fact But what he showed me he had done in New York dispelled my doubts, my experiments at the city's improvised hospital here has made me doubly sure.

"This is the only real means ever discovered for the cure of drug addicts and alcoholics. It causes no distress—or practically none—it does not render the patient unconscious, and it works its cure in a marvelously short time.

"Only two things are required:

"First, that the patient wants to get well.

"Secondly, that he is free from any organic disease.

"The treatment depends on a drug which isn't new but which is applied in a new way. Dr. Stokes discovered it while testing out a carefully worked-out theory. He was unwilling to make it public until others had verified his conclusions. For that reason his secret was confided to me and two others.

"Twenty persons have been treated so far at the hospital on Washington street, and the efficiency of the new method has been proved in each instance."

At the Washington street hospital a dozen patients were seen, some of them undergoing the treatment, others just recovering from it. According to them the secret drug is injected by hypodermic every hour for 36 hours. It causes slight pains and profuse sweat. They were enthusiastic in their praise of it.

LUNATICS ARE POOR SOLDIERS

Germany Finds They Ignore Orders, and Are Nuisances in Army.

LONDON, June 9.—Lunatics do not make good soldiers, says the annual report of the lunatic asylum at Stettin, Germany, which advises against any more of its inmates being conscripted for service with the colors.

"The asylums are proud that their inmates are allowed to serve the fatherland," says the report, "but the results have not been satisfactory because the lunatics have generally proved to be an unbearable nuisance in the various armies in which they have served, refusing to obey orders, deserting from their companies and becoming vagrants."

HOMECOMING OF ARMY WIVES AT LEAVENWORTH

As Officers Prepare to Go Abroad, "War Widows" Fill Post Barracks and Hotels.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 9.—Wherever military men abide, Leavenworth is known as "the mother-in-law of the army," because of the many Leavenworth women who have married officers or soldiers. Now they are beginning to call it "the Old Ladies' Home," because so many of these army wives are coming back to stay while their husbands are in France. The early arrivals got headquarters at Fort Leavenworth, and the late arrivals are filling up the apartment houses and hotels in town.

Leavenworth girls always have had the pick of the army because of the schools at Fort Leavenworth. Young officers are sent to the schools at just about the time they have saved up enough money and reach the right age to marry. Between the social affairs at the post and in town the young officers have plenty of opportunity to meet the young women and as a result Leavenworth probably has furnished more brides to the army than any other town in the country, and a reunion of almost any Leavenworth High School class in the last 20 years could be held at almost any army post in the country.

Now with their husbands being transferred from one point to another every few days, and preparing meantime to cross to France, these wives and their families are coming back to Leavenworth to be with their folks or live in the comfortable quarters at the Fort and the town is rapidly filling up with "war widows." Not all of them, however, are wives of officers. Several hundred retired noncommissioned officers live in Leavenworth, and many of them, men between 50 and 60 years of age, have been ordered back into active service, leaving their families here.

ROME'S POPULATION 648,701

City Slowly Regaining 1,000,000 Population of Second Century.

ROME, June 9.—War-time Rome is slowly regaining the 1,000,000 population of the city in its prime during the second century, according to the recent census report which places the present population at 648,701. The annual floating population is estimated at 100,000, with 538,346 permanent residents.

Rome had a population of less than 20,000 in the year 1347 when Cola di Rienzo temporarily restored the ancient republic. With the return of the Popes and wealth in 1370 the population slowly increased to 85,000 in the sixteenth century, and at the close of papal rule in 1870 the population was 221,000. The census of 1901 placed the population at 424,943 and that of the year 1911 at 556,000.

ALKALI IN SOAP BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

ELEPHANTS TO TREAD DOWNTOWN PAVEMENTS

First Circus Parade in Several Seasons Will Be Given Here Tomorrow.

The first circus parade seen in St. Louis in several years will be given tomorrow morning by the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, which will begin a week's performance on the Laclede and Vandeventer avenue lot at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The parade will leave the circus grounds at 9:30 a. m. and will go east on Laclede to Grand avenue, north on Grand to Chestnut, east on Chestnut to Broadway, north on Broadway to Washington, west on Washington to Twelfth, south on Twelfth to Locust, west on Locust to Beaumont (Twenty-seventh street), south on Beaumont to Pine and west on Pine to the grounds.

Three trains carrying the show are scheduled to arrive here this morning from Bloomington, Ill.

The advance agent of the show, standing under the big "Truth" emblem of the advertising men on Twelfth street, with uplifted hand, announced the following figures regarding the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus:

Capital invested, $3,000,000; daily operating expense, $7500; 1000 people with the show, in addition to 108 advance representatives; three herds of elephants, 750 horses, 400 wild animals, 400 performers, 22 tents, 60 clowns and a caravan of camels.

Speaking of the parade he declared: "It is to be three miles in length. It will contain eight bands, two calliopes, a regiment of clowns, knights and ladies of court on horseback and threescore elaborately carved and gilded allegorical floats and tableau wagons.

The daily operating expense, estimated by the owner, Edward Ballard, at $7500, is declared to be $1000 a day more than it was before the days of the high cost of living.

WOMAN'S PART IN CONSERVATION MOVEMENT IN MISSOURI

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 9.—The part of woman in the conservation movement in Missouri will be in charge of Miss Sarah Petit of the Teachers' College of Columbia University, New York, who has recently been appointed superintendent of home economic demonstration work of the extension division of the University of Missouri.

The State has been divided into sections for food emergency work, and a supervisor will head each division. Two supervisors will be assigned to the larger cities, such as St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph. A large enough number of women experts in home economics are now available in the service, so that one woman can be placed in every two or three counties.

The first work which will be taken up by the conservation-of-food specialists will consist of canning and preserving demonstrations. Lectures will be given in connection with the demonstrations on other food problems and how they may be solved. Other phases in the conservation of foodstuffs will be undertaken when canning work has been finished.

Liquor Dealers Meet Today.

Liquor dealers will hold a mass meeting at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Druid's Hall, Ninth and Market streets. Among the speakers will be William Seckel of Cleveland, president of the National Liquor Dealers' Benevolent Association, and Robert J. Halle of Chicago, secretary.

LOCKSMITH POSES AS OFFICER

Inspects German Barracks and Gives Leave to Many of Men.

LONDON, June 9.—A German locksmith from Berlin has been sentenced at Cassel, Germany, to six months' imprisonment for an unusual exploit.

The locksmith, a youth of 20, obtained possession of the uniform of a Captain and, accompanied by a girl friend, made a tour of garrison towns in Central Germany, especially Saxony. He described himself as Captain of a mine-throwing company, and with the aid of false stamps had provided himself with the requisite papers. He arrived at each barracks decorated with numerous orders and medals, and in each case inspected the military guard, and then filled out orders granting leave to a certain number of officers and men, and signed free passes for their railway journey to wherever they wished to go.

Causes of

Gray Hair

and how "Canute Water" will restore it to its youthful color

Gray hair is not generally an indication of age. It is often hereditary—being common to many families. Prolonged sorrow or worry—dandruff and mental overwork very often cause grayness. Severe illness and constant pain or sudden fright will cause the hair to become gray, even in a child.

Thanks to this remarkable new scientific discovery, one can now obtain a clear and clean water, which will restore the natural and youthful color to gray or faded hair. It will therefore no longer be necessary for one to remain gray.

The gray hair will surely yield to the gentle, never-failing influence of this pure, clean liquid called "Canute Water for Gray Hair."

A crystal clear water solution that is free from sediment, odor, grease, lead, acid, walnut stain or coal tar products of any kind. It is therefore absolutely safe to use.

Day by day your gray hair will take on more and more color. The action is not complete after the first application. Use it for a few days, and before the completion of the first bottle the youthful color of your hair will be restored. It will then remain that way and simply require a retouching once every week or two as the hairs grow.

"Canute Water for Gray Hair" is applied by simply wetting the hair with it. It is simplicity itself to use. Yet it works wonders.

Why hesitate. "Canute Water for Gray Hair" is GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS!

Few Drops When Corns Hurt, Pain Stops! Corns Lift Out

Don't let corns ache twice! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers—Here's magic!

No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without any pain.

This drug is called freezone and is a compound of ether discovered by a Cincinnati chemist.

Ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon any tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted off with the fingers.

Freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels them without any irritation.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards.

"HEROIC FRANCE" FILM AT THE COLUMBIA THIS WEEK

Relief and Ambulance Bodies Will Get Portion of the Receipts.

"Heroic France, or the Allies in Action," motion pictures made on the French front by Merl La Voy under the auspices of the American Relief Clearing House of Paris, will be shown at the Columbia Theater all this week, beginning tomorrow at 1 p. m. There are eight reels, and they run two hours. There will be five shows daily, starting at 1, 3, 5, 7 and 9 p. m. The regular Orpheum vaudeville season at the Columbia ends tonight.

"Heroic France" is being shown for the benefit of the American Relief Clearing House of Paris, the American Fund for French Wounded, the American Ambulance Field Service and the children of the frontier. Tomorrow night there will be a special performance, for the especial benefit of these organizations. A large portion of the receipts of all other performances also goes to these funds. Mrs. Edward J. Walsh of 4349 Westminster place, whose father, Col. J. B. Erwin, now commandant at Jefferson Barracks, was one of the commanders of the recent American expeditionary force in Mexico, is in charge of arrangements.

To Keep the Face Fresh, Clear, Youthful

More important than the cosmetic care of the complexion is its physical care. To keep the face clear, fresh, youthful, there's nothing better than ordinary mercolized wax. It absorbs the soiled or faded worn-out skin particles. Cosmetics simply add unwholesomeness to the complexion. That's the difference. By all means acquire the mercolized wax habit. It's so easy to get an ounce of the wax at the druggist's, apply at night like cold cream and wash it off next morning. There's no detention indoors, the old skin coming off so gradually no one suspects you're using anything. When in a week or two the alluringly youthful, roselike underskin is fully in view—well, you won't want, or need, a make-up complexion after that. It must be apparent that this process means complete riddance of all cutaneous blemishes, like freckles, pimples, blotches and blackheads.

For a wrinkled, loose or saggy skin, a face bath made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel, surpasses massage cream and everything else for results. Its action is instantaneous and perfectly harmless. It improves facial contour wonderfully.—ADV.

FREE PHYSICAL TEST FOR MEN OF MILITARY AGE

Examinations by Fifth Regiment Medical Staff Offered—Voluntary Enlistment May Continue.

Beginning tomorrow, any man of military age can obtain a free physical examination from the medical staff of the Fifth Missouri Regiment, at 716 Olive street, whether he wishes to enroll in the Fifth or not. Examinations will be given at night at the First Regiment Armory, Grand avenue and Market street.

Men who were registered last Tuesday can learn, in this way, whether they are physically eligible for service. If an applicant does not pass the examination he will receive a card, signed by Col. Robbins of the Fifth Regiment, stating that he has been rejected for physical disability. If an applicant passes the test, he is under no obligation to enter the Fifth Regiment, but its officers will be glad to have him do so.

Col. Robbins estimates that, of the 77,101 men registered here as subject to selective conscription, about 40 per cent are physically qualified.

Fifth Asks for Recognition.

Formal application for Federal recognition of the Fifth Regiment has been made by the Adjutant-General of Missouri, and officers of the regiment are awaiting a reply from the National Militia Bureau to know when the organization will be sworn into the Federal service.

The regiment became formally a part of the State guard Monday night, when minimum peace strength was reached—938 men. Company commanders, field and staff officers were elected at that time. The aim of the commanding officers, Col. Leroy K. Robbins, now is to reach maximum peace strength before the Federal inspection. This will require an average increase of 35 men in each of the 12 line companies and an increase in the machine gun company from 57 to 71 men. Maximum peace strength is 1348 men. From that point war strength, or 2002, will be the next goal.

Enlistments May Continue.

The question of enlistment of men registered June 5 under the selective draft law was definitely settled for St. Louis Friday by an official ruling from the War Department, transmitted through Brigadier-General H. C. Clark of the Missouri National Guard. It follows:

"The following communication has been received from the Militia Bureau:

"1. The Secretary of War directs me to inform you that no order stopping voluntary enlistments on June 5, 1917, is contemplated and that persons registered as required by the selective service law may continue to enlist voluntarily until they have been actually drafted for service under the selective service law.

"2. These voluntary enlistments may be in the regular army, navy, marine corps or national guard, both in and out of the Federal service."

200 PETROGRAD GIRLS ENROLL TO FIGHT JUST LIKE MEN

Army Officer Tells Them to Admit to Their Hearts Only Suitors Who Defend Country.

PETROGRAD, June 9.—Two hundred girl students of the Petrograd Technical Institute have entered their names on the rolls of a female regiment which is being raised by Ensign Butchkareff. The aim is immeidately to start to the front and to fight in all respects under the same conditions as men.

Scores of girls and women, anxious to fight, appeared at the offices of the League of Equal Rights for Women, which has expressed its approval of Lieut. Butchkareff's plan. Thursday night the women held their first meeting. They were addressed by Col. Popoff of the Twelfth army, who appealed to the women to shame male strikers and to admit to their hearts only suitors who have actively helped to defend the fatherland.

WOUNDED ARMY HORSES ARE KILLED AND SOLD IN PARIS

British Furnish 400 to 500 a Week, and French a Smaller Number; Helps Out Food Supply.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 26.—The British army sends between 400 and 500 horses a week to Paris butchers to be slaughtered and put on sale in the horse meat markets. The French army furnishes a smaller number.

The total makes such an important contribution to the feeding of Paris that the horse butchers are using it as an argument against the closing of their establishments two days a week along with the other butchers. The result, they say, will be that a great many wounded horses that are now killed at the front, then shipped to Paris to be dressed and sold, will be buried on the spot without profit to anyone.

New Method Removes Superfluous Hair Roots!

Have you "tried everything" for that annoying hairy or fuzzy growth, and about given up in despair? Well, there's just one thing more to try, and you must try it, because it is the one home treatment that reaches the very root of such troubles. The new process is not to be compared at all with depilatory, electrical or any other method you've ever heard of. It is different because it actually removes roots and all—you see the roots with your own eyes.

Just get a stick of phelactine from your druggist, follow the simple instructions, and if it doesn't do exactly as stated you can have your money back without question. Phelactine is odorless, non-irritating, and can be used with entire safety—you could even eat it with impunity. It is an instantaneous method.—ADV.

CONSPIRACY TO ALARM PEOPLE, DANIELS SAYS

Organized Attempt to Spread False Reports of Naval Battles, He Declares.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Persistent false reports of naval battles and disaster to American and entente forces have reached such a point that Secretary Daniels has concluded there is an organized conspiracy to alarm the American people. Today the Secretary issued this statement:

"The country is being poisoned by rumors of battle and disaster that are without the slightest foundation. Reports from the commandants of naval districts, telegrams from newspapers and letters from individuals have forced me to conclude there is an organized conspiracy to distress the people of the United States.

"Among the most persistent of these false reports is one that in a naval engagement between the German fleets and the combined fleets of England and the United States 60 English and American ships were sunk or disabled, among them the Pennsylvania and the Texas.

"In elaboration of this falsehood there is the alleged rumor that hospitals at the Atlantic coast naval yards are filled with crippled sailors and marines and that various hospitals of New York City are crowded with wounded men.

"It is being rumored widely that a passenger arriving on one of the Holland-American line steamers has stated that his vessel passed through the battle area after the engagement and that the sea was thick with floating bodies.

"All of these outrageous falsehoods are accompanied by the explanation that the Washington authorities are in a conspiracy with the press to keep the truth from the people.

"No such engagement has taken place. The American fleet has not been in action. No ship has ben lost. There are no wounded sailors or marines in any hospital.

"The declared policy of the navy department is one of absolute openness. If disaster comes no effort will be made to minimize it. The people of the United States are asked to trust in this pledge and to aid in stamping out this campaign of rumor that is so plainly the product of disloyalty."

JAPAN WOULD BUILD SHIPS FOR ALLIES, BUT HAS NO MATERIAL

Empire Has Many Idle Shipyards of Large Capacity—United States Could Help With Co-operation.

TOKIO, May 20.—Japan stands ready to build additional ships for the entente Powers, but is badly in need of material for construction. That is the situation in this country as outlined by Baron Kenjiro Den, Minister of Communications.

The Minister said: "Some shipyards in Japan are forced to suspend work on account of lack of material. Should the United States supply the materials, Japan would be able to co-operate with the entente in response to their proposal in rehabilitating the havoc wrought by the Germans."

It is believed that Japan will be willing to place some of her merchant vessels at the disposal of the entente for service in the Atlantic as well as cooperate in supplying new ships to the entent of her capacity.

Before the war Japan was in possession of nine shipyards, capable of building vessels of over 1000 tons. The war has caused seven new yards of a like capacity to be added to the list so that now Japan is capable of constructing 54 vessels of over 1000 tons at a time.

Last year Japan built only about 250,000 tons owing to stoppage of the importation of construction materials.

GERMAN PAPERS CONTINUE TO BELITTLE U. S. WAR PLANS

Frankfurter Zeitung Says Conscripted Army Never Can Be of Much Aid to Allies.

LONDON, June 9.—The German newspapers are still publishing, often and industriously, articles that seek to belittle the prospects of American assistance to the alllies. In a choice essay, the Frankfurter Zeitung says:

"Seven weeks have passed since the American entry into the war, and in this period, the people on the other side certainly have not been idle. But it is already being shown in which spheres American assistance can be of great use to our enemies, and in which other spheres it will, apparently, never be of decisive importance.

"At the head of all American measures stands, undoubtedly, the introduction of compulsory military service in the United States. Whether that was done solely with consideration for the present war in Europe is indeed a separate question for, meantime, it will have become more plain, even to the general public in America, to raise and train a large army is quite a different thing from sending this army overseas and maintaining it there for a long period."

UNIONIST COUNCIL TO TAKE PART IN IRISH CONVENTION

Decision Largely Influenced by Government's Declaration That Agreement Would Help to Win War.

LONDON, June 9.—The unionist council met at Belfast yesterday, with Sir Edward Carson presiding. It was decided to participate in the proposed Irish convention.

A resolution embodying this decision declared that the council was largely influenced by the Government's representations that agreement on the Irish question would materially help in the successful prosecution of the war. It affirmed that the council relied on the assurances of the Government that if no agreement was reached no plan should be forced upon the Ulster Unionists with which treir representatives were not in agreement.

$700 ALFALFA CROP CUT ON CITY BORDER

Secretary Houston Has Front Adjacent to Washington University Scientifically Cultivated.

A crop of alfalfa, the product of scientific agriculture, has just been harvested from a 13½-acre tract at the southwest corner of Forsythe boulevard and Skinker road across from Washington University. The yield was about two tons to the acre, and at present market prices, the first crop will bring about $700. As two other crops will be harvested, and possibly three, the value of the alfalfa crop from the land, which has been idle for many years, will likely be more than $2000.

The ground was seeded to alfalfa upon the advice and under instructions of Secretary of Agriculture Houston. J. R. Williams, owner of a part of the tract, arranged with Edward H. Schulte of Overland Park, to put the ground in condition and seed it last August. Before the seed was planted the ground was plowed, fertilized and thoroughly pulverized by discing it two and three times. Stable manure and crushed limestone were used for fertilizers. As a result of the careful preparation of the soil an excellent stand was procured. It grew six inches tall last fall, and was cut and left on the ground to rot. The matured crop was cut Thursday, and after being cured, was ready for use for feeding purposes yesterday.

The top soil was removed from this tract of land when it was graded several years ago, leaving clay subsoil. Alfalfa, in addition to being one of the finest feed crops that can be produced is also a great fertilizer. It is not a perennial plant, but from one planting crops may be produced several years in succession.

City people, not familiar with farm crops and thinking that the alfalfa was weeds, have been heard to remark recently that it was a shame that no use was being made of such a fine body of land. They had no realization of the fact that the "weeds" would bring the tenant of the land approximately $100 an acre in one season.

"Come on Over, See My Corn Fall Off!"

"I Put 2 Drops of 'Gets-It' on Last Night—Now Watch—"

"See—all you have to do is to use your two fingers and lift the corn right off. That's the way "Gets-It" always works. You just put on about 2 drops. Then the corn not only shrivels, but loosens from the toe, without affecting the surrounding flesh in the least. Why, it's almost a pleasure to have corns and see how 'Gets-It' gets them off in a hurry and without the least pain. I can wear tight shoes, dance and walk as though I never had corns."

"That Was a Quick Funeral That Corn Had With 'Gets-It'."

"Gets-It" makes the use of toe-irritating salves, bundling bandages, tape, plasters and other things not only foolish, but unnecessary. Use this wonderful discovery, "Gets-It," for any soft or hard corn or callus. It is the new, simple, easy, quick way, and it never fails. You'll never have to cut a corn again with knives or scissors and run chances of blood poison. Try "Gets-It" tonight.

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in St. Louis and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., A. P. Bentz, Keiffer Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Lowell Drug Stores.

What to Avoid in Hot Weather

Carelessness Causes Many Ills.

Avoid iced drinks, impure water, unripe food, and eat sparingly of meat. In hot weather excessive thirst causes many people to indulge in iced drinks and other liquids injurious to the delicate tissues of the stomach. Physicians are unanimous in declaring that iced drinks, impure water and unripe food cause the major portion of such distressing ills as Diarrhoea, Cholera Morbus, Typhoid, Cramps and stomach aches prevalent at this season. If you would avoid these distressing complaints begin at once the use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. It is conceded by many physicians to be a most valuable disease preventative. If taken in tablespoonful doses in equal amounts of water or milk before meals and on retiring you can be reasonably sure of protection from disease incident to summer weather. Don't fail to have Duffy's at hand at all times. It is your nearest doctor in case of emergency. Follow the example of thousands of others. "Get Duffy's and Keep Well." Duffy's is sold in sealed bottles only, $1.00, and is obtainable at most druggists, grocers and dealers. If they can't supply you, write us. Useful household booklet free. BRITISH EXPERT DISAPPROVES OF BUILDING WOODEN SHIPS

Alexander Carlisle Helped Construct Many of German Liners Interned in American Ports.

LONDON, June 9.—One of the foremost authorities on shipbuilding in the world, a man who helped build many of the German liners now interned in American ports, does not look with favor upon the proposal of the United States to build wooden ships to make up for the losses through the submarine warfare. He is Alexander Carlisle, lately general manager of the shipbuilding firm of Harland & Wolff, Belfast, who is widely known in America. The reason he advances is that wooden shipbuilding is a lost art.

"The American oak," said Carlisle, "which is available for shipbuilding at the present time, is better adapted for coffins than ships. The oak used in the wooden ships of the past came from France, and can no longer be obtained. It was light and lent itself to the framing of the bilges and the fore and aft bodies.

"There is required a greater manual effort to build wooden ships than ships of steel or iron. In the case of wooden ships, all is manual work, whereas in iron and steel ships the work is largely done by machinery. From no point of view does the construction of wooden ships recommend itself to me as a swift, commercial measure of meeting the submarine menace."

With an intimate knowledge of the German liners in American ports, Carlisle does not believe they could be used as food carriers without extensive alterations. The majority are essentially passenger ships and not carriers. As transports for troops they no doubt would have their uses, Carlisle says.

BRITISH AIRMAN'S ESCAPE REVEALED WHEN HE IS HONORED

Fled From German Prison Train, and Fled for Two Days and Nights to Dutch Frontier.

LONDON, June 9.—Not until he appeared before the King the other day to be decorated with the Distinguished Service Order did it become known to the public that Squadron-Commander Edward F. Briggs, the first British airman to attack a Zeppelin base, and who was taken prisoner had escaped from Germany. Briggs was captured in an attack on a Zeppelin factory at Friedrichshafen in November, 1914.

Commander Briggs, with four other British officers, was being transferred from a prison camp in Bavaria, when they made their bolt for liberty. Darkness was coming on when their train neared the spot where they were to be reinterned. Bolting from their guards the four men jumped out of the railway coach and for two days and nights made their way over plowed fields to the Dutch frontier.

They were without food and suffered greatly from thirst.

JAPANESE NEWSPAPER URGES COUNTRY TO ASSIST RUSSIA

Declares Sending of U. S. Troops to Europe Will Not Affect Tokio Government's Position.

OSAKA, Japan, June 9.—The Osaka Mainichi dismisses as unwarranted the feelings of alarm held in some quarters that the sending of troops by the United States to Europe would adversely affect Japan's position in the world.

The newspaper expresses the opinion that America's armed assistance cannot amount to much, and that the United States' participation in the fighting would be welcomed by the entente Powers for moral rather than material reasons. It thinks that the inevitable elevation of America's position at the peace conference will not affect Japan to the extent that her past services to the cause of the entente allies would be ignored and that Japan should be obliged to forego her rights.

In conclusion, the journal urges Japan to assist Russia and to do her best to induce China to join the Powers of the entente.

JAPANESE RED CROSS TOO INACTIVE, OKUMA DECLARES

Relief Corps Sent to Europe at Beginning of War Have Since Returned.

TOKIO, June 9.—Marquis Okuma has called attention to what he terms the comparative inactivity of the Japanese Red Cross in the present war. He says it could do a great deal more by offering its services in the belligerent countries.

The Japanese Red Cross is supposed to be the wealthiest and strongest organization of its kind in the world. Its membership roll is almost 2,000,000. In 1913 it possessed 12 hospitals and a medical corps of 3785 physicians, pharmacists and nurses. Its capital fund amounted to $12,000,000 and its real property was valued at much more. The receipts of the society are far in excess of the expenditure.

In the early period of the war, relief corps were dispatched to England, France and Russia, but they have since returned to Japan. The society has done considerable work in the supplying of bandages and other medical necessities to the entente Powers.

$410,000,000 for Week Ending May 14, Increase of $6,500,000.

TOKIO, June 9.—Japan's holdings of gold reached about $410,000,000 on May 14, an increase of $6,500,000 over the previous week, says a report of the Finance Department. This is the highest record in Japan's financial history. The Government share in the figure is $172,000,000, while that of the Bank of Japan is $238,000,000.

The largest portion of this record figure is kept overseas. There is $288,500 deposited or invested in London and New York, while only $121,500,000 is kept at home.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone—ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now—your very life may be at stake.

SOUTHERN IRELAND LANDS ARE EXTREMELY RICH BUT PEOPLE ARE IN POVERTY

British Government Has Spent Millions, Yet Some Evils Still Remain—How It Is Hoped to Solve the Problem.

The Post-Dispatch prints herewith the fifth of a series of articles on present-day conditions in Ireland, written by a staff correspondent who has lately concluded an exhaustive inquiry there.

By JOHN KIRBY.

DUBLIN, April 30 (via London).—The lands of Southern Ireland are extremely rich and yet the people of Southern Ireland are extremely poor. In the entire world there is probably no analogy to the situation found throughout many sections of the southern provinces.

Just as virtually all the troubles may be traced to misgovernment in the past, so is it with the agricultural situation, but the original causes which created this condition have been removed and the British Government has taken extreme measures to assist the farmer in tilling land which the tenant may purchase on long-time payments.

The "land question" as it was understood during past generations has been solved to the extent that the British Government has loaned millions to farmers to purchase lands. The absentee landlord, who was responsible, to a large extent, for former reigns of terror, has been eliminated from the situation, but the evils which grew up under the plantation system have not been cured.

Little Land Under Cultivation.

Until the present year little more than 10 per cent of the arable land of Southern Ireland was under cultivation. It is extremely fine grazing land, and the owners, farmers as well as the gentry, have found it more profitable to raise cattle and horses than to pay men to till the land. As a result some of the finest cattle in the world are raised here, but while the herds fatten the rural population has suffered.

It has been customary for many farmers to raise but little more than they require for their own tables. Relatively few men were needed to handle the cattle. Indeed, on most small ranches the owner and his sons were capable of caring for the herds.

The result has been that many boys grew up and found no work. They have taken one of three courses. Some have gone to the towns and cities in search of occupation, others have emigrated to America, and the remainder has stayed at home and lived as "casual laborers."

Because of the fact that the labor market has been glutted, wages have been driven down to the point where men have found it virtually impossible to support themselves. A scale of wages which may appear to be almost unbelievable in the United States has gradually become established in the rural sections. The farmers justify the low rate on the grounds that the labor is no good. From investigations made by the Post-Dispatch there appears to be some basis for this charge. On the other hand, the very weakness complained of by the farmer has undoubtedly been caused by the rate of wage—it simply does not pay a good man to remain in an employment from which he could hope to derive nothing more than the barest necessities of life.

The Post-Dispatch presents herewith some statistics showing the pay received by farm laborers. They are taken from official publications of the Government. The only change made is in the class of money. They are figured in dollars instead of pounds, as in the British publication:

Some Wage Statistics.

In County Carlow plowmen and cattlemen receive an average of $1.50 per week with board and lodging, or from $3 to $3.75 per week if they house and feed themselves.

In County Dublin they receive an average of 25 and 50 cents respectively more than in Carlow.

In Queen's County they drop as low as $1.12 and $3.75 respectively.

The average through the 12 counties of Leinster is $1.50 and $3 respectively.

In the counties of Munster it is a trifle higher than in Leinster. The highest prices paid in the province are those in County Kerry—$2.25 and $4.25 per week.

The average rates paid in Ulster are higher than those in the other three counties. The best wages paid in this province are in County Fermanagh, where plowmen get $2.50 per week with board and lodging, or $4 without keep.

As a result of this system of wages thousands of laborers leave the country annually and go to England and Scotland, where they receive better pay and are looked upon as the best labor in the fields. The Post-Dispatch correspondent has reports from English and Scottish farmers stating that the Irish labor was the best they had and they could not get enough of it during the seasons.

The rural parts of the country are probably as dreary as those of any in the world. The winters are extremely cold. The houses are without proper sanitary arrangements, and there are no amusements of any sort. The families rarely get out of their immediate neighborhoods. The school systems are poor.

Politics becomes the only subject of conversation except the farm and the petty affairs of the nearby community. It is relatively easy for any politician to prove to the people that the Government alone is responsible for all of their troubles. The parish priest, by virtue of the fact that he is the only resident of the community who has been given the advantage of a college education, becomes the leader in all things, and his control over the more illiterate classes become absolute. These statements have been made to the Post-Dispatch repeatedly by responsible Catholics and confirmed by others. They deprecate the entire system and hope that a brighter day is dawning for another generation.

There are evidences on every side to establish the contention made by Ulster men that the southern Irishman has become extremely inefficient—if not downright lazy. Some of the best versed men in the agricultural conditions of Southern Ireland have explained that the farmers as well as laborers do not know how to work profitably, and that they must be educated generally before it is possible to hope for better conditions.

However, they insist that it is not the fault of the Irishmen, but the natural result of the repression under which the people have labored for generations. They point to the fact that the Irish succeed in any other except their own as proof of the contention that when given a fair chance he will succeed.

Necessity of Raising More Food.

It is probable that the urgent necessity of raising more food as a result of Germany's submarine campaign will have a better effect upon Ireland than any other single force that has operated in connection with the country. Under the guidance of the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction a great agricultural awakening is now beginning.

Several months ago Parliament decreed that every land owner in Ireland during the next year would be compelled to till at least 10 per cent more acreage than he tilled during the last year. In addition to the increase demanded by law approximately 3,000,000 acres of virgin land have been sowed with wheat.

The entire situation has been taken charge of by the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, of which Thomas P. Gill is the moving force if not the nominal head. Mr. Gill is thoroughly convinced that Ireland is about to be made over and that it will become one of the richest agricultural countries.

His department, through inspectors and agents, is enforcing the Government's tillage decree and it is being carried out cheerfully for the most part. Some owners of large tracts have refused to plow the lands and they have been taken over promptly by the department which tills them and gives the laborers the crops.

Mr. Gill is satisfied that, after the Government has compelled the farmers to till their lands instead of using them altogether for grazing purposes, they will be so thoroughly pleased with the new era of prosperity that they will continue the system hereafter.

Moving Pictures to Help.

The Department of Agriculture has prepared a moving picture film to be used in educating the farmer and laborer. It tells the story of the farm from beginning to end. It shows the right way and the wrong way of doing farming work. The pictures show how to shoe a horse, how to milk a cow and the proper ways of plowing and sowing. It is the first time in the history of the country that such scientific methods were outlined for a national development. The story of much of Ireland's difficulties, at least from an economic standpoint, is presented in a report prepared by Mr. Gill:

"We have in Ireland a poor country, practically without manufacturers," he wrote, "except for the linen and ship building of the North and the breweries and distilling of Dublin—dependent upon agriculture, with its soil imperfectly tilled and a population without industrial habits or technical skill. The restrictions imposed by Parliament on Irish industry are unfortunately an economic fact of the highest importance, which explains a good deal of the present circumstances of Ireland and furnishes us with valuable light in judging of the possibilities of the future.

"It is not to be wondered at that we," he writes, "at length came to have a population devoid of industrial spirit. As Lord Dufferin has put it, 'Even the traditions of commercial enterprise have perished through desuetude.'"

The farm laborer in Ireland rarely eats meat. He and his family live on tea, potatoes, porridge and cabbage, and they have none to spare. Mr. Gill and his associates insist that a country which has been able to hold itself intact under such privations is capable of accomplishing tremendous things when the people are given a guiding hand. The men who are handling the agricultural revival have not deluded themselves into the belief that they have discovered a panacea which will cure all evils within the next year or two. They believe that the real benefits of the new system will be seen in the next generation.

Ulster Men Scoff.

In Belfast the Post-Dispatch correspondent talked to many Ulster men of affairs concerning the probable register of the activities of the Department of Agriculture. They scoffed at the entire scheme. They insisted that the Southern Irishmen were totally incapable of doing anything for their own good or for that of anyone else. They said repeatedly that the British Government during the last 20 years has wasted millions in coddling the Southern farmer and that little or no good need be expected from the expenditure. More than one man of big affairs in the prosperous metropolis of the North stated that the South of Ireland should have been the most propsperous section of the country and would have been if the people had paid more attention to work and less to politics or poetry. They simply decline to take seriously any proposal that has for its end the improvement of the three Southern provinces. Furthermore, they insist that the politicians will put an end to any scheme for the improvement of the people of the South from an economic standpoint because they realize that prosperity will remove the hatred of the British Government and make politics poor business.

These facts are presented simply to show how it is impossible to strike a chord of sympathy between the North and the South of the country. From the point of view of the professional Ulster man there is nothing good in the South of Ireland and nothing good even to be hoped for in the future generations.

The Belfast man figures everything in pounds and shillings and he declines to admit values of any sort whatever unless they can be reckoned in money. Whenever a comparison is asked between the Province of Ulster and the other three provinces he produces the following set of figures showing the material prosperity of the North against the poverty of the South: Ulster has a valuation for taxes of £5,521,000. All the rest of Ireland, £10,002,000. Ulster produces 48 per cent of all Irish grown oats, 41 per cent of Irish grown potatoes, 53 per cent of all Irish grown fruit and 99 per cent of all Irish grown flax. The customs of Ulster last year were £2,373,000, against £914,000 for the rest of Ireland.

"Belfast does 70 per cent of all Irish export trade, these figures show; one-fifth of the export cattle trade and has 34 per cent of all Irish coastwise trade coupled with one-half of shipping from Ireland. In addition, Belfast has five of the largest industrial concerns of their kind in the world. Belfast has 95 paupers per 10,000 population, Dublin has 283 and Cork 327. Belfast has 3.6 per cent of illiterates, Dublin has 5.3 per cent and Cork 9.4 per cent."

Figures on every phase of industry are presented at Belfast to prove that Ulster through labor and thrift has prospered while the remainder of Ireland has become poverty stricken because of indolence. The best brains in Ulster insist that it is ridiculous to believe that should home rule be enforced the South will not destroy the North through undue taxation. Any attempt to dispute this statement is met with the suggestion that a person who reads the history of Ireland must become convinced that it is hopeless to expect the Southern people to change the characteristics which have been peculiar to them through centuries.

Genuine Mahogany, Walnut or Fumed Oak. 10-Year Guarantee

When you think of the price—it does seem remarkable that a latest-improved, full-size, beautiful, dependable Player Piano—a Player Piano backed by the 10-Year Guaranty of a great Manufacturer, and our own Expert Maintenance Service—can be bought for as little as $375.

But there aren't any "strings" or "comebacks" on this proposition.

Specialization and efficiency have done it—the same sort of specializing and efficient factory management that have given us the modern light automobiles at $360 to $1000 instead of the old price-range of about $600 to $1500.

But—forget about the price. Center your attention, please, upon the quality. Examine the value of this Gulbransen-made instrument.

Come in a critical frame of mind. PERSHING A FIGHTING MAN WITH A RECORD OF VICTORIES FOR PEACE test the mettle of the Westerners who claimed to be their new overlords, and in the spring of 1901 our troops had clashed with them at Bryan. It proved to be a white-elephant victory for us, which only opened the way to an unending "little war" with, in the background, the grim specter of a religious war which could end only in the extermination of the Moros. To prove to the fire-eating tribesmen, inflamed by the one conflict, that we were their good two-fisted friends and masters was the task for Pershing. To win their hearts he must break their heads, if necessary. It was work for a patient, tactful, far-sighted, self-contained fighting man.

Broke Malay Outlaw Spirit.

And he did it. Establishing camp well up from Cottabatto with his little force, at no time exceeding 2000, he opened negotiations and endured insults, challenges, even petty attacks on his sentries, then stopped short. He warned the hot-head of them all, the Sultan of Bocolod, that if there were any further trouble, he would destroy Bocolod. The Sultan, in his fortress with walls of earth and living bamboo 40 feet thick, with roofs of more earth and bamboo, and with a moat 40 feet wide and 30 deep, a stronghold bombproof and assault-proof, laughed at the warning and broke the Pershing camel's back. In two days his fort was a memory and a company of Pershing's infantry had received on its bayonets the charge of a hundred maddened Malays, sworn to die and shrived it to atoms, with a casualty list of two men wounded. It was victory by prearrangement.

After due warning, a second defiant stronghold was destroyed in the same mechanical and unimpassioned way. Then the deadly precision of Pershing's fighting and the complete good faith with which he kept his promises of destruction began to have their effect. A third time he besieged a fortress, but gave its defenders time to run away over night. They took it, and so died the specter of a religious war. Two years after Pershing went up to Lake Lanao he did what the Spaniards had vainly tried to do for 300—marched around it, welcomed everywhere by unfrightened and admiring men who had had enough and were glad to shake hands with the man who had given it to them.

Became Moros' King Solomon.

Then came the strange days of King Solomon Pershing, when he sat in his tent and quoted the Koran and ruled the Lanao Moros in patriarchal fashion. Bravery, truthfulness, justice and faithfulness were the cardinal virtues for those simple folk. They found them all in Capt. Pershing, and in February, 1903, they made him one of their dattos, a hereditary ruler with power of life and of death—so that he will go to fight the ally of the Turks a Mohammedan war-lord himself, and probably the only one ever to wear the two stars of the United States Army on collar and saddlecloth.

In 1903 Capt. Pershing came back to Washington to serve on the general staff and marry Miss Frances Warren, then to go to Tokio as military attache, first at the embassy and afterward with the army of Gen. Kuroki during the Russo-Japanese war. Sept. 2, 1906, came the spectacular promotion which jumped him over 862 officers to be a Brigadier-General, and he was sent to the Philippines again, commanding the Department of Mindanao and Jolo and later serving as Governor of the Moros. Once more he was required to make friends by breaking heads. In 1911 it was decided to disarm all the Moros, and the ken of Jolo revolted against giving up their beloved krises. Two engagements were necessary to persuade them. The first, Dec. 25, 1911, took place at the historic crater of Bud Dajo, the sacred mountain, for centuries an impregnable stronghold.

Making the Joloes Behave.

Six hundred Moros had shut themselves up inside there prepared to fight till death. Pershing with 1000 men climbed to within 300 yards of the crater, cut a trail that ringed the mountain, distributed his soldiers in a cordon and then waited. That in unsuccessful sorties 200 Moros were killed. Next morning the remaing 400 meekly surrendered. Only one more battle was needed with the last of the irreconcilables. It occurred at Bagsag, another mountain stronghold, June 12, 1912, and in a charge scores of Moros were killed and hundreds wounded. Pershing's loss was six killed and 20 wounded, and Moroland was pacified. He was the father of it all, as he had been 10 years before of the region around Lanao. And he had won his position in the same way—by strength mingled with friendly justice and utter lack of animosity. The Moros had simply recognized their master.

In Jaunary, 1914, Gen. Pershing came to the Presidio, in San Francisco, and took command of the Eighth Brigade, and four mouths later was transferred with his troops to the Mexican border. Followed two years of routine patrol duty and what seemed to outsiders like mere marking time. How he had utilized it was shown when he was made commander of the punitive expedition against Villa and marched those troops of his into Mexico, March 15, 1916. The story of that march shows why Pershing, in inside circles, is spoken of as America's Kitchener, the organizer and administrator.

The first column, infantry, cavalry, artillery and wagon trains started at noon, March 15, from Columbus, N. M., and took a week to march to the chosen advanced base at Colonia Dublan. Pershing marched a few miles with it, then whisked back across the border and by auto reached his second column at Culberson's Ranch that same night. At 3:17 next morning, March 16, the second column, composed exclusively of mounted men, cavalry, artillery and mule pack trains crossed the border, and at 7 that night was in Ojitos 60 miles south, over the desert and the Sierra Madre Mountains, 6000 to 8000 feet high.

Trained His Army in Mexico.

Pershing, no longer the office organizer, but the dashing cavalry leader despite his 57 years. Next day the order was "trot 10 miles, walk 10 miles" and at 8 that night the cavalry was in Colonia Dublan, having covered 110 miles over the desert in an actual marching time of 22 hours. One hour and 30 minutes later artillery and hospital units, having had to go around by the valleys where the cavalry crossed the hills, reached Colonia Dublan, 128 miles marching in 23½ hours and not one sore back in the outfit. The total casualties of that record-breaking forced march were three pack mules.

So the Pershing who rode with Gen. Miles had not been destroyed to make the Pershing who could prepare cavalry and artillery and infantry and transportation to do stunts.

Months later that punitive expedition rode back across the border, recalled after apparent failure. But remember two things. The lean man who rode back at the head of it and had not a word to say now commanded the only thoroughly equipped, thoroughly trained and thoroughly hardened compact body of troops in our whole army. Once more he had turned apparent dallying into fine opportunity. And he rode out without hostile demonstration, when he might very easily have precipitated war.

Firmness, discretion, mastery of detail and comprehensive vision, patience and determination—these are the marking qualities the commander of the first American military expedition will take with him to France. And while his division is in training behind the trenches there, be sure that the General commanding will be in training, too. And if it should turn out eventually that we need a corps commander or an army commander in France, it is safe to take it for granted that John Pershing will have fitted himself for that opportunity before it comes to him. He will be ready, and America will have to place along the allied commanders a man who knows his job—a United States soldier who can express both friendliness and strength by silence and demonstrate all necessary strength without resorting to bluster.

WAR OFFERS BEST CHANCE TO END LIQUOR BUSINESS

fy these elemental passions on a higher plane, these passions are apt to assert themselves to a lower. The great trouble with our temperance movement has been that it expected to take away the saloon without leaving anything in its place."

"Do I understand you, Doctor," I asked, "as saying that prohibition would do no real and lasting good?"

"No," he answered, "I didn't say that. Prohibition, wherever it is enforced, does a lot of good. But—and this is the fact which propagandists are forever trying to dodge—it also does considerable harm unless ample provision is made to satisfy the impulses which lead to drink. The drug evil is increasing alarmingly in New York, due in a measure to prohibition."

"Prohibition in New York?" I asked.

"Yes," he said, "virtual prohibition in New York. There are thousands of employers here who will not employ a man who drinks. They may be drinking themselves but they insist on their employes being teetotalers. Efficiency demands it.

"'Why don't you drink instead?' I have asked of these victims of opium or heroin. 'I can't' they have told me. 'I would lose my job. The boss could smell liquor on my breath—they could see by looking at me that I had been drinking—and there are strict rules against it.'

"But they can take drugs for six months or a year without being detected.

Drinking Is Better Than Drugs.

"No, I do not advocate drinking, even moderately. But if an arbitrary suppression of drinking tends to bring on more vicious habits, we must consider suppression with extreme caution. It is easy to say that people should not do anything wrong, but that is simply ingoring tha psychology of the race. Electricians concern themselves with what electricity WILL do under certain circumstances—not with what it OUGHT to do. If we are sincere students of human psychology we will be equally wise in dealing with these human problems. The simple fact is that enforced total abstinence is a good thing for many persons and a bad thing for some, for some people will find a higher expression of the intoxication impulse, some a lower.

"Drink leads many people to crime, but it leads some away from it. I know a man who gets drunk and beats his wife. I know another who gets drunk instead of beating his wife. In one case intoxication stimulates an element of ugliness in the man's nature. In the other it acts as a sort of safety valve, relieves the nerve tension from which he suffers and leaves him an altogether amiable husband.

"There are some people who would be great artists if they didn't drink. Others cannot give expression to their artistic talents because they don't. Prohibition, without any other change in our social structure, would be an inestimable boon to the former, but it might place a handicap upon the second group.

"Right here is where most temperance reformers fall down, for each individual soul is different from every other. It has different longings, different aspirations, different needs, and, under the very same conditions, will act in a somewhat different way from every other. You can't treat them all the same and produce the same results.

Prohibition Not Solution of Drink

"An intelligent solution of the drink problem must include something more than the abolition of alcholic beverages. It must include important changes in our social life. It is not enough that the people shall have good homes and plenty of food. These are very essential things, but people become most intemperate under such favorable conditions. It is not enough that they shall have clean things, will do much to help the temperance cause, but the great, the fundamental need, is ecstacy.

"When I say that only ecstacy can adequately take the place of drink, I am not saying a word in favor of the life of ease. It might be the ecstacy of sacrifice. It might be the ecstacy of asceticism. It might be the ecstacy of mysticism, of art or of any scientific or industrial achievement. It must be something that thrills, that excites, that stirs the very depths of the soul. Every man who gets drunk is capable of some such ecstacy, and he willl keep on drinking until he finds it or kills himself in the attempt.

One may see an example of this ecstacy almost any evening at the City Mission. He may see many former patients of the alcholic wards, and see their once dissipated faces fairly transformed with religious joy. The scientific explanation of these wonderful conversions is simply that the intoxication impulses is sublimated in religious enthusiasm.

"The rescue mission, however, reclaim only a small percentage of the victims of alcohol. It might be said that every drunkard could accept their religion, but it still remains a fact that only a small majority do. The comprehensive temperance program will give equal consideration to those who don't, remembering that no man can get ecstacy except through something that makes an individual appeal to him.

Cure the Drunkard by New Thrills.

My advice to anyone who counts some relative or friend among the victims of drink is not to place too much emphasis on his swearing off, of course, but do not rely on his will power alone. Consult his inclinations. Find something useful, if possible, over which you think he may become excited. If you cannot do that, find something harmless. It is better to be a fanatic on golf or moving pictures than to wreck one's life with poison. Do not feel discouraged because the people and things that interest you do not interest him. This is his case, not yours, and you have to build on what is in his mind, not on what is in your own. Something in that mind of his is driving him to drink. Encourage him to accept it as an asset, not a weakness. Actually it is something which is driving him to find a more abundant life. He drinks instead, either because he hasn't the knowledge or the opportunity to go after some really satisfying experience.

"And I want to urge the people of the United States not to be contented with prohibition. Let us have prohibition if it is necessary, but let us have something constructive as well. If we do not have the constructive program, prohibition may cost more than it is worth.

"Stimulating the social life of the people should be the first aim of every sincere enemy of the saloon. If this cannot be accomplished without alcohol, some concession to alcohol might be made, for alcohol, historically, has been a socializer. It is worth while to consider the advisability of workingmen's clubs, in which beer and light drinks are dispensed, to take the place of the saloon. We should remember, at any rate, that the so-called substitutes for alcoholic beverages, tea and coffee and soft drinks, are not substitutes. Soft drinks may please the palate, but they make no appeal to the elemental passion. Love, friendship and social co-operation in work and play do. They are the substitutes for drink which intelligent reformers will look to.

"Neighborhood feeling should be promoted. The schools should be utilized as social centers for young and old; always remembering that we do not expect ideal social relations, but the sort of decent, healthful social relations which will make the greatest appeal to the people as they are. Especially should sex companionship be made more normal. The lonesome and cheated lives of the young people of both sexes now drive them to the saloon and the cabaret. But the saloon and the cabaret never really satisfy. Ease and luxury do not satisfy. Social intercourse, especially when it is carried on the tide of a great common emotion, like religion or patriotism, does satisfy the soul.

"That is why I say that the present is probably the most auspicious opportunity that the nation has ever had to abolish the saloon. We are in the throes of a common feeling and we have a common aim. Thousands to whom drink has seemed an absolute necessity could now turn from it with comparative ease by abandoning themselves to the thrilling emotions of war."

QUARTERMASTER AND SIGNAL SECTIONS IN NEED OF MEN

Headquarters Here Issues Call for Cooks, Mechanics and Telegraph Operators.

The quartermaster section and the signal section of the Enlisted Reserve Corps, with headquarters in Room 308, Old Custom House Building, Third and Olive streets, are in need of recruits. The classes of men desired are chauffeurs, teamsters, electricians, butchers, mechanics, telegraph and wireless operators, bakers, horseshoers, blacksmiths and cooks.

Lieut. Reinholdt, recruiting officer of the corps, said yesterday that the impression seemed to prevail that since registration day men were not permitted to enlist. This is incorrect, as men will be accepted for enlistment in all branches until they are actually drafted.

SCHOOLBOY POLICE FORCE TO GUARD THRIFT GARDENS

Numerous Complaints Made of Vandalism and Thievery in Neighborhood Plots.

Following complaints to the Women's Central Committee on Food Conservation that vandalism and petty thievery is of frequent occurrence where thrift gardens are thriving, a subcommittee of its members was appointed yesterday to organize the schoolboys into a Children's Garden Protective League to watch over and protect the gardens in their vicinity from raids and spoilation.

A garden guard section was organized to finance and supervise the formation of the new children's body. The meeting was attended by delegates from 10 children's welfare associations throughout the city.

The garden guards will be mobilized in 28 divisions, following the lines of the 28 city wards. The various ward and parochial schools and Sunday schools will be headquarters and chief recruiting points. There will be no distinctive uniform, but each garden guard will be given a button badge, suitably inscribed, that will be at once the badge of his service and an identification of his responsibility to the women's organization.

There will be a meeting at food conservation headquarters, in the Boatmen's Bank Building, Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, of 280 boys yet to be selected, in the ratio of 10 from each ward, to elect officers and proceed with the complete organization of the garden guards. These 10 boys from each ward will be the nucleus around which the various ward divisions will be organized. As soon as the movement is properly organized, recruiting stations will be opened in school and Sunday school buildings and every patriotic boy of the city will be exhorted to enroll himself on the side of thrift by joining the Children's Garden Protective League and keeping a watchful eye upon the thrift gardens of his neighborhood.

E. J. TROY APPOINTED TO OFFICE

World's Fair Publicity Man Made Secretary of Manufacturers.

The Executive Committee of the Manufacturers' Association of St. Louis yesterday authorized the appointment of Edward J. Troy as secretary. During the St. Louis World's Fair Troy was connected with the publicity department. Immediately after the opening of the fair he served as secretary of the International Jury of Awards in Agriculture and Horticulture.

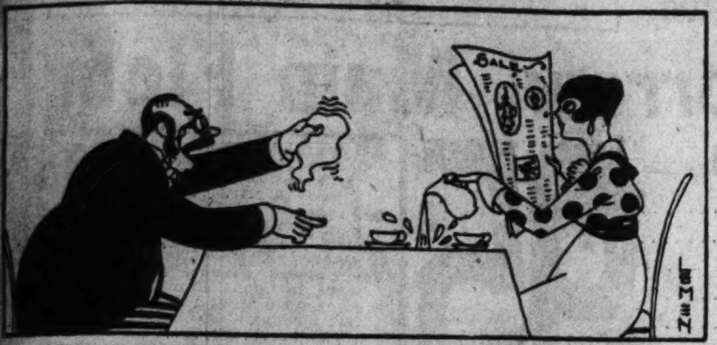
Jests and Jingles

By W. H. JAMES

ARABELLA'S GUIDING STAR.



MISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN believes in advertising;
She couldn't buy a hat or gown without its wise advising.
She'd never hit the bargain trail with gleeful animation
If those with pretty things for sale refrained from publication.
Of course we've heard a lot about a woman's intuition
And so we think beyond a doubt that "hunches" are her mission.
When she's in need of shoes or hose it is not thought and reason
That points unerringly and shows the styles that are in season.
We've never seen her sit and think in abstract cerebration
When she could learn from printer's ink the bargain situation.
It must be there in type to see before she goes a-shopping,
Then blithely, gaily off she'll be store to store a-hopping.
A bonnet here, a shirtwaist there, will claim her fond attention,
But nothing, nothing anywhere that ads have failed to mention.
Unadvertised, upon the shelves those goods remain inactive,
Though if they would proclaim themselves, she'd find they were attractive.
They must be down in black and white or she will never try them
And though she'd shop from morn till night she'd never stop to buy them.
For, when it comes to hat or gown that's bought through wise advising,
Miss Arabella Simpkins Brown relies on advertising.

Well!
They were here and
We saw 'em
And now
We only hope
They saw
Us.
That advertising bunch
Certain was
The goods.
If they think
As much
Of St. Louis
As we think
Of them—
Why then
It's Fifty-fifty.
This copy
May seem to be Pretty thin,
But when you
Come to look at it
You'll find
It's only thin
Up and down.
It's just
As broad
As you want to make
And you can't Make it
Too broad
That we're with
The Advertising Men
First
Last
And all the time.
As Arabella
Says,
If they didn't tell us
What to buy,
We wouldn't know,
And like as not
We wouldn't buy anything.
Another reason why
We are stringing
This copy out
Like a ten-cent
Shoe lace,
Which, by the way,
Formerly cost
Five cents,
Is that this is Pure advertising
Matter.
We are advertising
The advertising men
Who recently visited
Our fair city,
And we are going
To charge them
So much a line,
And advertising lines
Are measured
Straight up and down
And not straight
Across.
But, remember,
Advertising men,
That although they
Can get into the paper
If they are
Straight up and down,
They can't get in,
At any price,
If they don't look
Straight
When they are
Read straight across
Straight money
Won't pay
For
Crooked advertising.
We're glad
You came,
Advertisers.
Stick to the Straight and narrow path,
Like this copy,
And you'll fill
As much space
With as little Effort.

GRAND AND OTHERWISE.

"HELLO, Jinks."

"Howdy, Binks. Did you hear Aida?"

"You mean that new telephone girl on our line?"

"No, I mean the grand opera."

"O. I know what 'grand' means."

"How's that?

"I went on a 'grand' steamboat excursion once."

"Well grand opera isn't anything like that."

"Isn't it? I thought the 'grander' it was the more they charged you."

"That's all wrong and I can prove it."

"How?"

"It doesn't cost you more to ride on a Grand avenue car than on any other car, does it?"

"I never thought of that."

"You ought to hear a grand opera some time."

"What do they do?"

"Sing."

"Any ukaleles in it?"

"Why, no."

"Any funny jokes?"

"Of course not."

"No banjo picking?"

"Not a bit."

"Does anybody hit anybody in the face with a newspaper?"

"They never do that in grand opera."

"Any weight lifters or trapeze artists?"

"None of those."

"Then I guess I'll stick to vaudeville."

"Vaudeville is not grand."

"No, but it's great."

JUI BLUI.

LI YUAN HUNG, that President Man,
Is have nice time as quick as can.
Sit around house and eat chop suey.
While country is run by Yuan Shi Jui.

Chinese Government is Juish kind—
I make this joke up in my mind—
Jui is busy all the while
For making China like his style.

He brews trouble for kickers and such;
Many Chinese are now in Dutch,
But Li Yuan Hung say: "Blooey, blooey!
Leave it all to Yuan Shi Jui."

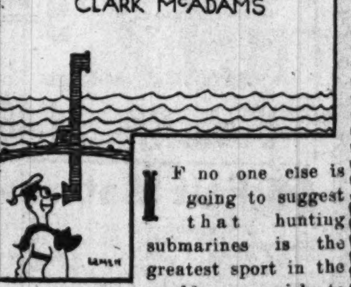
A LOOK AROUND

BY CLARK McADAMS



IF no one else is going to suggest that hunting submarines is the greatest sport in the world, we wish to suggest it. It has it even on whaling, which suffers in comparison both by the lesser risk of the hunter and the lesser resilience of whales. Germany is said to be turning out one submarine a day. It has probably been a long time since there was a whale born every day. "Thar she blows!" was nothing to that same alarm from the lookout now. Now the hunter also is hunted, it is give and take at ranges even as great as three miles, and the destroyers of five great naval powers cruise back and forth in the forbidden zones seeking their prey. The Germans have unwittingly given the allies something to do at sea that they can do with great zest. Our own seamen have taken it up with cheers of delight. It suits the American to a dot. His great facility as a seaman, his skill as a marksman, his love of adventure, are all brought finely into play by the new sport of the allied navies. As usual, the Kaiser has again succeeded in starting something.

Why the War Is Popular.

DON'T delude yourself with the notion that the war isn't popular. It is as popular as any war ever was when it started, and it is growing in popularity every day. Trust the Germans to make it popular. They have developed a knack at it. About the time they pull off one of their celebrated decivilizers the last murmur against the war will disappear in this country, exactly as it has happened abroad. The Germans got off badly when they invaded Belgium, and they have never recovered their nice conception, if they ever had one, of what the world will tolerate. The world will tolerate a good, upstanding man's fight. That is all. One feels the very spirit of the war against Germany more and more on the streets. The La-Folleting and Kaiserhoching is passing. When men like Major Leo Rassieur stand up and say Germany has invaded our rights and we can't have it, that settles it in quarters where the President's war message didn't. Women are not doing all the knitting. The war itself is knitting us together in a wonderful way. The thing for us to do is to forget that we were not all agreed in the beginning and trust the Kaiser to keep us agreed in the end.

Indians and the Draft.

THE news that revolt has ended among the Indians, and that they have all stepped up and registered, is a relief. There are things we can say to one another that we hesitate to say to the Indians. It is much the same embarrassment the British felt when they decided not to have conscription in Ireland. The Indians may be quite as enthusiastic as anyone else about making the war safe for democracy and still not feel that we are just the people with whom they would like to stand for that principle. It is much better to have the revolt end and talk about the band of Industrial Workers of the World in jail over at Rockford, Ill. At least these are not a subjugated people and never maintained in this country through a period of prior ownership a democracy of which the most caviling critic could not have complained. Let us hope there will be no temporizing with that kind of disloyalty, and that the lock on the Rockford jail is the most unpickable thing of the kind anywhere.

Is Marriage a Failure?

IT is being said rather freely that marriage is a failure, just as many people have supposed. It is not standing the test of time. Socrates didn't think it would, and proposed a working substitute for it. He has been laughed at for centuries, but what have we now? Why, bless you, men are saying that after the world war marriage can never again be what it was. If that is so, let us sigh for the passing of a custom which has been dear to many of us, though it has unquestionably had its unfortunates. These have sometimes been wives, sometimes husbands, at other times children. Socrates thought the problem must ultimately resolve itself into a condition in which all children would be reared by the state and they would treat all their elders with respect for not knowing which were their parents. That last is delicious, we have always thought. However, the matter has not progressed to the point where it should be held out either as encouragement to those unhappily married or as an alarm to those who are more than content. It is just being talked of

Ice-Mint Brings Joy To Tired, Aching Feet

If warm days and modern foot-wear have given you aching, burning, swollen feet, corns, or painful callouses, here is real foot-comfort for you at last.

From the cooling, dewy mint-beds of old Japan come the fresh, soothing ingredients that in just a few weeks have made Ice-Mint the most popular foot remedy in America.

Rub a little Ice-Mint on any tender corn or callous. Instantly the soreness disappears, and shortly the corn or callous will loosen so that it can be lifted out easily with the fingers.

is a clean creamy, snow-white, non-poisonous substance and does not inflame or even irritate the most tender skin. There is no pain and not one bit of soreness while applying Ice-Mint, or afterwards. It acts so gently, so magically, that you will never again run the risk of blood poisoning by cutting a corn. Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes also toughened callouses, soon loosen and come off under the remarkable influence of Ice-Mint.

No matter what you have tried or how many times you have been disappointed, you will revel in the cooling, soothing comfort that Ice-Mint brings.

Try it! Ask your druggist today for a small jar of Ice-Mint and learn for yourself what solid foot-comfort really is. You'll like it immensely.—ADVERTISEMENT.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT LEADS DIVISION IN NAVY RECRUITING

In Eight Days 353 Men Were Obtained; Total of 326 in Chicago District.

DUE TO PUBLICITY

Complaints Made Several Weeks Ago That This City Was Near Foot of List.

The St. Louis naval recruiting district, which has now been lessened in size by the removal of all Southern Illinois except St. Clair and Madison counties, led all districts of the central division of the United States in recruiting for the first eight days of June, ending Friday.

This is a noticeable change from the conditions of a few weeks ago, when complaints were made that St. Louis was near the foot of the list. The improvement has been noticed in the last few weeks, and has followed a campaign for publicity.

The St. Louis district is fourth in its total of enlistments from March 31 to Friday, inclusive. The number for June 1—8 inclusive, for the entire period, are as follows:

	June 1—8 Inc.	Mch. 31—June 8 Inc.
St. Louis	353	1399
Chicago	326	2148
Omaha	278	1352
Kansas City	278	2145
Minneapolis	247	2631
Des Moines	182	1255
Milwaukee	158	830
Peoria	161	846
Cincinnati	154	1084
Detroit	140	1166
Indianapolis	137	1380
Lexington, Ky	56	233
St. Joseph	2	14
Total	2462	16,484

The recruiting campaign will be carried on vigorously, as it is declared that before the navy can get enough men to meet its requirements the number recruited from this district will have to be more than doubled.

The Southern Illinois counties taken from the St. Louis district have been added to the Peoria district. The St. Louis district includes Missouri, except Kansas City and St. Joseph and the counties containing them.

A mass meeting of women, in co-operation with the Navy League, has been called for Tuesday night at Washington and Compton Presbyterian Church. Dr. Norvelle Wallace Sharpe will speak on "A Nation's Need and a Woman's Opportunity." Five-minute talks, suggesting ways of usefulness for women, will be made by Mrs. W. A. Stickney, Mrs. J. B. Shapleigh, Mrs. N. B. Gregg, Dr. E. W. Saunders, N. J. Cline and Mrs. J. A. Jameson. The committee or arrangements is composed of Mrs. J. J. Fisher, Mrs. J. Matthew Woods and Mrs. Susan M. Porter.

Central Missouri Furnishes Recruits.

Dr. Sharpe's son, Norvelle Sharpe, an apprentice seaman, who left Central High School to join the navy, has made a reputation as a recruiting speaker, being called the "naval Billy Sunday." Another son, Donald Sharpe, a high school student, drives a navy recruiting automobile every afternoon. Mrs. Sharpe gives three days a week to the work of the Navy League, St. Louis branch.

Recruiting has been successfully carried on, in the past week, in Central Missouri cities and towns. A party of speakers, sailors and former service men visited Sedalia, Nevada and Jefferson City in the past few days. In Sedalia, a parade of more than 200 automobiles greeted the party, and all saloons and most of the business houses were closed. An exhibit of navy moving pictures was given at night to a gathering which packed the courthouse lawn. Telephone operators called up farms and rural communities and invited young men to come down to see the demonstration. In Jefferson City 16 recruits applied for enlistment.

NEWELL PLANS APPEAL TO STATE SUPREME COURT

Defeated Candidate for Public Administrator Refuses to Accept Finding of Circuit Court.

James P. Newell, former Public Administrator and the Democratic candidate for re-election last November, who was defeated on the face of the returns by less than 100 votes by [illegible] M. Slater, Republican, yesterday announced he would appeal to the Supreme Court from the ruling of the Circuit Court dismissing his election contest.

Circuit Judge Cave sustained Slater's motion to dismiss, in view of a recent decision of the Missouri Supreme Court, that notice of an election contest, to be legal, must be served by the Sheriff, instead of a private process server. In the Newell case Slater was served by a private process server.

The Supreme Court decision was in the case of Robinson (Republican) vs. Woodson (Democrat) in an election contest involving title to a judgeship in Jackson County. Notice was served on Woodson by private process but he refused to accept the service as legal, and made no acknowledgment of the case in court other than to raise the technical point as to service. Newell said his case is different in that Slater not only accepted the notice, but filed an answer setting forth a counter contest. By this action, Newell contends, Slater waived the point as to service.

SOCIALIST PAPER RESENTS GERMAN BOOK ON PEACE

Pan-German Propaganda Circulated Throughout Empire by High Officials.

EUROPE MADE GERMAN

Brochure Directed Against Peace Along Lines Suggested by Scheidemann.

COPENHAGEN, June 9.—Complaint is made by the Socialist newspaper, Vorwaerts, of Berlin, to Gen. von Ludendorff Lieutenant General von Stein, the Prussian War Minister, and other high officials who are facilitating circulation in schools and among troops in hospitals of a pan-German brochure entitled "Germany's Position Under Good and Bad Peace."

The brochure is directed particularly against peace along the lines suggested by Phillip Scheidemann and other Socialists and represents Germany as bowed down under debt in consequence of a peace without indemnity, but striding forward with vigorous strength, and a mighty bag of gold in the event of a pan-German peace.

Among the striking features of the brochure, are maps showing Germany covering or dominating three quarters of Europe. Not only are the usual demands for annexations made, but the articles suggest incorporation of France as a federal state in Germany or alternatively the annexation of a corridor connecting Germany with the Mediterranean. Other features in the program are expulsion of Great Britain from the Mediterranean, entry of the Scandinavian countries into a German customs union, extension of German influence in Persia and Afghanistan, putting the German flag over the Azores, Cape Verde and other islands and reduction of Poland, Courland, the Baltic provinces, Finland and the bulk of European Russia to protectorates or annexed territory of Germany.

Alsace-Lrraine Priblom.

Further testimony to the untruth of the neutral Socialists' assertion that the German Socialists are prepared to consider arrangement of the Alsace-Lorraine problem by friendly Franco-German negotiations is furnished by an article in the International Correspondence, the accepted organ of the German Socialist majority.

This article declares as Socialist doctrine that Alsace-Lorraine is German, and must remain so. It cites the late August Babel, who was Socialist leader in the Reichstag, and the late William Liebknecht, Socialist leader, and father of Dr. Karl Liebknecht, as exponents of these thesis that the provinces must be regarded and defended as an inalienable part of the German Empire. It is stated that nine-tenths of the population speak German as the mother tongue, and that the sentiments of a majority are German to the core.

Says Population Is French.

On the other hand, Prof. Laband of Strassburg, a leading German expert on constitutional international law, who, from 40 years' experience in Alsace-Lorraine, has gained some qualifications to speak authoritatively, maintains in an article in the German Review, that the population in sentiment is still largely French. He says the influential and educated are as anti-German today as in 1871, and do not associate or intermarry with Germans.

The sentiment of the poor classes is shown by the common use of German appelations as terms of abuse. Anti-German feeling, he states, has increased during the war. Prof. Laband, therefore, believes that forming the provinces into a Federal State removed from imperial control, as advocated by Socialists would be a dangerous experiment.

Good workers are seeking better openings through the situation want columns. One of these may fill your need

233,621 CLIMBED HILL FOR ART'S SAKE LAST YEAR

Increase of 32,161 Visitors to the Museum Over 1915—1916 Fiscal Period.

Attendance at the City Art Museum in Forest Park for the fiscal year of 1916-17, ending April 1, was 233,621, an increase of 32,161 over the previous year. In his annual report the director, Robert A. Halland, says this is evidence of a wider interest in art among St. Louisans.

Growth in the attendance is manifest in the figures for every month except last February and March. The maximum for any month in the fiscal year was in October, 1915, when 28,435 persons were recorded as having visited the museum. February, 1916, with a credit of 11,579 visitors, was the month of least attendance.

Addition Recommended.

To accommodate the larger number of persons expected to visit the Museum this year and hereafter, Director Holland recommends the addition of an auditorium. This will be a necessity on occasions when special exhibitions attract large gatherings, and a convenience to meetings of associations itnerested in art and in the museum.

Revenues from the special tax levied for the Museum, and from other sources, totaled $170,010.11 in 1916-17. Disbursements were $154,-$95.72 for all purposes. Expenditures included those for the purchase of paintings, sculptures and the like.

In the year the Museum acquired paintings valued at $29,550; prints worth $4,943.44; bronzes, ceramics and marbles costing $21,263.50 and general art objects for $29,701.75.

Donations From Chinese.

Among the donations acknowledged in the report two are credited to Soo Ma, a wealthy Chinese of New York. He gave the Museum a collection of ten burnt clay sepulchral figures from a tomb in Honan, China. The figures represent relatives of the occupant of the tomb, and two guards. He donated also clay bells—"two of 1000 bells for Buddha"—called by Chinese "chien-fou-ling." These bells were excavated from the ruins of an ancient temple of Buddha.

As has been told, thirty notable paintings were received by the Museum as the gift of Daniel Catlin.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

Gas From Coke Ovens Utilized.

MIDDLESBOROUGH, England, June 9.—Devising of a scheme for utilising hitherto wasted gas from coke ovens for illuminating purposes has led the Town Council to lower the net price of gas from 54 to 50 cents per 1000 feet.

ST. LOUIS WILL HAVE COUNTRY DAY SCHOOL

Institution Which Will Lay Stress on Development of Mental Habits to Open in Fall.

The St. Louis County Day School, which will lay stress on the development of habits of mind of its students, rather than upon the accumulation of facts, will be opened in September on the Julius S. Walsh, Jr., place, on the Brown road, St. Louis County. Ralph Hoffmann, who built up the Country Day School of Kansas City during the past seven years, and who has had long experience in similar institutions in the East, has been chosen for headmaster of the school. There will be four teachers, besides the headmaster, one of whom will be Miss M. H. Todd, formerly of Smith Academy.

The school will be for boys only. Arrangements have been made to run a car from Delmar and De Balleviere avenues to the school, leaving at 8:30 a. m. and reaching the school at 9 a. m. A master will be in charge of the pupils on their way to and from the school.

The buildings on the Walsh farm are being remodeled for school purposes. A dinner, the cost of which is included in the price of tuition, will be served at noon each day. The course of instruction will fit the boys for college. Football, baseball, tennis courts and other recreation fields will be ready by the time the school opens. Opportunities will be offered to the younger boys, and on Saturday mornings there will be a program of woodcraft, scout work and camping, for such boys as wish to avail themselves of knowledge of these things. The tuition will be $40 a year.

The school will be under the direction of the following board of tristees: John J. Lowes of Washington University, president; Dwight F. Davis, vice president; Daniel K. Catlin, Richard McCulloch, George W. Niedringhaus, Dr. George T. Moore, Dr. Robert J. Terry, Edward J. Walsh, and Charles Parsons Pettus, who will be secretary and treasurer.

Women's Club Outing Wednesday.

The annual outing of the Conservation Committee of the Eighth District Woman's Federated Clubs will be held Wednesday at Creve Coeur Lake. Mrs. E. Beach of the Twentieth Century Art Club and the first conservation chairman, will read a paper on "Reminiscence of Conservation Work."

NEW TRIAL GRANTED IN DEAD MAN'S SUIT

Lawyers generally are watching the suit of Mrs. Ella M. Hartridge of Gratiot Station, Mo., against the United Railways on account of the unusual situation which has arisen in it. The suit originally was brought by her husband, the late Charles S. Hartridge, acting president of the Wagoner Undertaking Co., for $6000 damages on account of being forcibly ejected from a street car June 14, 1915, by a conductor.

Hartridge was accused by the conductor of riding downtown on an Olive street car and remaining on the same car on its westbound trip with payment of only one fare. He insisted that he rode downtown in an automobile of the undertaking company and after attending to some business he boarded the street car at Fourth and Olive streets to go to his place of business at Grand and Olive. At the trial of the case in the Circuit Court he introduced witnesses in corroboration of his testimony.

The jury returned a verdict in his favor for only one cent damages, but Judge Anderson, who presided at the trial, sustained the plaintiff's motion for a new trial, from which ruling the United Railways appealed. While the apepal was pending Hartridge died in January, 1916, and his widow, as administratirx of his estate, became plaintiff in the prosecution of the suit.

The court of Appeals this week affirmed the plaintiff's right to a new trial, holding that the jury probably did not understand the legal meaning of "injury," as given in the trial judge's instruction. The Appelate Court, in an opinion written by Judge Reynolds, said it did not mean just physical suffering, but also mental suffering and humiliation. Hartridge testified that many persons saw him put off the car.

H. A. Loevy, attorney for the plaintiff, yesterday said that the fact that Hartridge is dead would not end the humiliation case. There is a special statute, he said, by which the testimony of Hartridge given at the former trial can be read to the jury in the second trial. Hartridge formerly was manager of the Oakes Candy Co.

NEW CONSTITUTION DRAFTED FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Document Designed to Democratize Organization Will Be Considered at Meeting Wednesday.

During the campaign which resulted in the election of J. Lionberger Davis as president of the Chamber of Commerce, one of the principal planks in the Davis platform was a promise to democratize the chamber. In line with this promise, a special Committee on Organization has been working on a new Constitution and set of by-laws. This committee, of which George W. Simmons is chairman and Melville L. Wilkinson vice chairman, has sent to each member of the Executive Committee a proof sheet of the proposed by-laws, with request for suggestions and criticism—all of which will be analyzed at a special meeting of the Organization Committee to be held next Wednesday.

The next step will be to submit to a full meeting of the Executive Committee the completed draft with a recommendation that it be sent out to all of the 2500 members to be voted on. If a majority of the votes are favorable the new constitution and by-laws will become immediately effective.

GERMAN PRESS DEATH NOTICES SHOW HEAVY LOSS OF AVIATORS

COPENHAGEN, June 9.—The death notices in the German papers indicate what a terrible toll the Western battle is taking among German aviators. Scarcely an issue of the Berlin, Hamburg or other papers which circulate among officers, appears without at least two or three and often eight or ten notices of deaths in the flying corps. Occasionally there is a noteworthy one like today's announcement, of the death of Lieut. Schaefer, who was mentioned in dispatches on Tuesday for bringing down his thirtieth enemy airplane. Lieut. Schaefer gained distinction in the "Traveling Circus" of Capt. von Richthofen and was lately given command of a new fighting squadron on the Flanders front.

Death notices of submarine officers are as rare as those of flyers are frequent. For several weeks none has been noticed in the Berlin and Hamburg papers and it is possible that the Admiralty has prohibited their publication.

There Is No Guard House and Men Must Be Good or Go Home.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMP FUNSTON, Tex., June 9.—Three thousand young men, the pick of the Southwest, are undergoing a strenuous three-months' training to prepare them as officers to train the first drafted army of 500,000 to be raised under the draft act. The camp is located only 22 miles from San Antonio, the headquarters of the Southern Department at Fort Sam Houston.

In addition to the members of the training camp, a number of regular army organizations are camped on the Government reservation known as the Leon Springs reservation, which comprises 18,000 acres. The regular units include a cavalry troop and a truck company. Company M of the Fourth Texas Infantry is doing guard duty for the camp.

Camp Funston, which was named in honor of the general who died at San Antonio recently, is in a valley among the rocky hills and ridges. This section is several hundred feet higher than San Antonio. The atmosphere is dry and the climate almost ideal for a training camp. During the day the sun beats down unremittingly, but after nightfall the temperature drops. Even in barracks one or more blankets are necessary for comfort.

Trained by Companies.

The 3000 students are divided into 18 companies, each under the command and instruction of a regular army officer, usually a captain. One company is composed of engineers. The eighteenth company includes men who already have received their commissions in the officers reserve corps but who have been directed to attend the camp.

Each company is housed in two barracks, with about 80 men in a barrack. The cots are arranged on each side of the building. Every man is required to keep his bunk, clothing and equipment in neat arrangement. Every article has its place and must be kept there. The strictest discipline is enforced. The regulations went hard with some men at first. Accustomed to do as they pleased, they could not understand the necessity of discipline. Sufficient time was given the students to adjust themselves to the new conditions. After that, the ax began to fall on men who showed they would never make soldiers.

The rapidity with which the men have acquired the fundamentals of drill and discipline have surprised the officers. Most of the students are college graduates. Those who are not have had business experience or experience in handling men. The senior class of the University of Texas was almost depleted by camp enrollments. These men will receive their degrees provided their grades were satisfactory.

Some College Athletes.

Some noted college athletes are in the camp. Among the recent arrivals was C. E. Van Gent, head coach at the University of Texas, and a former star of the University of Wisconsin. Van Gent is a member of the Twelfth Company. He was assistant football coach at the University of Missouri before going to Texas. He graduated at Wisconsin in 1914; letter in football, track and basketball and serving as basketball captain one year.

Athletes from the University of Texas include Maxey Hart and Gus Dittmar, selected for the All-State team.

A weeding out process has been in operation since the instruction work started. First there were the physical examinations, which resulted in more than 200 men being discharged. Every company commander is keeping close tab on his men, and as soon as he determines that an individual will not make a good soldier, that person is given an opportunity to resign. Deliberate violation of orders results in summary dismissal. Even before the order prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor to men in uniform were published, camp rules against bringing liquor into camp and against gambling. There is no guard house at the camp for students.

The Daily Program.

The daily program is the same at all camps. First call sounds at 5:45 a. m. At 6 o'clock reveille sounds for a short physical drill. After breakfast, quarters are inspected and companies go to work. The men are deployed over the hills and ridges and given drills and other instruction until noon. Then a short rest. The afternoon is spent in quizzes, conferences and signalling work. Study from 7:30 to 9:30. From Saturday noon until early Sunday night, the men are permitted to leave camp. San Antonio is the popular week-end resort. Uniforms must be worn at all times, in and out of camp. The men have been told to send their civilian clothes home. No civilian clothes can be in sight in the barracks

At the end of the first five weeks the men will be divided into infantry, artillery, cavalry and engineers' companies, according to the branch of the service for which they applied.

Col. W. S. Scott, Sixteenth Cavalry, is camp commander. He has seen considerable service both in the United States and in foreign possessions. Lieutenant-Colonel Charles H. Martin is in charge of the instruction work. Col. Martin closely observes the various companies, riding among the organizations while they are at drill. He is quick to criticise and equally ready to praise.

800 for Immediate Service.

Out of the 3000 men in the camp, only 800 will be called into active service at the close of the camp, according to present plans. Others who stick through the three months' period of intensive training will be given commissions in the officers' reserve corps, subject to call. At the time the men enrolled there was no assurance that they would receive pay. For this reason, most of the students are young men who have no special responsibilities. Many of them gave up good positions, however, and came to the camp without the expectation of pay. Some are wealthy, but most of the students are of only moderate means. Some spent almost their last penny to reach the camp.

Several practice marches with equipment and pack have been made. Under the strenuous exercise and physical drills, the men are hardening until they soon will be able to stand any exertion. A hike to San Antonio probably will be made.

Judging by the interest and willingness of the men, Texas and Oklahoma will furnish their share of officers. No man is anxious for the war to continue, but every man in the camp confidently expects to see service on the French front if he receives his commission.

"We're in the army now," is the popular refrain of the camp.

Convicts to Buy Liberty Bonds.

ST. PAUL, June 9.—Inmates of the Minnesota state prison at Stillwater are to invest their savings in Liberty loan bonds, it was announced today. The prisoners are prompted by patriotism, according to Ralph W. Wheelock, chairman of the board of prison control.

Why Doctors and Eye Specialists Prescribe Bon-Opto—Strengthens Eyesight 50% in a Week's Time in many instances. Dr. Smith, an oculist, obtains remarkable results with it in 14 hours time —Dr. Beck, an eye specialist of 20 years' experience, says it should be kept in every hospital and prescribed by every physician—Says Bon-Opto daily eye baths help keep the eyes strong, keen and brilliant, even to ripe old age.

The formula of Bon-Opto is printed on the labels so that the patient may know just what he is using and the physician just what he is prescribing—Ask your doctor or druggist about Bon-Opto or use Bon-Opto today and your eyes will be stronger tomorrow.

Boston, Mass.—Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that Doctors and Eye Specialists now agree there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored, and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses, and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes, which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on a machine before me. I can do both now, and have discarded my long-distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses.

Dr. Beck, an eye specialist of nearly twenty years' practice, says: "A patient came to me who was suffering from Blepharitis Marginalis with all the concomitant symptoms, as morning agglutination of the lids, chronic conjunctivitis and ephiphora. Her eyes when not congested had the dull, suffused expression common to such cases. Having run out of her medicine, a friend suggested Bon-Opto. She used this treatment, and not only overcame her distressing condition, but strange and amazing as it may seem, so strengthened her eyesight that she was able to dispense with her distance glasses and her headache and neuralgia left her. In this instance, I should say her eyesight was improved 100%. I have since verified the efficacy of this treatment in a number of cases and have seen the eyesight improve from 25 to 75 per cent in a remarkably short time. I can say it works more quickly than any other remedy I have prescribed for the eyes."

From Doctors' Reports on Patients Who Have Used Bon-Opto

"Before resorting to the operative treatment I prescribed Bon-Opto and in 24 hours the secretion had lessened, the inflammatory symptoms began to subside and in 7 days the eye was cured and retained its normal vision."

"Strange and amazing as it may seem, Bon-Opto had so strengthened her eyesight that she was able to dispense with her distance glasses and her headaches and neuralgia had left her. In this instance I should say her eyesight had improved 100%." (Full report of this case and physician's name given in the accompanying article.)

Paris, April 22.—In the brilliant sunshine of the first real spring day of

Dr. Smith, an oculist of wide experience, says: "I have treated in private practice a number of serious opthalmic diseases with Bon-Opto and am able to report ultimate recovery of both acute and chronic cases. Mr. B. came to my office suffering with an infected eye. The condition was so serious that an operation for enucleation seemed imperative. Before resorting to the operative treatment I prescribed Bon-Opto, and in 24 hours the secretion had lessened, inflammatory symptoms began to subside, and in seven days the eye was cured and retained its normal vision. Another case of extreme convergent strabismus (cross eyes) escaped the surgeon's knife by the timely use of your collyrium. The tightened external muscles yielded to the soothing and anodyne effects of Bon-Opto. I always instil Bon-Opto after removal of foreign bodies and apply it locally to all burns, ulcers and spots on the eyeball or the lids for its therapeutic effect. By cleansing the lids of secretions and acting as a tonic for the eyeball itself the vision is rendered more acute, hence the number of cases of discarded glasses.

Dr. Connor says: "My eyes were in bad condition owing to the severe strain arising from protracted microscopial research work. Bon-Opto used according to directions rendered a surprising service. I found my eyes remarkably strengthened, so much so I have put aside my glasses without discomfort. Several of my colleagues have also used it, and we are agreed as to its results. In a few days under my observation, the eyes of an astigmatic case were so improved that glasses have been discarded by the patient."

Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of Bon-Opto, and if you want to strengthen your eyes, go to any drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start, and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little, it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: A city physician, to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, Bon-Opto is a remarkable eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto is not a patent medicine or secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances, or refund the money. It is dispensed by all good druggists in this city, including Johnson-Enderle-Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson Drug Co.—ADVERTISEMENT.

LEMONS CREATE A LOVELY, WHITE SKIN

Use the juice of fresh lemons and mix with Orchard White to make a cheap lotion.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter-pint of the most wonderful lemon skin bleach, skin softener and complexion beautifier by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. It really will bleach and remove such blemishes as pimples, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier which absorbs readily and is not sticky or greasy.

Just try it. Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter-pint of this harmless lemon lotion and apply it daily to the face, neck, arms and hands. It really does soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin.—ADV.

WHY SOCIETY WOMEN WASH THEIR OWN HAIR

They do, not because it is a fad, but because they wish to obtain the greatest possible hair beauty and be sure they are not using anything harmful. They have found that in washing the hair it is never wise to use a makeshift, but is always advisable to use a preparation made for shampooing only. Many of our friends say they get the best results from a simple homemade canthrox mixture. You can use this at a cost of about three cents a shampoo by getting some canthrox from your druggist, and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes enough shampoo liquid to apply to all the hair instead of just the top of the head, as with most preparations. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear in the rinsing water. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you.—ADV.

DOCTORS ARE FOR AN END OF LIQUOR, MAYO PROCLAIMS

Eminent Minnesota Surgeon Says Alcohol's Only Place Is in Arts and Sciences.

MUST TRAIN BACTERIA

Defends American Medical Men as Peer of Any and Recites Their Discoveries.

NEW YORK, June 9.—An audience of 3000 physicians and surgeons, members of the American Medical Association, recently listened to their new president, Dr. Charles H. Mayo, eminent surgeon of Rochester, Minn., declare that medical science would welcome nation-wide prohibition and by their applause indicated that they shared his sentiments. The occasion was Dr. Mayo's induction into office. He said:

"Alcohol's only place now is in the arts and sciences. National prohibition would be welcomed by the medical profession.

"Our country should secure a medical Cabinet officer in the near future.

"Our great task now is to propagate and train bacteria to be man's true slaves.

"More good will come of tongue control than from birth control.

"Medicine is become now nearly an exact science.

"The war has been followed by a hysterical demand to lower the standards of education of physicians. A lowering of the standards must not be permitted. If we ever needed educated men, it is right now."

Surgeon Reads His Speech.

Dr. Mayo read his speech. His rapid, incisive delivery was extremely discouraging for the applause that broke in frequently.

He said that American doctors are the peers of the doctors of any country. He exclaimed that one trouble of the past had been that the great inventions of American medical men have not been accepted by their fellows until they have been adopted by the Germans and sent back wearing the label "Made in Germany."

Praising American inventive genius, Dr. Mayo recited the great work of army any civil surgeons in this country—the discovery of ether, the successful fights against epidemic disease.

"The old army gangrene is a thing of the past," he said. "A knowledge of the care of infections, prevention of tetanus, vaccination for smallpox and typhoid, the cause and prevention of typhus, the old camp fever, also cholera, the plague and fevers of all sorts, including the new trench fever, is a training requirement of the army medical officer, and results in the restoration to duty of a high percentage of the injured."

Prohibition War Measure.

In leading up to his approval of prohibition, Dr. Mayo said:

"We must aid in all that will elevate the general standard of and conserve the American citizen. Prohibition is a war measure the value of which is beyond discussion. Medicine has reached a period when alcohol is rarely employed as a drug, being displaced by better remedies.

"The benefit to our country after the present war in having some thousands of medical officers trained in sanitation, hygiene and the prevention of diseases will be incalculable. Through lax examinations of recruits and the natural effect of prolonged life and overcrowding in trenches and underground structures, tuberculosis will become a menace to our soldiers, as it is today in France.

"Medical men, your country needs you now and always. You must remember the state is permanent and does not exist for the good of the individual but that the individual exists for the good of the state."

TORPEDO ATTACK FROM SEAPLANES FIRST MADE IN 1915

Recent Sinking of British Steamship Gena by That Means Not a Surprise.

USED IN DARDANELLES

For One Such Feat a Naval Flyer Was Awarded the Distinguished Service Order.

By G. G. GREY,
Editor of The Aeroplane.
Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, May 23.—So much public interest has been roused by the recent Admiralty announcement of the torpedoing of the British steamship Gena by a German seaplane that it seems well to point out that this method of offense is a good deal older than most people think. The Admiralty has announced that sundry enemy ships were sunk by this means in the region of the Dardanelles in August of 1915. If I am not altogether misinformed the first specific instance of such an attack being made with success was the feat for which Flight Commander (now Squadron Commander) C. H. Kingsman Edmunds, R. N., was awarded the Distinguished Service Order.

This young officer, on one of the earlier types of torpedo seaplanes flew over the Gallipoli Peninsula to the Sea of Marmora and sank a Turkish transport. This was no mean performance, for the seaplanes then existing had not the engine power nor the lifting ability of the types of today, and the Gallipoli Peninsula was well provided with guns, which made the journey particularly perilous considering the inability of so heavily loaded a machine to attain the height reached by ordinary military reconnaissance aeroplanes.

At the time it was only announced officially that the transport had been sunk by "a projectile from a seaplane," but it seems probable that the Turks knew that the projectile was a torpedo. Possibly the true nature of the projectile was concealed from the British public lest an ill-considered agitation might be raised that a fleet of seaplanes should be immediately dispatched to torpedo the German High Seas fleet in the Kiel Canal—a journey which would have been impossible owing to its length. The fact that nothing has been heard of British torpedo aeroplanes since then is probably due to the absence from the surface of the waters of any German vessel which could be torpedoed.

Early Experiments.

In view of these facts it is worth while to note that experiments in launching torpedoes from seaplanes were made about the end of 1913 by officers of the Royal Naval Air Service at Calshot. These experiments, which at first took the form of releasing a torpedo on the surface of the water from an old hydro-monoplane which was incapable of lifting the weight off the water, later progressed during 1914 to the point of dropping torpedoes from big biplanes which were actually flying, and thus it was found from what height torpedoes could be dropped. It must be remembered that a torpedo fired from a deck tube on a destroyer has to drop several feet before touching the water, so there is nothing unusual so far as the torpedo itself is concerned about dropping one from a seaplane.

As the result of these continual experiments seafaring people who habitually used Southampton water were quite familiar with torpedo aeroplanes for some time before the war, and no doubt the Germans acquired the idea in this way. Though probably they have not been published, I believe that certain patents concerning the dropping of torpedoes from aircraft were taken out by Capt. (now Commodore) Murray Sueter, C. B., R. N., who was Director of the Air Department at the Admiralty while these experiments were in progress. Also patents relating to similar operations were taken out in the United States by Capt. Daniels of the United States Navy in 1916, or perhaps earlier.

A Poor Target.

The central idea of using seaplanes as torpedo craft is that a seaplane traveling head-on at perhaps 100 miles an hour or so is very much harder to hit than is a destroyer doing about 35 or 40 miles an hour. Also, naval gunners on the ship attacked, being used to firing at objects on sea level, are much less likely to hit a machine descending from a height of some thousands of feet at a terrific speed, and rising again rapidly after dropping its load, than they would be likely to hit a destroyer as it sheared off after discharging its torpedo and presented its broadside to them in turning. And although the attacking seaplane would be in plain sight all the time, the probability is that its rapid changes in altitude would make it even harder to hit than a submarine with only its periscope showing.

Moreover, if a torpedo seaplane were hit the loss would be one man and one machine, which would be very much cheaper than losing even the smallest torpedo boat or submarine. Consequently it is evident that the torpedo seaplane has a good deal to recommend it as a weapon against ships at sea, or even against ships lying in harbor, provided that in the latter case the seaplane can start from a point within flying distance of the harbor to be attacked.

RED CROSS SERVICE PREFERRED BY WOMEN IN NATION'S DEFENSE

Many Also Register for Stenographic and Clerical Aid—Lip Reading Teacher Enrolls.

The first registration blank received at headquarters of the Women's Committee, Council of National Defense, Missouri Division, 905 Locust street, was signed by Mrs. Everett W. Pattison, 4254 Olive street, who registers to teach deafened soldiers to read lips.

Mrs. Pattison for two years has been on the staff of the Central School for the Deaf and has taught privately for many years.

The majority of registration received this week have been for stenographic and clerical service. Miss Mary E. Dunne, 778 Aubert avenue and Miss Mamie A. Pauley, 5040 Vernon avenue, were the first stenographers to register. The greatest number of applications are for service with the Red Cross. Two women offer their homes in the country for the use of crippled, wounded and convalescent soldiers. The registrations are divided into trained and amateur service, paid and volunteer.

The object of women's registration is to give every woman an opportunity for patriotic service either at home or abroad and to prevent duplication of effort.

U. S. PRESTIGE AT STAKE IN WAR, PRIEST DECLARES

MUST MAKE SACRIFICE

But We Are in Struggle to Save Our Country, Father McClarey Says.

At the recent banquet of the Knights of Columbus, the Rev. John A. McClorey of St. Louis University delivered a stirring appeal "To the Men of St. Louis."

The address was as follows:

"St. Louis of France was a knight without fear and without reproach. It is fitting that St. Louisans should be such. Knighthood is the cream of soldiery, the gilt-edge of iron war, the silken glove upon the mailed fist of battle. Impassioned elevation of soul, motived by country, is essential to it. Edmund Burke described it as 'a generous loyalty to rank and sex, a proud submission, a dignified obedience, the unbought grace of life, the cheap defense of nations, the nurse of manly sentiment and heroic enterprise, inspiring courage and mitigating ferocity and ennobling whatever it touches.' Burke said 'The days of chivalry are gone.' They are not. We need chivalry now and we shall have it. We need it. For a war was never won by forced service, by slaves in epaulets. Columbia is your lady. She wishes to have your knightly hearts and not your servile hands. A man that purposes to do only what he has to do won't do even that. You have to aim above the mark to hit it. Aim high. Dash, vehement aggressiveness must characterize our entrance into the war. We have all entertained chivalric sentiments in the past. Now is the time to embody them in chivalric deeds.

"Fine imaginings, heroic emotions don't count without their complement of deeds. We shall stultify ourselves if we allow our inspired dreams of knighthood to remain barren of like action. The military glow and fervor which are the common experience of youth are now expected to prove themselves sterling. We shall never dare again to expand with high thoughts if we decline this opportunity of high deeds. We shall be ashamed ever again to raise our eyes to our lady, Columbia, if now we shall not raise a hand for her. Patriotic heroism is a fine thing; but it is bought with a price; and the price is sacrifice. We have all admired the stubbornness of the English, the persistency of the Germans, the dash of the Irish, the chivalry of the French in this war. It is incumbent on us to maintain our prestige among such heroes.

Have Reputation to Maintain.

"We Americans have a reputation for energy, quickness, snap in commercial life. These qualities must characterize our wars. 'Noblesse oblige.' We have a high reputation to maintain, and it will not be child's play to maintain it. For on the fields of Europe, heroism has become commonplace, courage is a thing of every day. It is of the first importance, therefore, that we go forth not like slaves dragged to death, but like knights courting death, and that we register our names not like convicts, signing their own death warrant, but like gallant gentlemen, deeming it a privilege to register themselves in crimson upon the golden scroll of chivalry.

"When Peter the Hermit preached the First Crusade, the burden of all his sermons was: God wills it. 'God wills it.' he cried, and the whole of Europe leaped to arms. We, too, have this consolation that God wills us to fight. True, we are not engaged in a crusade, but yet in a noble war. We are not fighting to recover the Holy Land; but yet to save our own sweet land. Not to redeem a Sepulchre, but to prevent the possibility of Columbia being interred in one; not marching beneath the Cross, but beneath the next best thing, the Flag. And God wills it. For the Government wills it, and, as St. Paul says, all authority is from God.

"Some of you may suffer hunger, thirst, fatigue, loneliness, wounds and even death, but, should the worst come, you will be able to raise yourself upon your elbow on some foreign field, and with your last blood streaming, cry out triumphantly, 'God wills it;' and die crowned; with an assurance of welcome 'Thou good and faithful servant.'

War of Titans.

"This is a war of the Titans; a battle of the gods, in which not thousands, but millions, are engaged; not only Captains, but Presidents, Kings and Emperors; not only armies, but nations; not only nations, but continents. It is worthy of the prowess of the best. The wars of Napoleon, Caesar and Alexander were Lilliputian in comparison with it. The Trojan war was a child's game and mere make-believe by the side of it. Homer glowed over the Trojan war; how enraptured he would be with this! If we have a spark of inspiration, can we help being inflamed? In the days to come, posterity will look back upon these days as the days of the giants. Their proudest boast will be: My ancestor was one of the giants. Do you wish to be one? Perhaps you have read of Napoleon and half wished that you had been with him. Here is a present opportunity of gratifying heroic impulse. And success is highly probable. Without us, the war is a lost cause to the allies. With us, very probably a victory. The allies have borne the brunt of the attack; to us is reserved the tang and thrill of triumph.

"Will you respond to the force of these motives? Yes. We are a little slow yet, for our energies have been running in the channels of peace. But we shall awake. The spirit of Lexington and Gettysburg is not smothered. Lincoln's words will sooner or later get hold of us: 'It is for us to dedicate ourselves to the great task before us, that from these honored dead (of Gettysburg) we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that the dead shall not have died in vain—that Government of the people, for the people and by the people shall not perish from the earth.'"

MASONS COMPLETE PLANS FOR BUILDING AT THE BARRACKS

Will Contain Recreation Rooms and Other Features for Comfort of Soldiers.

The Missouri Masons have completed plans for the construction of a Masonic Recreation Building at Jefferson Barracks for the entertainment and comfort of soldier Masons and soldiers who are sons and relatives of Masons.

The building, which will cost about $5000, will be a one-story structure of 60x67½ feet and will contain reception rooms, reading and writing rooms, library, bath rooms, rest rooms and many "cozy corners." The library will have, in addition to books and recent periodicals, a grand piano, a player-piano and a phonograph.

Arrangements are being made for instructive addresses by army officers and for Sunday sermons by ministers. The idea of building the home belongs to Frazer P. Gibbs, P.D.D.G.M., of the Thirty-third Masonic District of Missouri. F. E. Schutze, president of the Masonic Employment Bureau, will be publicity manager of the undertaking. Many firms in St. Louis have contributed to the furnishing of the building.

706 YALE STUDENTS IN SERVICE

Entire Scientific Strength in Some Government War Activity.

NEW YORK, June 9.—That the entire scientific strength of Yale University, in addition to at least a quarter of its undergraduate body, is now enlisted in various Government war activities, was declared by President Arthur T. Hadley, head of the New Haven institution, at a patriotic rally of 400 Yale graduates at the Yale Club in this city.

"The physiological laboratory of the Yale Medical School has received from the Government ample funds to develop and furnish the best sort of gas masks for the army and to deal with the whole great problem of warfare by gases in its defensive and offensive aspects," declared Dr. Hadley.

Dr. Hadley showed 706 Yale students were in military service and 125 in volunteer ambulance work.

Blood as a Nerve Tonic

"If people would only attend to their blood, instead of worrying themselves ill," said an eminent nerve specialist, "we doctors should not see our consulting rooms crowded with nervous wrecks. More people suffer from worry than from anything else."

The sort of thing which the specialist spoke of is the nervous-run-down condition caused by overwork and the many anxieties of today. Sufferers find themselves tired, morose, low spirited, unable to keep their minds on anything. Any sudden noise hurts like a blow. They are full of groundless fears ,and cannot sleep at night.

Doctoring the nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich blood. Therefore the treatment for neurasthenia, nervousness, and run-down health is the new rich blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are able to make. The revived appetite, improved spirits and new strength which come after a few days' use of the pills will delight every sufferer.

The free booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System" will interest you. Write for it today to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schnectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Price 50 cents per box. —ADV.

GIRLS TO KNIT FOR NAVAL CREW

High School League to Provide Garments for Men on Submarine.

A complete outfit of knitted garments for the crew of an American submarine will be made by the knitting unit of the Navy League organized by students and former students of Yeatman High School. The girls, under the leadership of Miss Laura Mueller, one of the teachers, will do the knitting, and the Alumni Association will contribute the money to buy the materials.

Roy A. Dickie, president of the Alumni, who is connected with the Liberty Bond Association, has aroused keen interest in the bonds among the students and teachers of the school. Principal William B. Butler, Assistant Principal Charles B. Goddard and Miss Julia Jeffrey, English teacher, have purchased a $50 bond for Yeatman Life, the school publication, and the Alumni Association has also bought a $100 bond.

SUNSHINE CLUB GIRLS HELP GIVE BABIES PURE MILK

Members, After School Hours, Raise $12 in Individual Campaigns.

CHILDREN WORKING

"We Are All Trying to Help a Little," a Little Miss Writes.

The Sunshine Club is a band of young girls of the West End who believe the direction of its efforts best lies in the homes of tenement sections where hundreds of infants have but scant measure of sunshine and whose lives are imperilled by inadequate nourishment. They recognize the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund as the medium through which their assistance of the babes can be given to greatest advantage, hence their contribution of $12.

The eight girls of the Sunshine Club adopted the method of individual and independent effort toward the raising of the sum rather than that of organized enterprise or entertainment, yet the work was done as a club. For one week, generally after the school-closing hour, the members canvassed their respective neighbors for contributions and at the conclusion of the period reported results as follows:

Virginia Gordon, 5933 Von Versen avenue, $3.25; Eland Anderson, 6038 Delmar boulevard, $3; Mary Rausch, 6038 Delmar boulevard, $2.35; Laura Anderson, 6038 Delmar boulevard, $1.10; Virginia Hoevel, 5830 De Giverville avenue, $1; Florence Stoermer, 6194 Delmar boulevard, 60 cents; Isabelle Sultan, 6151 Kingsbury boulevard, 50 cents; Elizabeth Gordon, 5933 Von Versen avenue, 15 cents. This made a total of $11.95, and the girls added 5 cents to make ie even $12.

In their campaign the girls were encouraged and counseled by Mrs. Pawhatan G. Gordon of 5933 Von Versen avenue, whose sympathies have for several years been given a practical turn toward the cause of the needy babes. It is stated that the largest single contribution was 50 cents.

Preparing for Entertainment.

Children of Niedringhaus Memorial Church, under leadership of Miss Elsie Kowatsch and her mother, Mrs. E. Kowatsch, of 1713 North Thirteenth street, have advised the Post-Dispatch that they have begun rehearsal and other preparations for an entertainment to be given the latter part of July for the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. Last year this large group of girls and boys added $25.50 to the Fund, and in her communication Miss Kowatsch stated that they were eager to contribute a much greater sum this season.

Mercedes Nitzschmann of 6201 Michigan avenue, for the nine members of the K. Q. Club of the Blow School, sixth grade, forwarded $1.30, the entire sum in the treasury of that organization, as voted by the members at a recent meeting. "We are all happy to help a little," the little miss wrote as the sentiment of herself and associates. The members of the club are Adele Michel, Edna Lay, Mercedes Nitzschmann, Wilhelmina Murray, Luella Steinmotz, Mildred Richardson, Cora Thomas, Marian Wright, Edith Kring.

Virginia Thursby, for a group of young girls who aided the cause of the poor babies with splendid effect last year, has written the Post-Dispatch that she and all her companions in the endeavor last year are actively engaged in the preparation of a play to be produced within a few weeks for the Milk and Ice Fund, and that they are setting themselves to the undertaking with resolve to make it productive of a substantially increased sum. "We will try very hard and do the best we can," little Miss Thursby writes.

Continues His Support.

Charles A. Mellert has planned for material support of the Milk and Ice Fund this season, as in former ones, according to assurance received by the Post-Dispatch. Forwarding a contribution of $2, he writes: "I will do all I can to help the little ones. If I do not send further contributions direct to your office it will come through the different entertainments given by the many little workers for the little ones."

John S. Hoffman of 4424 Laclede avenue was an early contributor of 50 cents to the Fund, writing that "it is a most trying time now, during the war especially, for the little ones."

Little Katherine Louie Frank of 5260 Westminster place was prompt and generous in response to the call for relief for the distressed infants, contributing $2 "to assist in this very worthy cause."

$140,000 RAISED FOR COLLEGE

St. Louis Principal Contributes to $500,000 Fund for Westminster.

Approximately $140,000, mostly paid in, is reported by Dr. E. E. Reed, president of Westminster College, as the result to date of his campaign for $500,000 for the college. This amount has been raised principally in St. Louis. The original estimate was for $150,000 here, the remainder to come from the rest of the State.

Trustees of the college have decided to go ahead with the chapel building. It is to cost $50,000 and is to be equipped with a $5000 pipe organ, a gift of an individual whose name will be made known at the dedication.

Gold Medal Oratorical Contest.

A gold medal oratorical contest will be held Tuesday evening at the Lafayette Park M. E. Church. The contestants will be Miss Opal Brock, Miss Hazel Green, Miss Bessie Schenck, Fridolph Anderson and William Johson. Mrs. John Johansen will preside.

HUSBAND LIABLE ONLY FOR NECESSITIES BOUGHT BY WIFE

Judge Cave So Rules in Suit of Jewelry Company Against Former Mrs. Carl Melscheimer.

Circuit Judge Cave yesterday continued until next Friday further hearing of the suit of the F. Dienstbier Jewelry Co., 320 North Sixth street, against Miss Hazel Skinner of 4423 Wilcox avenue, to give an opportunity to summon her former husband, Carl Melscheimer, secretary of a restaurant company, as a witness.

The suit is over a diamond ring valued at $230, purchased by the defendant from the plaintiff July 25, 1914, and charged to the account of her husband. On the following day Melscheimer notified the jewelry company he had not authorized the purchase of the article and would not pay for it.

Her attorney argued that Melscheimer was liable for the bill and that Miss Skinner, whose maiden name was restored to her when she divorced Melscheimer, could not be made to pay for it. Judge Cave said that a husband is liable only for necessaries purchased by his wife, but that a diamond is not in this class, and unless Melscheimer admits liability in the matter, judgment would be rendered against his former wife.

BECKER CASE SET FOR SATURDAY

Circuit Judge Garesche next Saturday will hear the habeas corpus suit of Henry (Kid) Becker, involving whether he shall be turned over to officials of Madison County, Ill., for prosecution there on a gambling charge.

Extradition papers were issued by Gov. Gardner authorizing the taking of Becker from Missouri to Illinois, but Becker, in his habeas corpus suit, alleges that the extradition papers are not legal. Pending the habeas corpus case Becker was placed in custody of Sheriff Weinbrenner, who was authorized to let him at liberty on $1000 bond.

Does Your Husband Drink? Druggist Tells How to Cure The Liquor Habit at Home

Free Prescription Can Be Filled at Any Drug Store and Given Secretly.

H. J. Brown, a Cleveland man, was for many years a confirmed drunkard. His friends and relatives despaired of ever redeeming him. His sister sought the best medical men in Europe in the hope that she might find something which would cure him. Finally she was recommended to an eminent chemist, who gave her a private formula (the same as appears below) and told her how to use it. She had it filled at the drug store and gave it to him secretly. The results were startling. In a few weeks he was completely cured. That was over eight years ago and he has not touched a drop since. He now occupies a position of trust and is enthusiastic in his efforts to help others overcome the liquor habit. He feels that he can best do this by making public the same formula which cured him. Here is the prescription: Go to any first-class drug store and get Prepared Tescum Powders. Drop one powder twice a day in coffee, tea or any liquid. It is harmless, tasteless, odorless and cannot be detected. You can use it without the knowledge of anyone. A lady who recently tried it on her husband reports: "My husband was on a spree when I got the powders and he usually stays drunk from three to four weeks at a time. After putting the powder in his coffee for four days he sobered up and has not taken a drink since, and says he is through with it forever. He also complained that whisky did not taste the same. I shall not tell him what did it, but I am grateful for this help and I shall recommend it whenever possible."

One woman who used this prescription on her husband says: "It is going on the fourth week since he has touched a drop of anything in the form of liquor or used tobacco of any kind. He seems already like a different man. Tescum has gained a wonderful enthusiast in me. I regard it as a Godsend. Just think, I have never seen my husband sober for more than 48 hours in years and now it is going on one month since he had his last drink."

Another one gratefully writes: "I have used tescum powders on my husband and find it one of the greatest cures in this world. He hasn't taken a drink for almost five weeks and says he never will. My home does not seem like the same place and life seems worth living. I hope thousands gain what I have. This has been a good new year for me without drink in my home."

Note—A leading druggist, when shown the above article, said: "Yes, tescum is a very remarkable remedy for the drink habit. It is harmless, wonderfully effective and is having an enormous sale. I advise everyone who wishes to destroy the liquor habit to give it a trial." It is sold in this city by Johnson-Enderle-Pauley, Wolff-Wilson and all other first-class druggists, and they guarantee it to do the work or refund the money.—ADVERTISEMENT.

George L. Weber, past commander, Hamilton Fish Jr. Camp No. 1, is being spoken of as the next department commander.

Girl's Statement Will Help St. Louis

Here is the girl's own story: "For years I had dyspepsia, sour stomach and constipation. I drank hot water and olive oil by the gallon. Nothing helped until I tried buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka. ONE SPOONFUL helped me INSTANTLY." Because Adler-i-ka flushes the ENTIRE alimentary tract it relieves ANY CASE of constipation, sour stomach or gas and prevents appendicitis. Physicans use it to remove foul and poisonous matter from the bowels which other mixtures (and the various oils and waters) are unable to dislodge. Dr. James Weaver, one of America's oldest physicians, states: "I have found nothing to excel Adler-i-ka in my fifty years' practice." French Title to Alsace and Lorraine Is Not Wholly Clear

-:—:- -:—:- -:—:-

Long Were Held by German Empire

By STERLING H. EDMUNDS
Lecturer on International Law, St. Louis University Law School.

THE French Chamber of Deputies, saluting the Russian and allied democracies, has restated the peace terms of France, insisting that "the return of Alsace-Lorraine to the mother country" in no way violates the Russian pronouncement against conquest, but contemplates essentially restitution.

In a sense Alsace and Lorraine may be said to be one of the many causes involved in the origin of the present great war, in that the bitterness engendered by their conquest from France in 1871 has never died, keeping alive at the same time a belligerent expectancy as between France and Germany. Out of this situation have grown the European alliances with their feverish competition in armaments for the inevitable Armageddon.

Possession Has Been Divided.

If one will inquire into the historical title of France to the territory of Alsace and Lorraine, he will find that by the test of prescription, or immemorial possession, the French claim is actually only a little better than that of the German; for during nearly half of the nineteenth centuries that have elasped since the dawn of the Christian era, these two provinces have been a part of the German political system.

In the first century B. C. Alsace and Lorraine were included in Gallia Belgica, one of the three divisions of Gaul brought under the sway of Rome by Julius Ceasar. Their geographical situation, with the Franks to the south, and Germanic tribes to the north, even at that early day, gave them a mixed population made up of the two races, which is attested in Caesar's Commentaries.

Gaul continued under the adminstration of Roman Governors until the rise of Clovis, and the establishment of the independent monarchy of the Franks in the fifth century, with its northern border resting on the Rhine. In the sixth century the territory of Alsace and Lorraine was incorporated within the subordinate Frankish-ruled kingdom of Austrasia, which extended eastward into the very heart of what is now Austria, containing a preponderant German population. This continued to be their situation through the seventh century and until the establishment of the Holy Roman empire by Charlemagne in the eighth century, which brought Franks and Germans alike under a common rule.

Charlemagne Claimed by Both.

As to his racial origin, Charlemagne is claimed by both peoples. The German Emperors, in fact, base their claim to succession to the Caesars through the great achievements on behalf of Germany of Karl der Grosse. It is the best opinion, however, that Charlemagne belonged to the race of Ripuarian Franks, who inhabited what may be termed this Rhine country.

When the empire of Charlemagne was divided in the ninth century, Alsace and Lorraine fell to Germany. They remained a part of the German political system during the tenth, eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth centuries without interruption. In the sixteenth century Metz, the capital of Alsace, with a small portion of territory, were added to France through the wars against Germany. It will be seen, therefore, that eight centuries had passed since France had held any of this territory, during which period it had been recognized as an integral part of Germany.

The peace of Westphalia, ending the Thirty Years' War in 1648, confirmed to France the so-called Bishopric of Metz. By the end of the seventeenth century France had been able to regain all of Alsace and nearly all of Lorraine. The remaining portion of Lorraine was brought under the French in the early part of the eighteenth century, through the wars of Louis XIV.

French Title Was Recognized.

The Congress of Vienna which met in 1814, after Napoleon's overthrow, to rearrange the map of Europe, stripped the French of most of their conquests, but confirmed their possession of Alsace and Lorraine in the final act of June 9, 1915. The whole of Europe may be said, therefore, to have recognized the French title to the two provinces at that period.

There can be no doubt of the loyal attachment of Alsace and Lorraine to France at the time of their forced cession to Prussia in 1871. No more pathetic appeal is to be found in political literature than that of the people of these provinces to the French Assembly convoked to ratify the harsh peace terms of the Prussians. The burden of it was that if Alsace and Lorraine must be ceded, the people given over to the conqueror would never for an hour forget the mother country—France—until they could be reunited with her. The lapse of nearly half a century, during which a large French exodus has taken place, together with an equally active German influx, has greatly changed the racial proportions of the population. Sentimentally, Alsace and Lorraine are French; racially they may be said to be German.

The old test of long possession as to the validity of a state's title to territory, is no longer sufficient. The present great war rages around the new principle of the rights of races and peoples to determine their political destinies for themselves. If a plebiscite were taken in Alsace and Lorraine with respect to disposing of themselves it cannot be doubted that they would vote overwhelmingly to remain with Germany, just as would the people of Schleswig and Holstein, now even more thorouhly Germanized.

If the principle of nationality is to remain dominant, it becomes a problem, therefore, to determine in what manner the original crimes of Prussia, in ousting foreign peoples from their own lands are to be dealt with. East Prussia, another example, is no longer Polish; the Poles have been driven out by drastic discriminatory legislation. Are the Poles to be restored and the Prussians ousted, in expiation of the sins of their Government, a century old?

Sentimentally, the Poles have a far better title to East Prussia than have the French to Alsace and Lorraine, for their entire ancient kingdom was ruthlessly obliterated. As the allies of France and attached to her by traditional ties of friendship and gratitude, none can withhold from her the hope that she will recover the two lost provinces and satisfy her longing of half a century. It is nevertheless erroneous to attempt to justify it upon the ground of nationality today, or upon the older principle of immemorial possession.

RAILWAY COMMITTEE URGES FULL-CAPACITY CAR LOADING

St. Louis Organization Expects Emergency System to Develop Without Confusion.

The St. Louis Committee on Intensive Car Loading, acting in conjunction with the national railroad organization headed by Chairman Fairfax Harrison, with headquarters at Washington, is preparing an address to shippers, asking the fullest co-operation in the campaign to make use of every pound of the carrying capacity of the available car supply. This work is under direction of C. M. Shaeffer, Central Superintendent of Transportation of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

In order to make the fullest use of the carrying capacity of the freight cars, district organizations have been perfected in all of the important railroad centers in the United States. The St. Louis committee is headed by General Manager Ira L. Burlingame of the Terminal Railroad Association, with W. E. McGarry as secretary.

Chairman Burlingame does not apprehend any confusion in the working out of the new system made necessary by the scarcity of cars.

When the troop and army supply movement gets under way in earnest the situation will grow more acute, and only the closest co-operation will prevent serious confusion, delays and hardships. When the wheat movement begins, steps will be taken to have the grain shippers load all cars assigned them to the limit.

WANTS NAME CHANGED TO ENLIST

Charles A. Kogelschatz Asks Court to Authorize Use of Barr.

Charles A. Kogelschatz, 20 years old, of 2518 Benton street, yesterday asked the Circuit Court for permission to change his name to Charles A. Barr. In his petition he says he enlisted in the navy under the name of Barr in 1914 and was honorably discharged.

He now desires to rejoin the navy, but fears that if he does so under his right name he will be denied the back pay which is due him as a re-enlisting reserve.

ACTING MAYOR ASKED TO ORDER MARINE CORPS WEEK

Request of Chamber of Commerce Denied Because It Would Be Discriminating Against Other Services.

The War Board of the Chamber of Commerce requested Acting Mayor Aloe yesterday to issue a proclamation declar yesterday to issue a proclamation declaring the week of June 10 to 16 Marine Corps' Week, and urging enlistment so that the allotment for St. Louis can be obtained.

The request was made at the suggestion of Major-General Barnett, commanding the Marine Corps of the United States, whose telegram stated that 4000 enlistments were needed to bring it to war strength, and that the allotment to St. Louis was 500.

The acting Mayor said he fully approved of the purpose, but that he would not issue a proclamation because that would be discrimination against the other branches of the service.

MASS OF EVIDENCE WILL CONVINCE SKEPTICAL

Remarkable Collection Proves Varney of Var-ne-sis Fame Has Found Preparation for Rheumatism

The above photograph represents a small part of the large collection of wheel chairs, crutches, canes and photographs of the Varnesis Exhibition room, 140 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

Thousands from all parts of the country have called to see this remarkable exhibition and have expressed wonder at such an array of evidence. The name and address of the former owner and sufferer of each wheel chair, crutch or cane on display is attached to each article and one thousand dollars is offered if they are not as represented. W. A. Varney said:

"The people who used these wheel chairs, crutches and articles exhibited here, were in a very bad condition, as you can readily understand. Many of them were helpless and were told that they would never be any better. They done all they could and nothing would reach their case.

"Some, to please interested friends, tried Var-ne-sis, with the result that today they are well and strong. Having no further use for the wheel chair or crutches, they have given them to me to add to my collection. What Var-ne-sis has done for these people it will do for others."

I am continually producing evidence; publishing some remarkable recovery from chronic rheumatism of the joints brought about by Var-ne-sis and I feel that it is more to the interest of a sufferer to take Var-ne-sis than it is to me. The longer one puts off taking Var-ne-sis the longer they will suffer needlessly.

Send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass., for the Story of Var-ne-sis. It's free. Your druggist can get Var-ne-sis from his wholesaler. For sale by Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Drug Co., and other reliable druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

BOY SCOUTS WILL CANVASS HOMES IN BEHALF OF BONDS

Four Thousand of Them to Distribute Literature at St. Louis Residences.

For the wind-up week of the Liberty Bond campaign more than 4000 Boy Scouts will make a house-to-house canvass, distributing 175,000 pieces of Liberty Bond literature in St. Louis and vicinity, under the direction of H. H. Simmons, Scout Master.

The literature for distribution has already been sent out by the United States government. The distribution feature has been made competitive. The number of applications received by the Boy Scouts will be telegraphed to Washington each night. Washington will in turn inform each of the 17 zones as to the general progress of the campaign. Boy Scout buglers will be stationed on the principal street corners of St. Louis during the week to remind the people of the bond issue and of the part this organization is taking in the work.

A mass meeting of all the Boy Scouts in St. Louis will be held tomorrow night for the purpose of giving the members instructions.

The volunteer bond salesmen, in their first week, sold $1,739,000 bonds to 1354 individuals. The Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co. subscribed through the bond salesmen for $100,000 on its own account and for $75,000 for its 414 employes.

David R. Francis Jr. of the Liberty Loan organization announced yesterday that he had received word from Embry L. Swearingen, in charge of the Louisville district, to the effect that they had planned a five-day selling campaign, but that after two days it was found that both Louisville and Jefferson County, which had been allotted $5,000,000 worth of bonds, had oversubscribed their allotment by 50 per cent. The campaign was closed Saturday noon and the subscriptions turned in to the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank.

Leo Osthaus Jr., who has charge of the reports being made by precinct captains, reports that yesterday the Tower Grove Bank received subscriptions for $21,000, obtained by precinct solicitors.

Thursday Is Wind-Up Day.

Elmer E. Moone of the Twentieth Ward yesterday turned in subscriptions amounting to $1600. Thursday has been announced as final windup day for the precinct men.

Mrs. Gus V. R. Mechin, president of the Women's Council, has appointed the following committee to co-operate during the coming week of the campaign in the sale of bonds: Mrs. N. B. Stanza, chairman; Mrs. C. M. Kelly, Mrs. J. M. Long, Mrs. R. M. Billins and Mrs. Norman Windsor.

Chairman E. D. Nims of the War Board yesterday appointed a committee to make an appeal to all churches and other institutions with large bells at their disposal to ring them at 9 o'clock on the evening of June 14 as a reminder to the people that there is only one day left in which they might buy Liberty Bonds.

Tobacco Prices Go Up in Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, June 9.—The retail price of tobacco of all grades and classes advanced on June 1 in Mexico. This was caused by the increase in revenue taxes which, on imported tobacco, amounted to 100 per cent. On June 1, the Mexico City street cars increased their fares 20 per cent.

HIGH COST OF SHOES AS CAUSE OF DOMESTIC ROW

Husband Answers Suit, Declaring Purchase of Three Pairs Justified Stopping Wife's Credit.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 9.—Buying three pairs of costly shoes and having them charged to her husband's account was one of the allegations made by Frank Lee, merchant and orange grower of Whittier, in an answer to a complaint for separate maintenance filed by his wife, Mattie G. Lee.

In view of the high cost of shoes Lee contended that he was justified in telling the shoe merchant not to extend further credit to his wife.

Mrs. Lee, in her complaint, charged her husband with failing to properly provide for her and she alleged he told storekeepers not to sell her merchandise on his account. As a result of credit being denied her she declared that she is dependent on the charity of friends and she asked the court to award her $100 a month.

Mrs. Lee accused her husband of striking her and knocking her down during a quarrel, but Lee explained this alleged incident by declaring that his wife became incensed over a trivial matter and in rushing through a swinging door to their kitchen was knocked down when the door swung back. He denied ever striking her.

They were married in 1897, according to the complaint.

BRITAIN COULD NOT BE REPUBLIC, SAYS GEN. JAN SMUTS

Thinks It Would Be Impossible to Elect Representative of All Dominions.

GUEST AT LONDON DINNER

He Sits With Lord French, Against Whom He Fought in Boer War.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 23.—Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, who fought the British in the Boer war and conquered German East Africa for Great Britain in this war, does not believe in making a republic out of the British Empire. He told 300 members of Parliament this at a dinner in his honor the other night in the House of Lords.

"You cannot," he said, "make a republic of the British commonwealth of nations, because you would have to elect a President, not only here in these islands, but all over the British Empire, in India, and in the dominions. A President who would be representative of all these peoples, and here I say you would be facing an absolutely insoluble problem."

Gen. Smuts broke bread beside Lord French, who led the British forces against him in the Boer war. During his speech he gave a little hitherto unrecorded history of his struggle with the forces of the British General.

"On one occasion," said the General, "I was surrounded by Lord French's forces. There was nothing left to me but the most diligent scouting to find a way out. I did some scouting myself with a small party in a place called 'Murderer's Gap,' and was the only man to come out alive. Two days afterward I broke through and came to a railway. A train approached and it was suggested that it should be stopped, but I gave the command and let it pass. The train passed. Later I learned that the only freight it carried was Lord French."

Reverting to the question of Government of the British Empire, Gen. Smuts said he preferred to call the British Isles and their possesions "a British commonwealth of nations, rather than an empire. The speaker said that he believed the future British Government was an entirely new problem.

"I do not think," he said, "that the system of the United States of America would work, because we do not want to standardize the nations of the empire. There is only one solution, and that is supplied by our past traditions, traditions of freedom, of self-government and of the fullest development.

"There are two important factors that we must rely upon for the future. The first is our hereditary kingship. I have seen some speculation recently in the newspapers about the position of kingship in this country, speculations by people who, I am sure, have no thought of the wider issues at stake.

"The theory of the Constitution is that the King is not your King but the King of all of us, ruling over every part of the Empire, and if his place should be taken by anybody else then that somebody else will have to be elected under a process which will pass the wit of man to devise.

"We have a kingship here which is really not very different from a hereditary republic. I should not be surprised if the time came when our royal Princes, instead of getting their consorts from princelings of Europe, will seek their consorts in the outlying portions of the empire.

LONDON HAS INAUGURATED A SERIES OF RAG DAYS

LONDON, June 9.—London is now having a series of rag days. Wagons decked with Union Jacks are parading each district or borough in search of rags. Leading the horse that draws the wagon is a man attired in white, looking much like the "white wings" or street cleaners of American cities, who shakes a bell and entreats people to bring out their rags. The rags are wanted to make up for the shortage of woolen and cotton raw material for army clothing, blankets, etc.

Every one of the 28 boroughs in the metropolitan area is to be canvassed before the summer is over. This means that the search for rags will be carried on in every nook and corner of the 700 miles which comprises Greater London and that it is planned to make personal visits to at least half of the 600,000 buildings in the metropolitan area. No one who has not been in London long enough to realize what a great pile it is can form an adequate conception of what a vast task lays before these new-found rag pickers.

To meet this competition the private rag-picker has a new line of barter that is quite unique; he now offers one or two pounds of potatoes for about eight pounds of rags.

RAILROAD EARNINGS FOR FOUR MONTHS OF 1917 SHOW GAIN

Operating Revenues Reach New High Figures, but Expenses Also Show Big Increase.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Nearly complete returns from all railroads for four months ending with April, made public today by the Interstate Commerce Commission, show continued improvement in net earnings in every section, notwithstanding greatly increased operating expenses.

Operating expenses reached new high figures, $1,192,911,654 for the four months, an increase of nearly $106,000,000, but operating expenses rose aproximately $125,000,000 to $872,000,000. Revenues of eastern roads for the four months increased $31,000,000 to $528,000,000 and expenses showed a $64,000,000 increase, reaching $413,000,000.

Southern roads showed increase in revenues of $19,000,000, while expenses increased $$15,500,000, showing a net revenue per mile of $1,434 as against $1,348 a year. Western roads showed increased receipts of $56,000,000 and increased expenses of $46,000,000.

ANGRY OWLS ATTACK TWO WOMEN AND ONE MAN

Residents of Virginia Town Are Organizing for a "Great Push" Against Birds.

WINCHESTER, VA., June 9.—Persons living here and at Harrisonburg are confronted by the problem of how to best a hostile army of owls. Not a few persons have recently been attacked, and more or less painfully injured. The men do not find the attacks fitting closely into their fondness for sport, and some of the women are suffering from weakened nerves.

Mrs. Edward L. Reinheart was a member of a party that recently went out in the evening. She was selected as an object of attack by one of these large feathered rowdies, which scratched her face and neck with its beak and talons, and was in the act of repeating the attack when the woman's companions rallied and beat it off. The same night Mrs. M. L. Herrington was assailed by an owl and escaped only after being painfully marked. Subsequently Charles F. Walters was swopped down upon by one of the warlike birds and isn't ashamed to admit that he fled.

The aggressively hostile owls are supposed to have been plunged into this humor by the loss of their young, through falling from their nests or attempting to fly too soon.

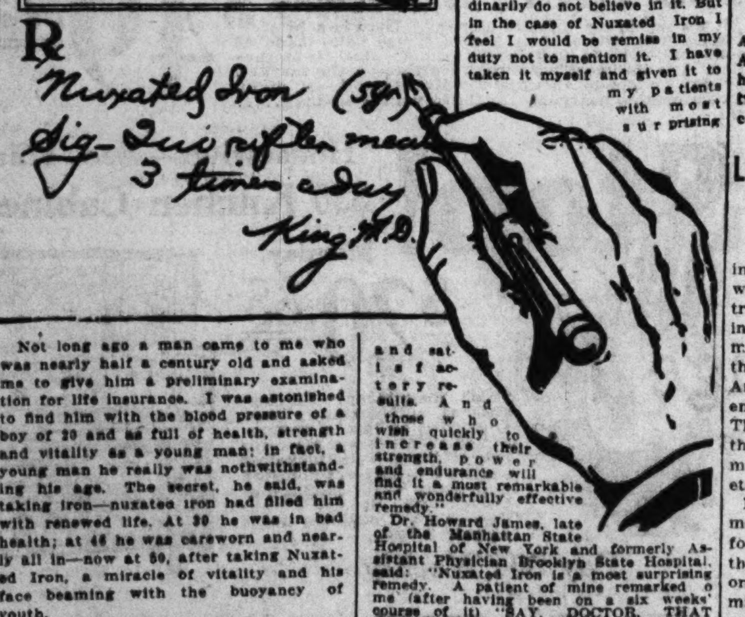
City Physicians Explain Why They Prescribe Nuxated Iron

To Make Beautiful, Healthy Women and Strong Healthy Men

NOW BEING USED BY OVER THREE MILLION PEOPLE ANNUALLY

Quickly Transforms the flabby flesh, toneless tissues, and pallid cheeks of weak, anaemic men and women into a perfect glow of health and beauty—Often increases the strength of delicate, nervous, run-down folks 100 per cent in two weeks' time.



It is conservatively estimated that over three million people annually in this country alone are taking Nuxated Iron. Such astonishing results have been reported from its use both by doctors and laymen, that a number of physicians in various parts of the country have been asked to explain why they prescribe it so extensively, and why it apparently produces so much better results than were obtained from the old forms of inorganic iron.

Extracts from some of the letters received are given below:

Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author, says: "There can be no strong iron men without iron. Pallor means anaemia. Anaemia means iron deficiency. The skin of anaemic men and women is pale. The flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory fails and they often become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks.

"In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste pipe, the water in which our vegetables are cooked are responsible for another grave iron loss.

"Therefore, if you wish to preserve your youthful health and strength to a ripe old age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt.

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former House Surgeon, Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, in commenting on Nuxated Iron, says: "It has been my particular duty during the past six years to assist in keeping Chicago's five thousand bluecoats in good health and perfect fighting trim, so that they would be physically equipped to withstand all manner of storms and the ravages of nature's elements.

"Recently I was prompted through an endorsement of Nuxated Iron by Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York, to give it a trial. This remedy has proven through my own tests of it to excel any preparation I have ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves and strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders."

Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician who has studied widely both in this country and in great European Medical Institutions, says: "As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or run down, instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages, I am convinced that in this way they could ward off disease, preventing it becoming organic in thousands of cases and thereby the lives of thousands might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, kidney, liver, heart trouble and other dangerous maladies. The real and true cause which started their disease was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood.

Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of health, strength and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was nothwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 he was careworn and nearly all in—now at 50, after taking Nuxated Iron, a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth.

Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good, and as consequence you become weak, pale and sickly-looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely rid themselves of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from 10 to 14 days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. The iron demanded by Mother Nature for the red coloring matter in the blood of her children is, alas! not that kind of iron. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete and prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray; while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

Dr. Howard James, late of the Manhattan State Hospital of New York and formerly Assistant Physician Brooklyn State Hospital, said: "Nuxated Iron is a most surprising remedy. A patient of mine remarked to me (after having been on a six weeks' course of it) "SAY, DOCTOR, THAT THERE STUFF IS LIKE MAGIC." Previous to using Nuxated Iron I had been prescribing the various mineral salts of iron for years, only to meet complaints of discolored teeth, disturbed digestion, tied-up hardened secretions, etc., when I came across Nuxated Iron, an elegant, ingenious preparation containing organic iron, which has no destructive action on the teeth—no corrosive effect on the stomach, and which is readily assimilated into the blood and quickly makes its presence felt in increased vigor, snap and staying power. It enriches the blood, brings roses to the cheeks of women, and is an unfailing source of renewed vitality, endurance and power to men who burn up too rapidly their nervous energy in the strenuous strain of the great business competition of the day."

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists, and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not double your strength and endurance in 10 days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co. and all good druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

CAMPAIGN BEGUN TO COMBAT WORK OF PACIFISTS

National Security League Says "Their Insidious Influences Must Be Counteracted."

PLANS ARE OUTLINED

Organization to Continue Work to Arouse Patriotism and for Universal Service.

Inauguration of a campaign to combat the activities of various pacifist societies throughout the Middle Western States and particularly in Missouri, was announced yesterday by George M. Brown, president of the St. Louis Branch of the National Security League. This campaign is part of a nation-wide movement started by the National Security League through its branches in all the large cities.

"There are many indications," said Brown yesterday, "that these societies are very active throughout the country. Immediate steps must be taken to counteract their insidious influences. They have been very careful to confine their activities to those things which are not actually illegal, but they are nevertheless endeavoring to influence the minds of persons with their unpatriotic if not wholly reasonable activities."

A letter was received yesterday from the national headquarters of the league in New York, which outlines the operation of the plan for the proposed campaign against the various organizations which are fighting the aggressive prosecution of the war and subscriptions to the Liberty Loan.

Work Not at an End.

"Our country being actually engaged in war," the letter reads, "and the Government being occupied with all sorts of war measures, including conscription, a great many people are of the impression that the National Security League has attained its object, and that we have no further work to do. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In spite of all our efforts, and in spite of the facts which prove that our alarm over our country's defenseless condition was well founded, there still remains a large body of citizens unconvinced and half asleep. These persons are daily receiving encouragement from various so-called pacifist organizations. It is true that they are not as loud spoken as they were, but there is no evidence of a cessation of their activities. Many of their former demonstrations were too near the verge of treason to be continued at the present time, but their efforts are as insidious as ever and more dangerous.

Quietly, by underground methods, their propoganda, coupled with that of those who would weaken the United States and benefit Germany, is being spread broadcast. The members of the National Security League should at once take active steps to counteract this influence.

"The Emergency Peace Federation recently boasted in a printed circular that it maintained a strong 'Legislative Committee' (in plain language, a lobby) in Washington, Room 648, Munsey Building. It claimed to have organized by letters, telegrams and newspaper articles a vast 'inarticulate' (the word is their own) opposition to conscription and stated that it was trying to get in touch with all persons and organizations who would stand with them 'when the psychological moment arrived for a concerted demand for peace negotiations.' They boasted that their bombardment of Congress had won the votes of over 40 of our Representatives in the recent disgraceful spectacle presented by our national legislative body while the President was attempting to obtain approval of his army program. This organization and similar bodies are forming branches in every town and city in the country where they can obtain a foot hold.

Plan to Combat Influence.

"The National Security League, through its Committee on Patriotism, through education, recently devised a plan for combating these activities which will do much to offset their influence. The medium will be a nation-wide system of patriotic meetings and lectures at which trained speakers will set forth the causes of the war, the reasons for the entrance of this country into the conflict, the manner in which we must carry out our part in order to insure the supremacy of democracy over autocracy, and the vital fact that our national safety depends upon our victory. Enthusiastic proffers of assistance and co-operation have been received from many sources—patriotic, fraternal, social and business organizations, college and university presidents, and professors, numerous education bodies.

"This great war can only be brought to a successful issue by vigorous and concerted action. Those who do not help us to go forward pull us back. The mere dead weight of ignorance and indifference is a terrific handicap. You must do all you can to keep awake the real spirit of patriotism and preparedness in your district and in no way allow your branch of the National Security League to slacken its activities. There are so many things which we can do apart from the great fundamental object of the league, bringing about permanent Universal Military Training and Service. We are enclosing a pamphlet on Home Defense League organization. It is one of the most important of the various forms of service which—if not already under way—your branch can render. The National Security League must bestir itself to awaken the people to the great necessities of this war, so that this country may continue to exist, a free, alert and respected nation."

COME 7000 MILES TO JOIN ARMY

Two Americans Return From British Forces in Africa.

DETROIT, Mich., June 9.—Clinton W. Dall, son of a Detroit real estate operator, and Eugene Schwader of Cass City, Mich., have just returned from Africa, traveling about 7000 miles in a slow tramp, so that they might join the American army, the journey consuming 45 days. Both were with the British army in Africa, but were given discharges when this country entered the war.

The boys say conditions in the African campaign against the Germans were horrible and that the jungle fevers and swamps were harder to fight than the human enemy. They report that the fighting there is about over, as the Germans remaining have been driven into swamps. After resting a few days, the boys will enlist in the army.

Campaign headquarters for Red Cross Week, June 18—25, has been established at 701 Locust street, and the preliminary work for an intensive drive for $3,000,000 as Missouri's allotment of the $100,000,000 Red Cross War Relief Fund, is well under way with Captain-General A. L. Shapleigh in command.

Davidson, chairman; Cornelius N. Bliss Jr., Edward N. Hurley, Grayson M. P. Murphy, Charles D. Norton, William H. Taft and Eliot Wadsworth.

The Red Cross Council appointed a Finance Committee of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross, selecting on that committee presidents of leading banks of the city, B. F. Captain-General Shapleigh is assisted by Oscar M. Miller of the War Finance Committee, Washington. Kansas City has also been assigned a Finance Campaign expert from the War Council. Each of the Finance Committee of the 40 large cities in the United States have the advisory assistance of an expert from the War Finance Committee.

Captain-General Shapleigh drafted 24 Captains and a like number of Lieutenants, who, in turn, were instructed to draft not less than 10 nor more than 15 men on their teams, to make the drive for St. Louis' part of the $3,000,000 allotment assigned to Missouri.

Almost in every instance the men accepted, even changing their vacation and summer plans to serve their Captains in this work. This means that between 250 and 300 of prominent business men will be engaged in this intensive campaign during the week of June 18 to 25 and longer, if necessary.

W. C. d'Arcy, the newly-elected president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, will be chairman of the Publicity Committee.

Official Organization.

The Red Cross is the recognized official organization to carry on humanitarian work. It is the recognized international organization in all of the civilized countries in the world, and, under the direction of the War Council, has undertaken to raise this $100,000,000 necessary to care, not only for the American soldiers, but those of the allies who are at the front, giving them the supplies and material needs necessary. The American Red Cross must see that nothing is lacking to keep them happy, healthy and efficient soldiers. For this the Red Cross must have:

1. Hospital and medical equipment to supplement that of the Army Medical Department equal to any emergency and equipment to care for 1,000,000 men ought to be provided at once.
2. Recreation and rest facilities behind the firing line, as Americans on leave, unlike the British and French, cannot return to their homes, and club rooms, sports supplies, books and other means of recreation must be sent to them from America.
3. Personal comfort kits and small articles, which are not included in army regulations, and many thousands of articles, from toothbrushes to writing paper, and pipes, are needed.

Captains and Lieutenants.

The following Captains and Lieutenants will have charge of the 24 teams working for the success of the campaign in St. Louis:

Captains: Team No. 1, W. B. Biddle; 2, G. A. Buder; 3, L. Ray Carter; 4, J. D. Perry Francis; 5, Aaron Fuller; 6, Benjamin Gratz; 7, C. L. Holman; 8, Clarence H. Howard; 9, Jackson Johnson; 10, Breckinridge Jones; 11, Henry W. Kiel; 12, Homer P. Knap; 13, W. A. Layman; 14, George D. Markham; 15, Duncan I. Meier; 16, Dan C. Nugent; 17, Louis Rosen; 18, A. J. Siegel; 19, Ernest W. Stix; 20, J. C. Van Riper; 21, Festus J. Wade; 22, G. H. Walker; 23, Frank O. Watts; 24, T. H. West.

Lieutenants: Samuel C. Davis, E. F. Kearney, Harry Langenberg, Samuel C. Davis, Tom Bennett, J. D. Filley, P. B. Fouke, Luther Ely Smith, Walker Hill, J. L. Johnston, L. P. Aloe, J. R. Barroll, George F. Steedman, Daniel G. Taylor, R. S. Hawes, Lewis T. Tune, David Sommers, Richard McCulloch, J. R. Curlee, D. D. Walker Jr., W. Frank Carter, Daniel G. Taylor, Jos. D. Bascom.

HALF OF SCHOOL CHILDREN'S OLD PAPER FUND GOES TO RED CROSS

Teachers' Benevolent Annuity Association Sees Possible Donation of $8000 a Year.

One-half of all money collected from the sale of old papers and discarded magazines which St. Louis school children bring to their respective schools for the benefit of the Teachers' Benevolent Annuity Association will be turned over to the St. Louis Chapter of the Red Cross Society, according to W. J. Stevens, principal of the Field School, and a member of the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Benevolent Tnnuity Association. The donation to the Red Cross Society in April was $140, and that for May will be more than $500.

In order to stimulate the contributions of old papers, the association will present an American flag to each schoolroom in the city which obligates itself to contribute old papers.

In order to further do their "bit" in the national crisis, the Board of Trustees decided to invest $1000 of the association's funds in Liberty Bonds.

Should each child in the city who attends school bring the equivalent of two Sunday newspapers to the schools each week, the association would be able to give the Red Cross $8000 annually.

PRESIDENT STATES OUR WAR AIMS TO RUSSIA; NO PEACE ON BASIS OF MAP BEFORE WAR

No Territory Must Change Hands Except to Secure to Inhabitants Fair Chance of Life.

NO INDEMNITY EXCEPT FOR MANIFEST WRONG DONE

America for Such Readjustment of Power Only as Will Secure Future Peace—War, Result of Status Quo Ante, "Has Begun to Go Against Germany" — Must Conquer or Submit.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—President Wilson, in a communication to the new Government of Russia, has made plain the war aims of the United States and its position on "no annexations, no indemnities."

"No territory must change hands except for the purpose of securing those who inhabit it a fair chance of life and liberty," says the communication.

"No indemnities must be insisted on except those that constitute payment for manifest wrong done.

"No readjustments of power must be made, except such as will tend to secure the future peace of the world and the future welfare and happiness of its people."

In unmistakable terms, President Wilson declares against Germany's proposal to restore the "status quo" before the war.

"It was the status quo ante out of which this iniqitous war issued forth," he says, "the power of the imperial German Government within the empire and its widespread domination and influence outside of that empire.

"That status must be altered in such fashion as to prevent any such hideous thing from ever happening again."

Text of the Statement.

The President's communication was delivered to the Russian Government by Ambassador Francis at Petrograd. In full, it is as follows:

"In view of the approaching visit of the American delegation to Russia to express the deep friendship of the American people for the people of Russia and to discuss the best and most practical means of cooperation between the two peoples in carrying this present struggle for the freedom of all peoples to a successful consummation, it seems opportunte and appropriate that I should state again, in the light of this new partnership, the objects the United States has had in mind in entering the war.

"Those objects have been very much beclouded during the past few weeks by mistaken and misleading statements, and the issues at stake are too momentous, too tremendous, too significant for the whole human race to permit any misinterpretations or misunderstandings, however slight, to remain uncorrected for a moment.

"The war has begun to go against Germany, and in their desperate desire to escape the inevitable ultimate defeat, those who are in authority in Germany are using every possible instrument, are making use of the influence of groups and parties among their own subjects to whom they have never been just or fair or even tolerant, to promote a propaganda on both sides of the sea which will preserve for them their influence at home and their power abroad, to the undoing of the very men they are using.

Position of America in War.

"The position of America in this war is so clearly avowed that no man can be excused for mistaking it. She seeks no material profit or aggrandizement of any kind. She is fighting for no advantage or selfish object of her own but for the liberation of peoples everywhere from the aggressions of autocratic force.

"The ruling classes in Germany have begun of late to profess a like liberality and justice of purpose, but only to preserve the power they have set up in Germany and the selfish advantages which they have wrongly gained for themselves and their private projects of power all the way from Berlin to Bagdad and beyond.

"Government after government has by their influence, without open conquest of its territory, been linked together in a net of intrigue directed against nothing less than the peace and liberty of the world. The meshes of that intrigue must be broken, but cannot be broken unless wrongs already done are undone; and adequte measures must be taken to prevent it from ever again being rewoven or repaired.

"Of course, the imperial German Government and those whom it is using for their own undoing are seeking to obtain pledges that the war will end in the restoration of the status quo ante. It was the status quo

BRITISH TOOK MORE THAN 7000 GERMAN CAPTIVES IN MESSINES ATTACK

Drive Momentarily Halted While English Consolidate Positions Gained—Berlin Says Offensive Has Been Stopped.

LONDON, June 9.—Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters in France reports that Klein Zillebeke has been retaken by the British.

LONDON, June 9.—The number of German prisoners taken in the British operations in the Ypres section now is more than 7000. The British drive against the German positions has ceased for the time being, and the troops are occupying themselves in consolidating the ground gained.

The official report from headquarters in France tonight follows:

"Except for artillery activity on both sides the day passed quietly on the battle front south of Ypres. We have gained ground slightly on the right flank of our new position.

"The total number of prisoners taken by us since Thursday morning now exceeds 7000. A great number of guns, machine guns and trench mortars still are buried under the debris.

"On the Scarpe battle front we have improved our positions during the day in the neighborhood of Greenland Hill."

Berlin Says Messines Battle Has Passed in Germans' Favor.

AMSTERDAM, June 9.—A semi-official dispatch from Berlin claiming that the English losses at Wytschaete, Belgium, were higher than the German casualties, says:

"The English assault already has been arrested. Our front is absolutely firm. Strong reserves are behind it. The fighting at Wytachaete can be regarded as the first episode of the expected great general offensive and it has passed in our favor."

From La Bassee Canal to the Sensee Brook, the statement adds, the fighting activity increased, but the German positions were completely maintained.

Germans Make Four Fruitless Attacks on Chemin-des-Dames.

PARIS, June 9.—Germans made four fruitless attacks on French positions along the Chemin-des-Dames last night, according to the official statement issued by the French War Office today. The attacks were delivered in quick succession northeast of Cerny.

Berlin Says British Obtained No Advantage in New Fighting.

BERLIN, Via London, June 9.—The British were unable to obtain any advantage in the fresh fighting last evening on the banks of the Ypres-Comines Canal, and the Dauve lowlands in Belgium, says the official statement issued today by the War Department.

Last year the Post-Dispatch printed 95,534 Room and Board Want Ads—5701 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

Two British Airplanes Lost in Collision When in Fight With Germans

LONDON, June 9.

THE British official report from the western front tonight says:

"In the course of bombing raids carried out by our airplanes against the enemy's railway station Thursday night, a large accumulation of rolling stock containing ammunition was detonated by a big bomb. Fires and explosions continued until dawn.

"Yesterday three German airplanes were brought down in the air fighting and four others were driven down out of control. Six of our airplanes are missing. Two of these were lost as the result of a collision during a fight with a number of hostile machines over the enemy's lines."

FOOD CONTROL BILL MUST PASS AT ONCE, HOOVER SAYS

Otherwise He Declares, "Too Late" Will Be Written Over American History, Like In Britain

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Herbert C. Hoover, outlining his plans for lowering food prices to a delegation of labor representatives and congressmen today said it was vital that Congress pass the administration food control bill immediately.

"Throughout the last three years," Hoover told the delegation, "two words have been written over the pages of English history, 'too late.' Unless the Lever bill is passed immediately before the grain harvest 'too late' will be written in our own history."

The labor representatives tonight requested President Wilson to receive them Monday for a discussion of the food question.

Men Who Enlist Now Will Be Credited to Their Counties Under Draft Law.

CHICAGO, June 9.—Men who enlist in the army now will be credited to the number which their counties will be called upon to supply under the selective draft law, it was announced today in a letter from Henry P. McCain, Adjutant-General of the War Department, to Capt. Franklin R. Kenney, army recruiting officer here. The letter urged renewed efforts in recruiting, to complete the formation of 51 new regiments without delay.

"Recruiting in each district must be three times as great as now to insure the completion of the war quota," said the letter.

ST. LOUIS HOSPITAL UNIT PROBABLY ON FRENCH WAR FIELD

Given Hearty Farewell Demonstration on Departure From London Yesterday.

LONDON, June 9.—The American Red Cross base hospital units from St. Louis and Philadelphia left London today for France, each taking equipment for a hospital of 500 beds. The units marched to the railway station from their hotels, Maj. James D. Fife heading the St. Louis unit and Maj. M. A. Delaney heading the Philadelphia unit.

There was a hearty farewell demonstration. The Americans had been entertained almost continuously since arriving here, and they said, in expressing appreciation of this hospitality, that they were anxious to get to the scene of their work, near the firing line in France.

Probably Now in France.

As the usual time of the journey from London to Paris is from nine to 15 hours, according to the route taken, there is little doubt, from the foregoing dispatch, that the hospital units are now on French soil.

Base Hospital Unit No. 21 of the American Red Cross, the St. Louis unit referred to in the London dispatch, has 234 officers and members. It is the second body of St. Louisans to enter the war zone in the past few days, the first having been an ambulance unit of Washington University students.

The unit left St. Louis May 17, sailed from New York, May 19, and arrived at a British port May 28. Its equipment, costing $40,000, was purchased by the local chapter of the Red Cross, beside nearly $10,000 worth of garments, surgical dressings and other necessary articles.

ROPES AND ARMS CARRIED BY CITIZENS TO PUBLIC SQUARE

All Prisoners in Keet Case Were Taken Out of Town When Baby's Body Was Found Yesterday.

FUGITIVES SAFE ACCORDING TO COUNTY PROSECUTOR

Sheriff Supposed to Have Been Trying to Reach Clinton, to Take Train There to Jefferson City—Reported That He Was Stopped by Farmers,

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 9.—About 10,000 persons are crowded in the public square and adjoining streets here late tonight in anticipation of taking part in or witnessng the lynching of seven persons suspected of complicity in the kidnaping of the Keet baby, whose body was found in a well on a deserted farm near here today.

A report was received here at 11 o'clock that Sheriff Webb and a party of deputies, who took the suspects out of the city today for their safety, has been overtaken at Caplinger Mills, about 50 miles north of here, by pursuing citizens from Springfield, and that the entire party was returning here.

In conflict with this report was a message from Paul O'Day, County Prosecutor, who telephoned here that Sheriff Webb and his party of alleged abduction plotters, fleeing from threatening mobs here, were safe somewhere in Cedar County, Missouri. O'Day telephoned from Humansville, Mo., in Polk County, saying he was on his way to meet Sheriff Webb, to obtain additional statements from some of the prisoners.

Only meager details were received of the reported capture. It was said that farmers had burned a bridge over which Sheriff Webb would have had to take his party, and that he abandoned the motor cars, taking his prisoners into the brush.

Many of the persons on the square are carrying ropes and arms.

One report said Sheriff Webb had agreed to the return of the prisoners to Springfield on condition that no violence should be attempted against the prisoners.

It is supposed that Sheriff Webb was trying to reach Clinton, and from there board a train for Jefferson City, to place his prisoners behind the thick walls of the State Penitentiary.

Saloons Closed, Militia in Arms.

Springfield tonight was a city in which any eventuality seemed a possibility. Enraged by the finding shortly before noon today of the Keet baby's body in an old well on the deserted Crenshaw farm, eight miles southeast of here, the city was prepared for almost any outcropping of the mob spirit.

Mayor Gideon ordered the saloons closed shortly after it became apparent that the city had not quieted down after the stirring events of the day. All street cars were ordered to remain in the barns, and a company of the Second Missouri Infantry stationed here was held on its arms at the arsenal ready to answer any call.

The county jail and police station, although the alleged kidnapers had been removed hours before, were heavily guarded and authorities were on the alert to deal with any situation that might arise.

The chase of the seven alleged abduction plotters begun shortly after Paul O'Day, county prosecutor, confirming the identification of the Keet baby, had ordered them removed somewhere to safety.

From stories gathered here, it appears that more than one motor car party went after the alleged abduction band. The first party started this afternoon and consisted of about 25 men. They are said to have been reinforced by farmers along the route taken. Another party is said to have gone out tonight.

Various Reports From Pursuit.

Various reports filtered back to Springfield from time to time to add to the general apprehension and to keep the city in a constant uproar. One was that the mob had overtaken the Sheriff's party near Bolivar, 35 miles to the north, captured the prisoners and was returning with them to Springfield to lynch them. Another located the Sheriff at Osceola, Mo., nearly 70 miles away on the road to Clinton, with the pursuers but half a mile behind. Still a third had it that members of the mob expected to overpower the Sheriff there when the party would attempt to board a train.

But reliable reports were meager and there was little with which to construct the story of the pursuit.

Authorities, continuing their search of the Crenshaw farm, announced tonight the finding of several minor clews that they declared would aid in unravelling the mystery. However, the seven persons who were being taken to safety were being held only on formal charges of plotting the abduction of C. A. Clement, wealthy Springfield jeweler; a baby here and a St. Louis munition maker.

The prisoners are:

Taylor Adams; his wife, Allie, and their two sons, Cletus, 20, and Maxie, 18 years old.

C. J. Piersol, alleged "brains" of a kidnaping gang.

Sam McGinnis, 26, a cook.

George Walker, a taxicab driver.

Walker was arrested after he had made several visit to the Springfield

BRITISH AIRMEN FLEW IN SHELL LANES AT YPRES

Hundreds of Planes Swept Close Over German Lines, Halting Counter Attack.

AIR - LANES CHOKED

One Aviator Complained He Hardly Had Room to Turn Around in.

By Associated Press.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, June 9.—The manner in which the British flying corps dominated the air during the battles of Messines ridge on Thursday and completely smotehered the German aviation service for the time being is one of the most remarkable stories of the entire war.

Hundreds of British planes were well behind the German lines when the battle broke into its fury at dawn. They had stolen over during the darker intervals of the brief night when the moon was hidden by storm clouds. Other hundreds went aloft with the first streaks of coming day and, guided by the flashes of guns, flew into the thick of the fighting.

During the night British machines bombed enemy railway stations, trains, ammunition dumps and troops coming up on the march. Others hovered above German airdromes and circled low among airplane sheds and fired hundreds of rounds from machine guns into them and prevented the enemy machines from coming out. Later in the day, while the fighting was most intense, British airmen dropped about three tons of bombs on the German flying grounds as a further deterrent.

Delayed Counter Attack.

In addition to shutting the German airmen out of any early participation in the battle, the British airplanes were in a large degree responsible for the fact that the Germans could not launch a counter attack of appreciable strength until 40 hours after the battle of the air began and every bit of ground desired by the British in this particular operation had been taken and secured.

Far back of the German lines the British planes searched out troops in every hamlet, town and village. In several places they saw them gathering or marching in the main streets, whereupon they flew down low at times and opened a fire which scattered the gray-clad soldiers in all directions. Convoys and ammunition and supply columns were attacked while on the march and the disorganized men left their teams and automobiles on the road while they sought shelter in nearby ditches.

Shot Rockets at Germans.

Airplanes attacked troops in the support trenches and sent them scurrying to the cover of their dugouts. One pilot made so many of these attacks that he finally ran out of ammunition, but he delivered his last stroke by letting go his signal rockets at a platoon of soldiers, who scattered. German troops were fired upon in the more distant back areas as they were entraining for the front. Many of the enemy retreating from the British attack and hiding in shell holes were seen by the low-flying airmen and pelted with bullets.

One British pilot patrolled a road for half an hour before he saw anything to shoot at. Then a German military automobile with three officers sitting in the back seat came along. The Britisher dived at them from a height of 300 feet, firing at them as they came. He flew so low eventually that the wheels of his under carriage barely missed the automobile, which swerved into a ditch while going at about 40 miles an hour and crashed into a tree.

This same pilot later came across an active field gun battery and charged it, scattering the gun crew and hitting a number of them. Still farther along he attacked a column of Germans marching in fours. The column broke when he opened fire, scattering to both sides of the road. At no time during his stay inside the German lines was this pilot more than 500 feet from the ground.

Large numbers of British machines were on contact patrol work, flying low over the advancing lines of infantry, constantly watching their movements, their progress, any temporary reverse, any attempt to form counter attacks and all the while sending detailed reports back to corps and army headquarters.

Fourteen Planes Lost.

Of the fourteen planes lost during the day of the battle, a majority were these contact machines. They had to fly through a frightful storm of their own as well as the enemy's artillery fire, and they succumbed to chance blows from these exploding missiles.

One British pilot who returned to his home station for new supplies of petrol and ammunition declared it was the most dangerous day's flying he ever participated in. "Because," he added, "there are so many of our machines you can hardly find room to sail."

Some of the most marvelous work was done by artillery airplanes. One squadron alone, acting with several batteries of British heavies, succeeded in silencing 72 German batteries in less than three hours on the morning of the attack, which began at 3:10 o'clock in the morning.

The German army defeated at Messines was commanded by Gen. Count Sixt von Arnim, who made such an interesting report during the battle of the Somme last year in which he complained of the breaking down of the German army system.

This army was the fourth German army in the army group of Crown Prince Rupprecht. Gen. von Arnim first came into renown in the war of 1870 and in 1911 had the distinction of succeeding Von Hindenburg in command of the Fourth Army Corps.

The Germans were pouring shells atop the Messines Ridge today from long range guns well behind the infantry positions to which they had been forced back. Under this fire and under the heat of a torrid sun the British were completing the reconstruction work which always follows a great military advance. Great water mains had been laid across the battle fields to distributing points near the fighting line. Telephone cables have gone forward in underground conduits.

President States Our War Aims to Russia

ante out of which this iniqutious war issued forth, the power of the imperial German Government within the empire and its widespread domination and influence outside of that empire. That status must be altered in such fashion as to prevent any such hideous things from ever happening again.

"We are fighting for the liberty, the self-government, and the undictated development of all peoples, and every feature of the settlement that concludes this war must be conceived and executed for that purpose. Wrongs must first be righted and then adequate safeguards must be created to prevent their being committed again. We ought not to consider remedies merely because they have a pleasing and sonorous sound. Practical questions can be settled only by practical means. Phrases will not achieve the result. Effective readjustments will; and whatever readjustments are necessary must be made.

"But they must follow a principle and that principle is plain. No people must be forced under sovereignty under which it does not wish to live. No territory must change hands except for the purpose of securing those who inhabit it a fair chance of life and liberty. No indemnities must be insisted on except those that constitute payment for manifest wrongs done. No readjustments of power must be made except such as will tend to secure the future peace of the world and the future welfare and happiness of its peoples.

Free Peoples Must Co-operate.

"And then the free peoples of the world must draw together in some common covenant, some genuine and practical co-operation that will in effect combine their force to secure peace and justice in the dealings of nations with one another. The brotherhood of mankind must no longer be a fair but empty phrase; it must be given a structure of force and reality. The nations must realize their common life and effect a workable partnership to secure that life against the aggressions of autocratic and self-pleasing power.

"For these things we can afford to pour out blood and treasure. For these are the things we have always professed to desire, and unless we pour out blood and treasure now and succeed, we may never be able to unite or show conquering force again in the great cause of human liberty. The day has come to conquer or submit. If the forces of autocracy can divide us, they will overcome us; if we stand together, victory is certain and the liberty which victory will secure. We can afford then to be generous, but we cannot afford then or now to be weak or omit any single guarantee of justice and security."

Demand for Trial of Former Czar Is Spreading Widely in Russia

Movement Started by Lenine Faction Was at First Not Taken Seriously—Three Battleship Crews Threaten to Use Force if Nicholas Is Not Imprisoned.

By Associated Press.

PETROGRAD, June 9.—The demand of the revolutionaries for the trial and condign punishment of Nicholas Romanoff, the former Emperor, and, in the meantime, his subjection to restraint in prison, which at first was made only by a handful of irresponsible extremists, is growing daily.

All Petrograd laughed at the resolution of the Bolsheviki, the faction led by Nikolai Lenine, two days ago, demanding the transfer of Nicholas to Kronstadt or even to the Siberian mines. But today comes official news that the crews of the battleship Republic and Gangut and the cruiser Diana, stationed at Helsingfors, had adopted a resolution requiring the imprisonment of the former Emperor at Kronstadt until he is placed on trial. The sailors declared that if the demand was rejected the warships would apply force.

On Thursday Saratov was placarded with red proclamations having the same import, and today there are being sold in the streets of Petrograd thousands of leaflets inscribed: "Trial for Nicholas II."

As a result of renewed defiance by the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates in Kronstadt, which yesterday declared that its resolution deposing the Petrograd Government still holds good, the situation is again aggravated.

Two Cabinet meetings on the subject were held yesterday and again it was decided to take resolute action. The Cabinet is informed that the fourth fleet at Kronstadt is entirely reliable and attached to the provisional Government and that the whole trouble is due to the civil and military population of Kronstadt.

Convinced of its strength, the Cabinet late today issued a warning to all citizens of Kronstadt that its decrees must be obeyed without qualification.

The Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates has made public the fact that the Garman commander in Chief on the eastern front sent a wireless message inviting the Russian armies to a separate armistice and proposing that they enter into secret pour parlers with the German leaders.

The council denounced the proposals.

In the telegram, the council's commander proposed to show the armies a way toward an honorable peace and a means of ceasing to wage war without a rupture with the Entente allies.

The Council of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates had in this connection addressed to the Russian army the following appeal:

"The Commander in Chief of the German armies on the eastern front has sent to our troops a wireless message proposing to indicate to them a way toward an honorable peace and a means for ceasing to wage war without a rupture with the allies. The German General talks this way because he knows that the Russian revolutionary troops would reject with indignation any overt proposal for a separate peace.

"That is why the enemy Commander in Chief invites our armies to a separate armistice and proposes that we should enter into secret pourparlers with the German military leaders on the eastern front.

"In his wireless telegram the German General declares that a separate armistice does not offer Germany any advantage. But this is untrue, for, in speaking of the inactivity of the German army on the Russian front, the German General forgets what Russia cannot forget, the Russian defeat on the Stokhod.

The German general has forgotten that the Russian troops know whither the divisions and heavy batteries are being taken from our front. The German general has forgotten that we in Russia hear the sound of the bloody battles which are being fought on the Franco-British front. He has forgotten that Russia knows that the overthrow of her allies would mean the overthrow of Russia and the end of her political liberty."

Universal Suffrage for First Time in Russia

PETROGRAD, June 9.

ELECTIONS to the district and municipal councils began here today. For the first time in Russian history universal suffrage was in operation.

STABBED THROUGH CAR WINDOW

Don Briscoe, 17 years old, 3921 North Broadway, bumped into a negro on the platform of a Broadway car which he boarded at Franklin avenue, at 11 o'clock last night. They fought and were separated by the conductor. Briscoe took a seat inside. At Hempstead street the negro got off and went around to the side of the car, where he stabbed Briscoe in the back through the car window.

Briscoe was taken to the city hospital. The negro escaped.

His brother, Walter, of 1004 Tyler street, who suspected his purpose and followed him to the river, dragged him out of the water. Sickness of Edward's wife and child was given as the cause of his despondency.

PERSHING HOLDS WAR CONFERENCES, RECEIVED BY KING

American General Has Two Formal Talks With English Military Leaders.

IS MUCH ENTERTAINED

Second Contingent of U. S. Officers Reaches Britain on Balfour's Ship.

LONDON, June 9.—Gen. Pershing was received this morning at Buckingham Palace by King George. He was presented to the King by Lord Brooke, commander of the Twelfth Canadian Infantry brigade.

Gen. Pershing was accompanied to the palace by his personal staff of 12 officers. After the audience the officers paid a formal call at the United States embassy.

After the formal reception the King shook hands with Gen. Pershing and his staff, and expressed pleasure at welcoming the advance guard of the American army.

The day was a busy one for the American General and his staff. He rose at 7 o'clock, glanced through the morning papers and then breakfasted in his room with several members of his staff. The reception at the palace was next on the program, but the whole ceremony took up less than an hour.

From the palace Gen. Pershing and his party motored to the American embassy, where the General talked with Ambassador Page, who escorted him through the various departments. Later the General and several of the staff officers met a number of British army officers at the embassy in a brief formal conference.

From the embassy the party drove to the War Office, where the General's staff officers conferred for more than an hour with the officers of the corresponding departments of the British army. These conferences are going to be daily affairs until Gen. Pershing's party leaves for France.

Guest of Lord Brooke.

This afternoon Gen. Pershing was the guest of Gen. Lord Brooke at a luncheon at the Marlborough Club, where he sat beside Major-General Henderson, chief of the British Air Service. After the luncheon Gen. Pershing and Gen. Henderson had a half hour's formal conference. In the evening Gen. Pershing was the dinner guest of Gen. Lord Brooke.

A further contingent of American officers arrived at a British port today on the steamer that brought Foreign Secretary Balfour. The officers were met by representatives of the American Embassy.

Tomorrow Gen. Pershing and staff will attend a service at Westminster Abbey. The General will dine with Ambassador Page on Monday, at which time he will meet Premier Lloyd George and his chief associates in the Cabinet. Other guests will be Paul Cambon, the French Ambassador, and Vice Admiral Sims, U. S. N.

Detailed stories of the landing of Gen. Pershing and his party at Liverpool and their arrival in London, fill a large part of the leading news columns in the morning papers. Arangements for the stay of the Americans in England, plans for the future, biographies and portraits of the American General and pictures of his reception in Liverpool, crowd the news from the front into second place.

Significance of Arrival.

The editorials, while welcoming Gen. Pershing, personally, comment particularly on the significance of the arrival of the American advance guard as a symbol of "perhaps the greatest of all the great events in the midst of which we are living—so visibly great that none can pretend to foresee what the full harvest will be for the English-speaking world and the sacred doctrines it accepts."

Emphasis is also laid on the certainty of ultimate victory which American co-operation is believed to insure. A typical expression of this American confidence reads:

"Ours is the burden of today, but the burden is made light by the knowledge that the co-operation of the United States ensures the glory of tomorrow."

In an editorial entitled "The First on English Soil," the Times says:

"It was the privilege of England yesterday to welcome Gen. Pershing and his staff to her shores. It was such a welcome as the times demand, and the customary honors were, of course, paid to the distinguished soldier who has crossed the ocean to lead the armies of the republic in the great fight for freedom. They were paid with unfeigned warmth which could not be misunderstood.

"The greetings remain a symbol of an event—perhaps the greatest of all the great events in which we live—the consequences and even the character of which are such as to dim our eyes.

English-Speaking Race United.

"The presence of Gen. Pershing and his companions upon English soil is a palpable sign of a movement which in its broadest aspects is so visibly great that none can pretend to foresee all its effects. But it is also a movement so wholesome that all Englishmen and, as we believe, all Americans, feel instinctively it must work out for the good patriotic and sagacious men on both sides of the Atlantic have foretold it and prayed that it might be, but until German ruthlessness showed of what militarism is capable, few hoped it would be accomplished in their day. Now it has come and the English-speaking world stands together in arms to vindicate with united strength together with its allies, the principles which all its states and peoples ever have most dearly prized.

"We welcome Gen. Pershing and his staff because they are standard-bearers of the great republic in a crusade for the moral foundations on which it rests and are forerunners of mighty hosts who are making ready to share in it."

DOCTOR SAYS MAN TRIED BRIBERY TO EVADE DRAFT LAW

Louis Bialock Arrested on Charge That Carries $20,000 Fine and 15 Years in Prison.

SON'S EXEMPTION SOUGHT

Dr. F. L. Morse Says $500 Was Offered and $100 Given Him to "Remember No. 13."

Louis Bialock, 50 years old, proprietor of a grocery store at 3624 Dodier street, and of a dry goods store at 4830 North Broadway, was arrested at the latter establishment yesterday, charged with attempting to bribe a registration board physician to exempt his son, Anton Bialock, from the army draft.

Dr. Frank L. Morse of 2254 Athlone avenue, medical member of the Twenty-first Ward Registration Board, says Bialock gave him $100, in the effort to induce him to see to the matter of exemption for young Bialock. Dr. Morse told a Post-Dispatch reporter the circumstances of the alleged attempt, which he said was made at his office, 2504 North Fourteenth street.

Doctor Details Circumstances.

Dr. Morse said that, soon after he was named on the Registration Board, Bialock came to him for treatment for a pain in the side. At that time, the physician said, he mentioned the fact that his son was of registration age and offered Dr. Morse $500 to keep him from being drafted. "No one will ever know," he remarked, according to Dr. Morse.

The physician replied that such a proposal was wholly improper and unlawful, and warned Bialock to drop the idea. He said Bialock returned to the office Friday afternoon, consulted him again about his ailment, and then, as he was leaving the office, extended his hand. As Dr. Morse shook hands with him, he said, he felt a roll of bills in his palm, and heard Bialock say, "A little package for you, doctor. Remember No. 13." Young Bialock's number in the ward registration list was 13, the physician said. There were 10 $10 bills in the roll, he declared.

Another patient was entering the office and Dr. Morse says he did not have an opportunity to follow Bialock. He took the money, Friday evening, to E. A. Raithel, chairman of the ward board, and Raithel informed the Federal authorities.

The offense charged against Bialock is punishable by a fine as high as $20,000 or imprisonment in the penitentiary for not more than 15 years, or both, with disqualification from ever holding any position under the United States Government.

Ballock's wife said he was a native of Russia, had been in the United States more than 30 years and was naturalized more than 20 years ago. She said she knew nothing of any attempt by him to keep their son out of the army.

Dr. Morse said he did not believe Bialock, even after his warning, realized the gravity of his contemplated offense.

Late in the evening Bialock was released on $5000 bond. His attorney announced that a statement would not be made in Bialock's behalf at this time.

Bonds of Two Aliens Sent to Washington for Approval.

Otto Bischoff of 809 Bremen avenue and Hans Fonseca of 1111 Salisbury street, German subjects, charged with being dangerous alien enemies of the United States, had a hearing yesterday before United States Commissioner Mitchell on the question of admitting them to bond.

The Commissioner fixed their bonds at $2000 each, but they had to go back to the city jail, pending approval of the bonds in the office of the Attorney-General in Washington. This will take a week or longer.

The men have been in jail for a month. They were former employes of a chemical plant and they were arrested on reports that they had talked of making explosives. Chemicals were found at Fonseca's house.

Under their bonds, if approved, they will be permitted to go anywhere in St. Louis north of Market street. L. E. Hildenbrandt of 1103 North Compton avenue, and J. F. Kreigeler of East St. Louis are the prospective bondsmen.

TORPEDO MISSES AMERICAN STEAMER BY TWO YARDS

Gun Crew Fires on Submarine—Sixteen of 40 Men Missing From Southland Rescued.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The State Department late today received a dispatch through official channels reporting that an unnamed American vessel in the war zone had recently escaped an enemy torpedo by two yards.

The periscope of the attacking submarine was plainly seen and the gun crew on the American steamer fired on the U-boat. It was impossible to tell certainly whether the gunners scored a successful hit.

The State Department also received today a consular telegram stating that one of the two missing boats of the big British steamer Southland has been picked up. The boat contained 16 of the 44 men reported missing. The other boat, with 28 men, is still unaccounted for. The dispatch stated that it is not definitely known whether the missing American, Rigney, is among those in the boat picked up.

Official advices reached the State Department that the Argentine schooner Oriano was shelled and then sunk by a bomb on June 6. The crew was saved and landed. This incident is expected to further inflame public sentiment in Argentine against Germany.

American Steamer Running Fight With U-Boat in Bay of Biscay.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 9.—A running fight with a German submarine in which 42 shots were fired, was reported today by the armed American steamship Virginian upon her arrival from a French port.

The Virginia was not damaged. The gun's crew did not know whether any damage had been done to the submarine. The fight occurred in the Bay of Biscay May 30.

The submarine opened the engagement by firing a torpedo which missed its mark. Twenty-six shots were fired by the submarine and the Virginian, which is owned by the American-Hawaiian Steamship Co., replied with 16.

ERROR AS TO AGE SAVES MAN

Government Not to Prosecute for Draft Registration Failure.

Samuel Sapotnitzky of 617A Kansas avenue, who was charged in a Federal Warrant with failing to register Tuesday, will not be prosecuted.

He has registered and the Federal officials have accepted his statement that he believed himself to be past his thirty first birthday. His naturalization papers, however, showed that he was within the age limits.

TAX ON CABARET PATRONS IS PUT IN WAR MEASURE

Senate Committee Reduces Auto License and Abandons Taxation on Confectionery.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—After adopting a new reduced Federal license tax on automobiles, abandoning taxation on confectionery and approving a tax on cabaret patrons, the Senate Finance Committee suspended its revision of the war tax bill today until Monday, with wide disagreements remaining among the members on income, publishers' and excess profits rates. The bill probably will not be completed until late next week.

The new automobile schedule imposes on owners of pleasure motor cars a minimum tax of $5, with graduation upward, based virtually at 1 per cent upon the original selling price. A reduction allowance is made upon used cars ranging up to 50 per cent.

Text of Cabaret Section.

The cabaret tax section, which the committee estimates would raise between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, reads:

"A tax of 1 cent shall be collected for each 10 cents or fraction thereof paid for admission to any public performance for profit at any cabaret or other similar entertainment to which the charge for admission is wholly or in part included in the price paid for refreshments, service or merchandise; the amount paid for such admission to be computed under rules prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, such tax to be paid by the person paying for such refreshment, service or merchandise."

Taxation of candy was eliminated at the suggestion of Senator Williams, who pointed out that sugar and cocoa taxes already agreed upon would cover the principal ingredients of confectionery.

Committee differences on the income, excess profits and publishers' tax sections are said to be extreme. Senator Gore announced today that he will present a minority report, and other members are reserving the right to offer amendments in the Senate.

On the question of taxing publishers there is a particularly wide disagreement. None would predict the ultimate outcome tonight, except to say that some form of taxation is certain. Senator La Follette today proposed, in lieu of taxing advertising receipts or raising postage rates, a direct tax of 5, 10 or even 20 per cent upon publishers' net incomes.

On the Farm, in the City, or Battlefield

WILLIAM G. McADOO, Secretary of the Treasury, in giving the signal that started the King on its 7-day non-motor-stop run in St. Paul–Minneapolis honored with his presence the placing of one more block on the carefully reared structure of King RELIABILITY.

The stock car which began that seven-day test had already traveled 29,550 miles, and is the same car used in the famous 10,850 mile non-motor-stop run at Sheepshead Bay under official A. A. A. supervision.

King RELIABILITY was most adequately proved when the United States Government, after the most severe official tests, adopted the King chassis for armored cars.

It has been proved by high-gear climbing achievements on Mt. Wilson, the San Bernardino Mountains, Mt. Hilo, Mt. Diablo, and Lookout Mountain.

It has been proved by the "sealed-in-high-gear" non-stop and fuel-economy tests made in California, Colorado, Virginia, New York and seven other states—every test either officially conducted or made under impartial supervision.

It is being proved daily by the satisfactory operation of King cars all over America and in fifty-two foreign countries—in every climate and on all kinds of roads.

The King deserves your consideration if you intend spending $1,000 or more for a car. Its performance, appearance and comfort may persuade you to pay its price—or make you doubt the necessity of paying more than its price.

THOUSANDS IN SPRINGFIELD AWAIT KIDNAPPERS, EXPECTING A LYNCHING

SHERIFF WITH SUSPECTS IN KEET KIDNAPPING CASE SOUGHT REFUGE IN HILLS

police station to inquire as to the progress of the search for the Keet baby. The six others had been arrested earlier. Piersol is said to have made many admissions about the other alleged kidnaping plots being investigated, but to hav denied any complicity in the Keet case. The members of the Adams family have had no fixed employment, but have worked at various jobs.

An announcement was made tonight that an inquest over the Keet baby's body would be held here Monday.

Sheriff and Prisoner Reported Overtaken 40 Miles From Clinton

CLINTON, Mo., June 9.—It was reported here, shortly before midnight, that the sheriff of Green County and his prisoners, the suspects in the Keet kidnaping and murder case, had been captured by a band of pursuers from Springfield at Caplinger's Mills, Cedar Countq, 40 miles south of Clinton. The sheriff, it was reported, agreed to take his prisoners back to Springfield, on condition that no violence should be attempted, and the pursuers agreed to this, after having exacted from the prisoners the promise that they would tell all they knew of the kidnaping on their arrival at Springfeld.

The reports as to the capture of the Sheriff and his prisoners was brought here by the crew of a train which had passed near the scene of the capture. It followed earlier reports by telephone from Humansville, Polk County, that the Springfield Sheriff had been surrounded near Caplinger's Mills, a few miles west of Humansville, and had taken to the woods with his prisoners. A number of men from Humansville, it was stated, had joined the pursuing party.

The attempt to make an automobile dash from Springfield to Clinton, a distance of 100 miles, was made by Sheriff Webb and his deputies in three automobiles. The machines got as far as Osceola, St. Clair County, 24 miles south of here, when they were flanked by the pursuing cars and turned back. At Caplinger's Mills, the Sheriff abandoned two of his automobiles, and sent a deputy to Clinton in the third car, to ask for help.

This deputy arrived in Clinton at 10:20, and went at once to Sheriff Runner of Henry County, who had already sworn in six special deputies at the request of Prosecuting Attorney O'Day of Springfield. Runner, his deputies and O'Day, with two relatives of the Keet family who had accompanied him here from Springfield, at once chartered a special train of an engine and freight caboose, which left at 10:15 for Humansville.

Earlier in the evening a large crowd had gathered about the Henry County jail here, in the expectation that the prisoners would be brought here. This crowd was increased with the arrival of the 9:15 train, by a large deputation of Springfield residents, who had followed O'Day here.

When the Springfield Sheriff's deputy dashed into town in his machine, there was great excitement, as it was believed that he carried some of the prisoners. But after the local officials had left, the crowd for the most part dispersed, believing that there was no further likelihood of seeing the prisoners in Clinton.

Keet Baby's Body Found in Well on Farm Eight Miles from Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 9.—The body of Lloyd Keet, the 14-months-old son of J. Holland Keet, wealthy banker, who was kidnapped the night of May 30, was found in an old well on the deserted Crenshaw farm, near here, named as the headquarters of an alleged abducting band, shortly before noon today. The body was brought to Springfield from the farm, eight miles Southwest of here, and identified by the father and the mother.

Working on private information that the body might be found on the farm, friends of Keet and private detectives went there for the search. The body, wrapped apparently in the same blanket in which the baby slept when it disappeared, was floating on the water. Death seemingly was from drowning.

No Marks Upon Body.

There were no marks upon the baby's body, excepting a little bruise on the face, probably received when the baby was thrown into the well.

A coil of old wire was tied around the body.

Manny Simmons, Edward Conklin, Charles Holland and Dick Crenshaw, business men of this city, were present when the body was taken out.

Charles Holland held Simmons by the feet and lowered him into the well.

"I see something," said Simmons.

It was the body.

Simmons was given a pole, with which he fished the bundle out of the well.

"It's the baby," said one of the men when the bundle was opened. Simmons identified the body, which showed signs of having been in the water three or four days.

Immediately Conklin and Simmons returned to the city eight miles away, with the body.

On the way they met Joe Keet, a brother of J. Holland Keet. Once again the bundle was opened.

"It's Lloyd," he cried.

Half an hour after the body was placed in the morgue, hundreds of persons viewed it.

Mother Hears News.

Mrs. Keet had been advised only a few minutes before the body was found that the Sheriff of Christian County, trailing two men in the hills of that county, had found the baby and that it would be returned before night. She was chatting with friends and relatives, cheerfully discussing the long hoped-for finding of little Lloyd, when her husband came in. His face was pallid; he had ben told that his son was dead.

"What is the news?" she asked.

"We have bad news," he said. "The baby is not well. I think they have found him."

"Not well?" she echoed. "Of course, but they must have taken good care of him."

"It's worse than that," the father replied. "Our baby is dead."

Mrs. Keet was led from the room, prostrated with grief. She was placed under the care of physicians, who expressed grave concern for her.

Prosecutor O'Day was in the party which discovered the body. When he saw the body was that of a baby, he hurried into a farm house and used a telephone. Soon afterward, in the city, ten automobiles went to the county jail and all the prisoners were put into the machines and taken away quietly. When O'Day and the other searchers reached Springfield an hour later, the prisoners, in charge of Sheriff Webb, were many miles away.

Almost coincident with the finding of the body the announcement was made that Federal authorities had joined in the investigation of the alleged abduction plot activities of the seven persons being held. Officials have been endeavoring to connect them with plans to kidnap C. A. Clement, a wealthy jeweler here, and an unnamed baby.

Crenshaw House Recently Used.

The investigation late today of the Crenshaw house revealed that it possibly had been used recently. As it was named, according to authorities, in statements given by the alleged plotters, that fact was considered of importance. A cot on the second floor showed signs of having been used within a few days, apparently by a man. The outlines of a woman's feet were shown in the dust of the porch and a broken window on the second floor was thought to have provided entrance after one of the abductors had climbed a porch post.

The house itself is situated about three-quarters of a mile from the Campbel street road. It was thought to be an ideal spot from which a plot could have been carried out, as it was secluded. If the abductors had demanded $6000 from J. Holland Keet, the father, for the return of the child, the exchange could have been made there in comparatively safety. In addition, the top of the house was high enough so that a lookout there could have observed the country for a considerable distance.

THE automobile, carrying the two kidnapers was driven up to the Keet home on Pickwick street. The machine, after two of the kidnapers left it, was then turned around and driven to Catalpa street but a few yards away back of the Keet property. One kidnaper took his station under a window of the Keet bungalow, which was one-and-one-half stories in height. The other entered the house through an unlocked door, went noiselessly across a sun porch to Baby Keet's room, lifted him from his crib and, raising a window and the screen alongside of the crib, thrust him through it to the other kidnaper waiting outside. Then the man in the house left as he had entered and the two men with the baby sped away in the automobile. Throughout all this scene, the baby's nurse, Ida McCammon, sleeping in an adjoining room with Lloyd's brother James, 3 years old, was not disturbed. She knew nothing of the disappearance of the baby until the child's mother, who had returned from a dance, gave the alarm.

How Keet Baby Was Stolen—10-Day Search for Him and Final Tragedy

Detailed Account of All That Has Become Publicly Known About the Abduction of Wealthy Springfield, Mo., Couple's Boy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 9.—The Post-Dispatch presents herewith all that is publicly known about the abduction of Lloyd Keet, the ten days' search for him and his death at the hands of his abductors.

He was 14 months old and was the child of Mr. and Mrs. J. Holland Keet.

Keet is the manager of the $500,000 Keet estate which he will inherit at the death of his mother, Mrs. Kate H Keet. Although not wealthy in his own right, he has an ample income, an assured place in the community and the confidence of bankers and the home into which the child was born was one of refinement and plenty in the Meadowmere neighborhood southeast of the city limits.

There was a dance on the evening of Decoration day at the Country Club and Mr. and Mrs. Keet went, leaving the two children, Lloyd and 3-year-old James, in charge of Ida McCammon, the nurse. Lloyd was early put to bed in his own bed in the room just back of the sun parlor and later James was put to bed.

About 10:30 o'clock the maid, according to her story, went into Lloyd's room to see that he was tucked in and then she went to bed in the room which she and James shared back of the one in which Lloyd slept.

Baby Had Room to Sleep.

Lloyd had a room to himself because it connected not only with that of the maid but with that of Mr. and Mrs. Keet. His bed was in one of the inside corners. The door leading to the sun parlor was not locked. Neither was the door leading from the sun parlor to the front porch.

They were careless about locking the doors at the Keet home. If anything was said about it Mrs. Keet laughed. Burglars did not come to Meadowmere place, she said. She wore her jewels when she went out and her silver was marked with her full name and she did not think burglars would want it.

In the hour, more or less, that intervened between the visit of the maid to the baby's room and the return of the parents, an automobile came swiftly out Pickwick avenue and stopped at the driveway to the Keet grounds. Two men stepped from it and it backed quickly to the corner of Catalpa street, at the rear of the Keet grounds, and stopped in the middle of the block. All this was ascertained afterwards from neighbors who, at the time, did not suspect a crime was being committed.

The two men went to the front of the house. They separated at the porch. One went to the side of the house and stood under one of the windows of the baby's room. It is deduced from the subsequent developments that the other noiselessly entered the sun parlor and opened the door to the baby's room. There was no light except that from a tiny night lamp beside the baby's bed.

The man stepped to the window at which he knew his confederate was waiting and raised the screen. Then he went back to the bed and lifted the child, wrapped in its eiderdown quilt (the same one in which its little body was found 10 days later) and carried it to the window and passed it to the waiting confederate.

He left the house as he had entered and joined his confederate in the shadows and they hurried away, through an opening in the stone wall at the back of the grounds, and crossed a vacant lot to Catalpa street and the automobile sped away with the kidnapers and the sleeping child.

Mrs. Keet told the Post-Dispatch staff correspondent a few days ago about the discovery that her baby had been stolen.

"We left the club rather early," she said, and I think it must have been about 11:30 when we reached home.

"I went at once to baby's room. He was not in his bed. My first thought was that Ida had taken him into her bed and I went to her room, but he was not there.

"I awakened her and she drew on a kimono and came into his room. Then we noticed that the bed clothing was gone. Still I was not alarmed. It came into my mind that the cook might have taken him up to her room, but he was not there.

"I felt sure, then, that he had climbed out of bed and had crawled into another room or under the bed, taking the bed clothing with him. We looked under the bed and in the other rooms, and then we knew that he was gone."

Neighbors were called and the police were notified and the hours dragged as the anguished parents waited for the dawn which they hoped would throw some light on the mystery. It threw no light except to offer mute evidence that the child had indeed been carried away. It was not until after daylight that the windows of the baby's room were examined. The shades had been lowered. When they were raised the raised screen was discovered. Beneath the window the ground was trampled.

Letter Demanding Ransom.

At 6 o'clock that morning a letter was dropped in a street box on the Springfield public square. It was addressed to "Mr. Holand Keat," in care of the Holland Bank, of which Keet was formerly an officer. It was from one of the kidnapers. It contained a piece of the baby's nightgown.

It demanded $6000 as the price of the baby's return. It gave specific directions. He was to flash a signal at 10 o'clock that night from the top of a building on the public square and then drive alone in his automobile over a described route of about 50 miles through Greene and Christian counties, carrying with him the $6000.

At a signal he was to stop and then drive ahead 100 yards and leave the money beside a lantern, and on returning to the spot where he had been stopped he would find instructions that would take him to his child.

And if he failed to carry out the instructions or made any attempt to have the kidnapers captured, the baby's life would be the forfeit.

Keet did not fail and he did not try to have the kidnapers captured. He flashed the signal from the high building and started alone on the long night ride. It was a fearful night. The rain came down in torrents and the darkness was only relieved by the lightning's flashes.

He had been directed in the letter to ride with the top of his automobile lowered and he had no protection from the storm. He drove four hours at the rate of 12 miles an hour, as he had been directed, straining eyes and ears for the hoped-for signal, but there was no signal. And when he returned to his waiting wife in the Meadowmere home he neither had the child nor tidings of its fate.

The next day another letter came. It gave as the reason for not carrying out the compact that had been proposed that there were too many people abroad on the roads. Although it was not of Keet's doing, it seems that some of his friends, wishing to be not far off if he needed them and possibly hoping to capture the kidnapers, were out in automobiles, not following Keet's machine, but driving about over the section through which his route lay.

Second Set of Instructions.

In the second letter the child-stealers said they would write again and give Keet new instructions about where to go and what to do. They did write again and gave other instructions and Keet again rode forth in the night and drove hour after hour, but the abductors gave no sign and he again returned with empty arms and aching heart to the woman who waited in Meadowmere.

Keet was not only willing to pay the $6000 that had been demanded, but he was willing to pay all that he possessed and impoverish himself of home and borrow to the limit of his credit. He feared that if attempts were made to capture the kidnapers they would kill the baby, as they had threatened to do. Officials and friends wanted to search every foot of the surrounding country, but he begged them to do nothing until he had paid the ransom for the child's return.

There was muttering. Men admitted that, in the same situation, they would do as Keet was doing, but the crime outraged public feeling, and there was chafing under the inaction which Keet's plan imposed. The conviction was strong that such inaction favored the success of the kidnapers and their escape, and that their success and escape would jeopardize other children's safety.

The feeling took form in a conference to which Keet was called. He was told that the men of Springfield were willing to keep hands off a reasonable time if assured that the negotiations were getting somewhere and there was a chance of the return of the child soon.

Keet told them all about it. The abductors wanted money, he said, and he was willing to pay it. They were in communication with him, and he was confident that within a few hours he would have his boy. He told them he feared that if they took any action his baby would be killed. His pleading prevailed, and it was reluctantly agreed that he should have a free hand in the further negotiations with the abductors.

But a man who had been admitted to another kidnaping plot had been to Prosecuting Attorney Paul M. O'Day and had told him things that led him to believe that Taylor Adams and his wife, Allie Adams, and their sons, Cletus and Maxie, Claud J. Piersol and Sam McGinnis might be implicated and he felt that it was his duty to have them arrested. That was done, and later George Walker, taxi driver, was also arrested on suspicion of having been the man who drove the kidnapers' car.

After that, it is understood, Keet received no more letters. His confidence, in which his wife had shared, that the baby would be returned, waned.

The man who gave information to O'Day said that when it was planned to kidnap the child of C. A. Clement, a Springfield jeweler, it was to have been taken to the deserted Crenshaw farmhouse near the city. It was conjectured that the same house might have been used in the Keet kidnaping. Search was made and indications found that the old mansion had recently been frequented.

Yesterday renewed search was made and the infant's body was found in the well.

OTHER FAMOUS KIDNAPING CASES

Charley Ross Mystery Never Solved—Eddie Cudahy and Billy Whitla Found.

The kidnaping of the Keet baby recalls other famous child-thefts of the past few decades, especially the abduction of Charley Ross, Eddie Cudahy and Billy Whitla.

The Ross child, when 5 years of age, was taken away from the home of his parents in Germantown, a suburb of Philadelphia, July 1, 1874. The boy was driven away in a wagon and $20,000 was demanded for his return. Attempts to trap the abductors failed. For the next six months Christian Ross, the father of the boy, conducted secret negotiations with the kidnapers. Suddenly communication ceased and the Ross boy has not been heard of from that day. Every now and then stories appear in newspapers that the Ross boy, who would be 44 years old, if alive, has been found. The father of the child died, convinced that the boy had been killed. The police theory at the time was that the boy had been disposed of when his captors were on the eve of being taken by the police. Several arrests were made, but no convictions were ever secured.

Eddie Cudahy was kidnaped from his Omaha home in 1900 when 14 years old. Twenty-five thousand dollars was demanded for the return of the child and it was paid. Although it has generally been assumed that the child was stolen by Pat Crowe, a jury acquitted him.

The Whitla child was kidnaped in March, 1909, from the family home in Sharon, Pa. He was 9 years old. A week later the child was returned in Cleveland on the payment of $10,000. Later James H. Boyle and his wife were arrested and sentenced to life for the kidnaping.

A recent St. Louis kidnaping was that of Frank Viviano, 8-year-old son of Gaetano Viviano of 5853 Waterman avenue. The child was stolen on March 1 last while on his way to school. On March 13 he was found wandering at Fourteenth and O'Fallon streets. The father admitted that he had paid the $5000 ransom demanded by the kidnapers, who thereupon had freed the child.

In 1909 two cousins of Frank Viviano, Grace and Tomasso Viviano, 3 and 5 years old, respectively, were stolen from their home at 1011 North Seventh street. Twenty-five thousand dollars was demanded for their return. Two months later the children were found in Chicago and returned. The police were never able to learn whether the ransom or any part of it was paid.

On Oct. 4, 1916, Alphonse Magarian, the 3-year-old son of A. G. Magarian, a wealthy Armenian of East St. Louis, disappeared from his home. A reward of $2000 was offered for the return of the lad. No demand for ransom was made, but on Oct. 13 the headless body of the child was found on a dump near East St. Louis. Several arrests have been made in the case. It is believed that the Magarian boy was stolen by persons seeking revenge on the father.

CROWDS WAITED IN SPRINGFIELD FOR A LYNCHING

Thousands on Street Heard Reports That Kidnaping Suspects Had Been Taken.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 9.—At 6 o'clock tonight the public square of Springfield was crowded. Roughly dressed men from the hills of the Ozarks were on hand ready for any emergency. The crowd was filled with men and women and the word "lynch" was heard everywhere.

The authorities awaited developments. Gov. Gardner was reached over the telephone shortly after 6 o'clock and was informed of the situation. He immediately ordered Company K, Second Infantry, held in readiness for duty.

Sheriff Webb first gave out the report that he intended to take the Adams family and Piersol to the Ozark Jail and started ostensibly for there. He had gone only a short distance, however, when he switched to a side street and started north on his way to Clinton.

Thousands of persons tonight surged in front of the undertaking establishment where the Keet baby lay, and took their turns in passing through to view the little body.

It was not long until plans to get possession of the suspects in the kidnaping conspiracy began to be formed Soon every town and hamlet for miles had been reached and operators were asked to be on the watch for the Sheriff and his prisoners.

Shortly the town of Bolivar, about 30 miles north of Springfield, reported that two Ford cars had just passed through and that they had paid no attention to the speed laws. This message was enough. In a few minutes dozens of speedy motor cars were hurrying north, with the Sheriff good two hours in the lead. In every village they were given confirmation that the trail was a cold one.

At the general offices of the Frisco system here an attempt was made to get a special train for the pursuit, but it was refused. Hundreds of men were ready to board the train, supplied with accessories for a lynching.

At 7 o'clock 30 men gathered in a circle on a side street. At a given signal, as in the days of the Klu Klux Klan, they raised their right hands, with heads uncovered, and vowed to avenge the death of Lloyd Keet. Into five motor cars the men tumbled and hurried north.

When night came in Springfield the crowds had gathered on the square, packing the sidewalks so densely that the street offered the only passageway. The well-dressed business man touched elbows with the plowman and women in silks and furs stood next to calico-clad matrons of the hills, who had remained in town, supperless, to witness the retribution they expected to come.

Springfield has had several sittings of the court of Judge Lynch, and it would have violated precedent for the court to hold elsewhere than on the square about which the irregular metropolis of Greene County centers. To strangers natives pointed out the four-armed light fixtures in the center of the circle. There stood the tower that was torn away after the race riot nearly a decade ago, when Judge Lynch hanged a trio of lawless negroes above their funeral pyre.

Shortly before noon today when Ed Gammon, jailor, stepped into the cell room and notified the prisoners that they were to be taken for a little ride, they apparently had no inkling of the wild ride for safety ahead of them. Mrs. Adams, a slight little figure, who has insisted that she knew nothing of any plot except the proposed Clement kidnaping, was weeping as usual.

She knew nothing of the finding of baby Keet's body in the deserted well. None had any comment to make, and thought that perhaps they were to be taken on another trip to be "sweated," an experience which they were well acquainted with. In fact, Claude Pierson was undergoing the third degree when the jailor stepped into the corridor.

The little woman, the mother of two wayward boys and the wife of Taylor Adams, her still more wayward husband, has furnished the most damaging evidence against the whole band. It is generally believed that little Lloyd was kept the first night in her home, for a tiny crib was found in her bedroom the day following her arrest.

"It's my mother's bed," was her reluctant explanation, and she would add nothing further when it wat pointed out that her mother was a little too large to sleep there in comfort. Her evidence was especially damaging against young Piersol. She said on Wednesday that Piersol had come to her house and remarked that the baby would never be found, and it was going to go hard with somebody. She declared she did not know what he meant.

Another member of the Adams family has furnished damaging evidence against Piersol. Young Cletus said the other day that he had taken Piersol to the old Crenshaw home since the Keet kidnaping. At first he declared that both trips were made in the day time, but later he admitted that one of the visits was at night. When the two boys confronted each other Piersol declared that he had not been near the place in the last four years, or at least no closer than the road which ran a half mile away from the house.

In the lonely Keet home tonight, Mrs Keet is under the constant care of a physician. The Keets receive no one and will not answer the telephone. It is understood, however, that the mother has sunk into a stupor after hours of constant raving. Grave fears are expressed for her sanity.

It was learned late today that Keet first heard the news of his son's death over the telephone in his office uptown. Day after day he has gone from his home to consult with his friends and ask for their advice.

When the telephone bell rang he answered with his usual composure. The message was brief, and he hung up the received in a dazed manner.

"Lloyd is dead," he said almost mechanically, to a friend in the office, and went to break the news to his wife.

"The over-zealous officers here spoiled everything," declared one of the private detectives working on the case. "If we had been left alone we would not only have captured the kidnapers, but would have restored the baby to his parents."

Chronology of Keet Kidnaping Case

RIVERS IN THIS VICINITY AT FLOOD STAGE AND RISING

Lowlands Along Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio Submerged and Crops Destroyed.

PEOPLE LEAVE HOMES

Even if There Is No Further Rainfall Rises Will Continue to End of Week.

The Missouri, Illinois and upper Mississippi rivers are at flood and rising. They will continue to rise until the end of the week even if there is no further rainfall. If rains continue the rise will not only be greater but also will extend over a longer period.

Without additional rainfall the Mississippi will continue to rise until Thursday, when the stage will be 31 feet, which is one foot above flood stage. The rise here yesterday was .9 of a foot from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., at which hour the stage was 28.5 feet. It will continue to rise at about the same rate the ensuing 24 hours.

Lawlands along the three principal streams and their tributaries are submerged and thousands of acres of crops, mostly corn, have been destroyed. Lowland dwellers have been driven from their homes.

Steamers Unable to Land.

Calhoun County packets which arrived yesterday reported that between Clarksville and Grafton few landings could be made on the Missouri side because the water was over the bank. There is a chance that if the flood subsides rapidly more corn can be planted.

The Weather Bureau's river bulletin yesterday showed that at Hannibal the water was almost four feet above flood stage; at Keokuk it was within a few inches of flood stage and at other up-river points the flood stage had been reached as passed.

The Illinois River has been at flood stage from Peoria to its mouth at Grafton for several days, following a rise of seven feet in one night.

Most of the water that is covering the Missouri lowlands along the Mississippi is coming out of the Des Moines, Fox and Grand rivers, which are on a rampage. The Grand River has been dangerously high for several days. The iron bridge between Trenton and Edinburg, Mo., was damaged. The whole country around Chillicothe, Trenton, Princeton, Mill Grove, Mercer and Spickard is inundated and the growing grain of hundreds of fields has been destroyed.

Town's Streets Under Water.

The streets of Pattonsburg have been under water and appeals have been sent to Trenton for motor boats. Train service on the Quincy, Omaha and Kansas City railroad was abandoned Wednesday. No through trains are running East or West on the Rock Island. At Wabash crossing the road is under water and trains go to that point and are sent back East. Trains from Kansas City proceed only as far as that crossing and turn back. Mails each way are transferred in boats. Several Milwaukee trains have been detoured over the Rock Island.

The flood reached its crest at Hannibal yesterday at 18.1 feet, the highest with one exception in 10 years. The Fabius Levee District was the greatest sufferer. Most of its 14,000 acres of growing crops are under water. The damage is large. The current tore holes through the recently completed $400,000 levee. Many families were marooned.

Hannibal train service is demoralized. A washout of 2000 feet of track between Mark and West Quincy has stopped traffice between Hannibal and Quincy and between Palmyra and Quincy. Trains are being retoured. Officials do not expect to have the service restored for a week. The Sny levee, opposite Hannital, is holding. The Marian County Levee District, north of Hannibal is holding, but is in danger. Many families have fled to higher ground.

Rapid Rise at St. Charles.

The Missouri River at St. Charles rose an inch an hour yesterday, registering 26.8 feet, which is 20 inches above the flood stage. The water is spreading over the bottoms in St. Louis County, across from St. Charles. Hundreds of acres of wheat, almost in bloom, corn and garden truck are threatened with destruction. Farmers in lowlands are moving to higher ground. A stage of more than 30 feet is expected by Wednesday. K Company, First Missouri Infantry, in camp on the rifle range near St. Charles, is ready to move to higher ground.

The Missouri River along the south part of Callaway County has inundated hundreds of acres of corn and wheat land and is still rising, making the situation the most serious since the flood of 1903. Yesterday afternoon water was almost over the tracks of the Chicago & Alton Railroad at South Cedar. The dike at Steedman is still holding, although workmen had to quit when high water came. It is estimated that the river will rise two more feet which would mean inundation of all valuable bottom land in the southern port of the county. The dike at Wainewright, built last year to protect valuable bottom land, has yielded to pressure of water and all that section is flooded.

Missing Girl's Mother Has Man Arrested.

Paul Anel, 28 years old, of 1023 North Eighth street, was arrested yesterday on complaint of Mrs. Mary Dickerson of 2717 Franklin avenue, who told the police she believed he knew something as to the whereabouts of her daughter, Clara, 18, who has not been home since last Tuesday. Anel said he knew the young woman, but denied that he knew her whereabouts.

BALFOUR HOME, SAYS U. S. TREATED HIM ROYALLY

London Plans for Celebration for Foreign Minister—"Hello, Old Chap," He Greets Ambassador Page.

LONDON, June 9.—Foreign Secretary Balfour arrived at a British port this morning on his return from his trip to America at the head of the British mission.

Mr. Balfour at once departed for London, arriving here this afternoon.

Mr. Balfour's return from America is to be celebrated by the corporation of the city of London by the bestowal of honors upon the Foreign Secretary. He will be the guest of the city at the Guild Hall, where he will be presented with an address as a tribute to his work in the United States and is also to be the guest of honor at the Independence Day banquet of the American Society of London.

Secretary Balfour was met on his arrival in London by Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador, and a representative of Premier Lloyd George.

"I thing there is nothing to say at present except that we had an entirely successful trip and enjoyed every minute of it," said Mr. Balfour to the correspondents, "I was never more royally treated in my life."

Ambassador Page had a short conversation with the Foreign Secretary who expressed his pleasure at the success of his trip and asked the Ambassador to fix an early date for a meeting when the two could more fully discuss the Foreign Secretary's visit to the United States.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The safe arrival of British Foreign Secretary Balfour at a British port brought deep satisfaction to officials here who surrounded his visit to this country with greater precautions and secrecy than probably ever prevailed before. The newspapers especially, though fully aware of Mr. Balfour's movements, co-operated loyally under voluntary censorship to allow no mention of Mr. Balfour's routes or times of departure to be published. Newspaper correspondents knew but did not disclose Mr. Balfour's departure from the continent.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA'S SPRING TOUR DEFICIT WAS $9837.34

Chamber of Commerce Sends Appeal to Members for Contributions of $5 or $10 Each.

The Chamber of Commerce has sent an appeal to its members for contributions of $5 or $10 each, to meet the deficit of the Symphony Orchestra's recent tour of 18 cities in St. Louis' trade territory.

The tour was made under a $10,000 guarantee, to cover any deficit. The deficit was $9837.34, and the Members' Conference of the Chamber was expected to raise this amount, but it raised only $5407. Hence an appeal has to be made to the general membership for the balance, $4430.34.

The orchestra gave concerts between April 22 and May 13 in Cape Girardeau and Tarkio, Mo., Little Rock and Helena, Ark., New Orleans, Shreveport and Natchitoches, La., Houston, Austin, Belton, Sherman, Denton and Paris Tex., Muskogee and Tulsa, Ok., Lawrence, Kan., and Omaha and Lincoln Neb. The total attendance was 27,550, and the total receipts were $16,465.20. The aggregate expenses of the tour, as set forth in the circular letters sent to members of the Chamber of Commerce, were $26,302.54.

50 BODIES TAKEN FROM BUTTE MINE, 148 MEN MISSING

Shaft of Granite Mountain Workings Caves In, Virtually Dooming Buried Men.

BUTTE, Mont., June 9.—Fifty bodies had been recovered from the Speculator and Granite Mountain properties of the North Butte Mining Co. late this afternoon, and 148 more of the 412 miners who went on shift last night before the fire was discovered were still missing. Hope of finding these men alive has virtually been abandoned.

The Granite Mountain shaft, where the fire started on the 2400-foot level from contact of a carbide lamp flame with the frayed tar, soaked cambric insulation of a huge cable, has caved in for a considerable distance, and all smoke and gas being fanned out of the miles of underground workings is pouring out of the collar of the shaft.

Miners from adjoining properties ordered up from under ground as a precaution, went to work as rescuing gangs, aiding national guardsmen who had been called to the scene. Because of the smoke and the danger, they were able to do little, until the arrival of safety-first cars from Red Lodge and Colorado Springs.

Escape From Upper Level.

Warning of their danger came in time to permit men on the upper levels to escape. They immediately formed rescue parties and attempted to go down the shaft to the men who are, it is thought, entombed. Their efforts were fruitless.

One hour after the outbreak of the fire, L. D. Frink, superintendent, M. D. Conners, foreman, and N. D. Brawley, general manager of the Granite Shaft, owned by the North Butte Co., declared they could account for 213 out of 415 who were in the shaft when the fire started.

John Coffemetten and John Boyce, who were the first two men to be taken from the shaft alive, told of sustaining their lives by cutting the air hose and sucking the air by turns until the rescue party arrived. They were on the 700-foot level at the outbreak of the fire.

According to miners who escaped the fire started from flames of a carbide lamp. The men were told to report to the timekeeper as they emerged from the mine; 211 had so reported, soon after the rescue work started, out of the 415 who went down in the night shift.

Two men who were working on the 700-foot level reported that 48 had perished on the level where they worked, they alone being saved.

All ambulances in Butte and all physicians in the city were summoned to the scene of the accident to co-operate with national guardsmen and rescue parties. Every safety first expert in the district has also been summoned and it is estimated that within a few hours 220 safety first men, trained to mine rescue work, will be at the Speculator and Granite Mountain shafts.

The Speculator is a tramway mine and runs through Granite Mountain. Men equipped with safety helmets to withstand the effect of smoke and fumes entered the Speculator shaft first, but were compelled to retire soon afterward.

BOND LOAN SLOW IN NORTHWEST

Campaign in Agricultural Districts Called Disappointing.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 9.—Returns from the Liberty Loan campaign in the agricultural districts of the Northwest have been disappointing, and unless there is a greater response next week the loan in this district may be a failure, according to a statement by the Ninth District Federal Reserve Bank.

The loan was successful in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Great Falls, Mont., and other centers.

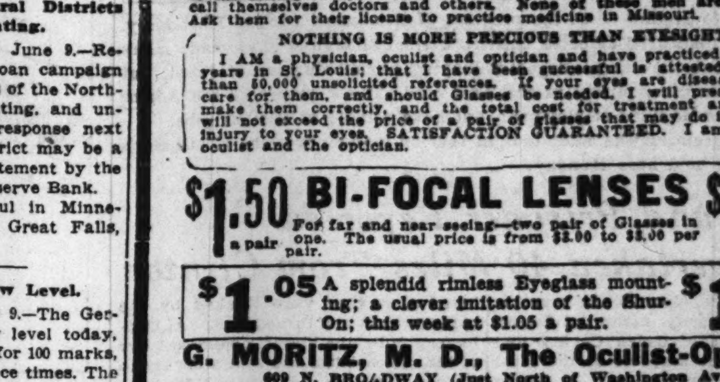
CHANDLER SIX



Now $1395
July 1st $1595

The price of the Chandler Six, pioneer of all light sixes and now the leader more distinctly than ever before, advances $200 at the close of business June 30th. On and after July 1st, the price will be $1595.

Car Continues Identically The Same

There will be no change of any nature in the Chandler at the new price. The present series, greatest in Chandler history, will be continued without alteration.

The Chandler Company has striven to avoid this advance in price. But the advance is unavoidable. It would have been justified months ago. Almost every item in cost of production has advanced materially.

The $1395 price could have been continued only by cheapening the car. And the Chandler car has never been cheapened.

Will Still Offer Much Excess Value

At the new price the Chandler will still offer excess value. Distinctive Chandler features—Bosch High Tension Magneto Ignition; solid cast aluminum crank case extending from frame to frame; annular ball bearings in transmission, differential and rear wheels; silent chain drive for motor shafts, and many other features characteristic of the finest high-priced cars—are not found in other cars selling so low as the advanced Chandler price.

At the present $1395 price, there is no other six comparable to the Chandler in design, equipment and performance.

TRUSTEES RESIST GRAHAM EFFORT TO RECOVER PROPERTY

Former Official of Paper Company Seeks to Create New Trust in Wife's Interest.

TWO ARMY MEN TESTIFY

Physician and Chauffeur Say He Did Not Appear Inacapble When Signing Document.

The attempt of Henry B. Graham of Hampton Park, St. Louis County, former secretary of the Graham Paper Co., to take his property, estimated at $600,000 in value, out of the hands of its present trustees, John E. Bishop and the American Trust Co., and place it in the hands of new trustees whom he can remove at pleasure, is being actively resisted by Bishop and the trust company. Depositions have been taken by them in the past week, in preparation for the hearing of Graham's suit, Wednesday, in Judge Cave's court.

The interest of Graham's fourth wife, Georgina M. Graham, in his property, is involved in the controversy. Under the present trusteeship, created by Graham in May, 1916, Mrs. Graham, to whom he was married last July, has no interest in the property, and in case of Graham's death it would go to his three children by a former marriage. Graham is seeking to create a new trust which shall give his wife a dower interest.

Mrs. Graham was formerly Miss Georgina Shore of 6123 Westminster place, and was a sister of Miss Vera Shore, a divorcee, to whom Graham had been attentive. Vera Shore sued Graham, after the marriage, for breach of promise, and obtained a verdict for $4000.

Graham's suit to set aside the trusteeship was filed March 17 by Peter H. McFarland and Paul V. Janis, whom Graham had named, in a contract signed a few days before, as the new trustees of his property, removable at his pleasure. The present trustees, Bishop and the American Trust Co., have filed their answer, setting forth that they have reduced Graham's debts from $150,000 to $80,000 and have at the same time paid him $500 a month. It was stipulated, in the trusteeship deed, that Graham should receive this monthly income, the remainder of the income from his property being applied on his debts.

In his suit to remove the present trustees, Graham alleges that, at the time when he signed the deed creating the trusteeship, he was under the effect of stimulants, as a consquence of worry over his debts, and that he was not in a mental condition to understand the nature of the document. It is alleged that he understood he was to have authority to revoke the trust, but the document gives him no such authority. In their answers, the trustees declare that Graham knew what he was doing and knew that the authority he was conferring was not revocable.

The depositions of two witnesses in behalf of the present trustees were taken Friday before Harry E. Sprague as special commissioner. Dr. A. C. Leggat of 5076 Waterman avenue, who was Graham's physician, and W. H. Reed, his former chauffeur, gave the depositions, which were to the effect that, at the time in question, they did not observe that Graham was using stimulants to excess or was incapable. Both these witnesses are in the United States army service, and it was not certain that they could be present at the trial. The witnesses were examined by William T. Nardin, attorney for the defendants.

'STARTLING' FACTS PROMISED IN AUDIT OF PRISON BOOKS

Hackman Asks Board at Jefferson City to Call for His Report.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 9.—It became known here today that for two months State Auditor Hackmann has had a corps of expert accountants at work auditing the accounts of the Missouri State Penitentiary for the years 1915 and 1916. He said today that the report, when completed, would contain "startling disclosures."

At a meeting of the Board of Prison Inspectors, of which he is a member, Hackmann today introduced a resolution asking that the board call on him as Auditor for all details of his investigation so far as it has proceeded. The resolution was discussed, but action on it was postponed until Monday, when the board meets again.

Cement Contract Inquiry.

The resolution was introduced in connection with an investigation of the penitentiary cement contract, which the board has had under way for several weeks. An admission already has been obtained from Lee Jordan, who furnished the cement for a new cell building, that he charged the State with seven carloads of cement which he did not deliver, amounting to more than $3000.

The Auditor holds that under the law he is not permitted to disclose any facts obtained by auditors working under his direction until their work is completed and their report filed. If the Prison Board votes to ask for the audit he will be permitted to disclose it.

It is expected it will contain facts bearing on an explanation by Jordan that his purpose in charging the State for cement not delivered was to obtain an amount which would be approximately the same as an amount he thought the State owed him as interest on an unpaid bill.

Some firms dealing with the penitentiary are known to have been paid their money by the Central Missouri Trust Co., of which State Senator Sam B. Cook is president. The Legislature appropriated money to pay the trust company for money it advanced, with interest.

It is expected the audit will show whether the cement and lumber bills of the Jordan company were included in those paid by money advanced by the trust company.

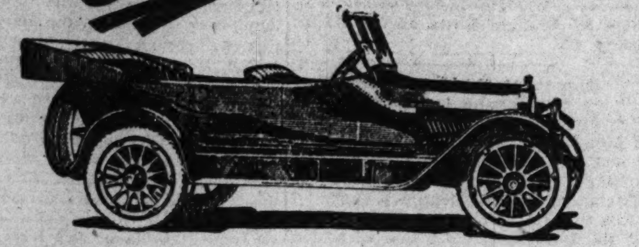
Attorney General McAllister, also a member of the Prison Board, discussing the penitentiary investigation, today said:

"I have been so busy with the legislative investigation the past week that I have had little time for the prison investigation. I am not ready to act hastily in it, and I am not willing at this time to say that I would favor permitting Jordan to pay the money back to the State and then let the whole matter drop.

"The board will consider it Monday and probably we shall at that time decide what to do."

Oldsmobile

19th Year



As an automobile purchaser you are interested in just six things: Appearance, Reputation, Durability, Performance, Service, Price.

APPEARANCE
The Oldsmobile Eight is as neat and trim as a deer. It is distinctive in every line; it attracts attention everywhere. Its 17-coat luster finish, beautiful trim and luxurious upholstery make it a car you will be proud to own.

REPUTATION
The name "Oldsmobile" in itself is a guarantee. The car is built by a factory organization of trained men, many of them nineteen years in Oldsmobile service, who have a knowledge only of the construction of a high-grade car. By reason of increased production and the elimination of well known extravagances, over one hundred high-grade automobiles are created daily under the same rigorous standards and inspection which have always been associated with the name "Oldsmobile." Where else, indeed, would one look for a car enjoying the continuous favorable reputation accorded the Oldsmobile?

DURABILITY
The same high standard of material and workmanship exacted through all these years of quality building enter into the Oldsmobile Eight. Oldsmobile reputation is a veritable bond to you for honest product and durability. Its prestige is built on years of creditable road operation.

PERFORMANCE
Remarkable flexibility, fascinating smoothness of overlapping power impulses, abundance of reserve power, rapid acceleration from snail's pace to limited's speed, freedom from vibration—all characteristic eight-cylinder construction—are perfected to highest degree. The comfort of the car is a revelation; the resiliency of the springs and Marshall cushion comfort upholstery contribute riding qualities unknown in cars of the same price class.

SERVICE
A twelve months' guarantee is back of each Oldsmobile. Service stations will be found everywhere. The accessibility of the eight-cylinder motor enables quick access to working parts and at a minimum expense. Likewise all mechanical units are readily get-atable.

PRICE
Not several thousands or some other prohibitive amount, as demanded for most cars of its quality class, but simply $1367.00 f. o. b. Lansing.

WE want to know how many car users realize the serious damage that is done to their motor, such as burned out cylinders, distorted pistons, etc., which practically means a ruined engine—if their car is run when the cooling system is not operating properly.

We want to find out how many motor car owners realize how much gas they are wasting, producing excessive carbon with all of its bad effects together with entirely upsetting their lubrication, when their pump circulated motor is over-cooled.

Garage men, automobile and accessory dealers, all know these things. Go to at least two accessory dealers or garage men and ask them the answers to the questions below. They will gladly give you the information. Then write your letter to us.

These Are the Questions

1—What serious damage is done to an automobile motor when the water in the cooling system has boiled over, and the car is run with an overheated motor.

2—To what conditions (both while running and otherwise) is due the excessive heat that causes the motor to overheat.

3—What provision can be made to prevent a motor from being either over-heated or over-cooled?

4—Which is the best cooling system for an automobile motor and why?

5—Give the worst experience you (or any of your friends) have ever had, due to an overheated motor.

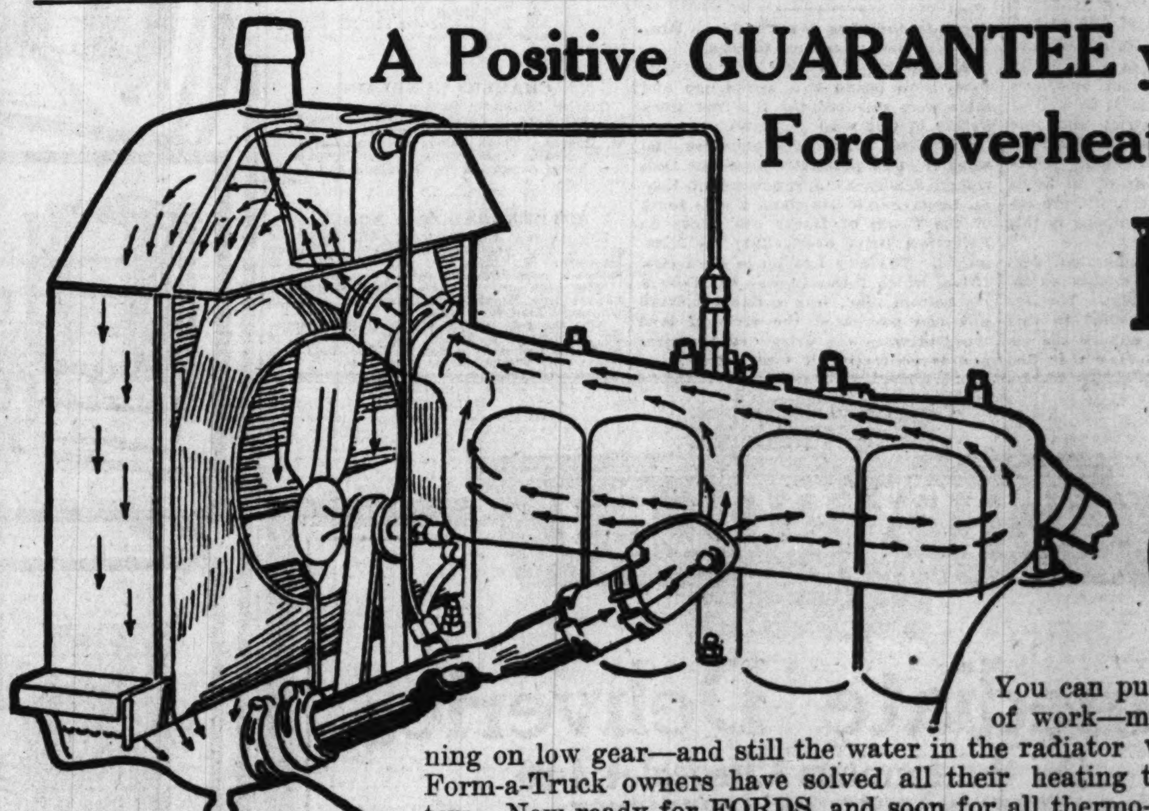
A Positive GUARANTEE you can't make a Ford overheat, if equipt with a

Perfection Water Circulator



You can put your car through the hardest kind of work—mud, sand, steep hills, continued running on low gear—and still the water in the radiator will not boil. Form-a-Tractor and Form-a-Truck owners have solved all their heating troubles by equipping with this system. Now ready for FORDS, and soon for all thermo-syphon cooled cars.

A Remarkable Test A Ford car equipped with a Perfection Water Circulator, and a thermometer, was tested in a closed garage. The thermometer showed a temperature of the water in the water jackets of 190 degrees. The spark was then FULLY RETARDED and the motor run at 1200 r. p. m. for 30 MINUTES. At this point the exhaust manifold got RED HOT, which means around 1500 degrees, and no better evidence could there be that there was excessive heat being generated in the motor. But during this time, and in spite of the tremendous heat being generated, the temperature of the water dropped from 190 to 160 degrees. This was because of the increased flow of water which the Perfection Circulator produced, and which takes place just as soon as a heavy "load" is put on the motor. It wasn't a question of the Ford radiator not being large enough, but only a matter of carrying or forcing the heated water to the cooling surface fast enough.

Installed in 15 Minutes

It takes 15 minutes to install the Perfection Water Circulator. Simply replace the ordinary connection from the radiator to the motor with a similar connection in which is located the Perfection Nozzle; tap the exhaust manifold and connect this to the replaced connecting tube. There are no moving parts—nothing to get out of order or wear out—the Perfection Water Circulator will last as long as the car itself.

A 3-Time Guarantee

We absolutely guarantee that when properly installed, you cannot MAKE your Ford car boil under running conditions. Even with fan removed it won't overheat. We further absolutely guarantee a saving of gasoline. No test has ever shown less than 9%, and from that up to 45%. We further absolutely guarantee a saving of from one-eighth to one-half lubricating oil.

Perry Auto Locks for Fords (new price) $6

$111,000 REALIZED FROM LOT AUCTION IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Big Industrial Concerns Absorb Land Especially Attractive for Plant Sites and Large Investments Are Said to Be Assured at Early Date.

WAGE EARNERS BUY FOR HOMES

Sale Conducted by Mercantile Trust Co. and East St. Louis Realty Company Only Partially Completed, Rain During Most of Day Seriously Interfering.

The auction sale of land in East St. Louis, held yesterday under the auspices of the Mercantile Trust Co., of St. Louis, and the Clark Realty Co. of East St. Louis was a distinct success.

Although only two-thirds of the property was disposed of, owing to the rain, the sales aggregated about $111,000, the prices ranging from $6 to $20 a front foot. All the purchasers, East St. Louis real estate agents declared, obtained bargains.

The feature of the auction was the purchase of five entire city blocks on behalf of a St. Louis industry, the management of which has plans for a mammoth plant. This was supplemented by purchasers by other important manufacturing interests, whic also have plans for large plants.

The identity of these interests, the Mercantile Trust Co. announced last night, will be withheld until the details of the various projects have been completed.

The purchases, East St. Louis agents believe, herald the expenditure of millions of dollars in this section for manufacturing purposes.

Property Covers Wide Area.

The property comprises a tract of land between Tenth and Twenty-first street and the railroad approach of the free bridge on the south, and the Southern Railway on the north, and is surrounded by large plants.

Much of the property fronts on railway tracks, including those of the Terminal Railroad Association, and thus it is highly attractive for industrial purposes.

The auction has awakened decided in this section of East St. Louis, which, with the opening of the Free Bridge to traffic, a few months hence, doubtless will receive new impetus.

The lots desirable for homes were purchased by wage-earners from factories in this locality and by speculators. A syndicate of East St. Louis operators were conspicuous among the purchasers when the prices ran low.

Auction Held in Rain.

The agents stated that all the property would have been sold, and at much higher prices had the weather conditions been more favorable. At the beginning of the morning sale, at 10:30 o'clock, there was almost a cloudburst, while the afternoon sale was conducted in a drizzling rain.

The lots were auctioned by Col. George S. Moore of Nashville, Tenn., assisted by Maj. Grimes of Paris, Mo.

The title to the property sold was held by the Southern Illinois Trust Co. of East St. Louis, representing a syndicate, who acquired the property before the inception of the free bridge.

HOME OF LATE CHARLES PARSONS SOLD FOR BUSINESS PURPOSE

Dallas Auto Livery Co. Contemplates Erection of Structure to Meet Expanding Needs.

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. sold to Albert G. Eckhardt, president of the Dollar Auto Livery Co., the southwest corner of Twenty-eigth and Pine streets. Lot 105.3x181 feet, improved with a three-story brick residence that was occupied for years by the late Charles Parsons, former president of the State National Bank. The property was purchased by Eckhardt from Thos. P. Haley Jr. and Fred W. Sultan, who were represented in the transaction by Giraldin Bros. Real Estate Co.

Eckhardt for several years has been conducting the Dollar Auto Livery Co. at 815 North Leonard avenue, but his business has so increased that in the near future it will be necessary for him to have greatly enlarged quarters. Having faith in the future of Pine street owing to the many sales recently effected and new buildings constructed and in course of construction on that thoroughfare, Eckhardt purchased the property with the view of erecting a substantial business building thereon.

This is the third sale made by the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. of Pine street property west of Jefferson avenue within the past 90 days.

Another Deal Pending for 40 Acres in Aurora Mineral Region Involving St. Louis Realty.

Greer reports he has another deal pending in the Aurora mining camp, about 20 miles from Joplin. The fee title to 40 acres is embodied in this transaction. MAN SUES TO COLLECT $100 INITIATION FEE PAID TO CLUB

Resigned From Organization Because He Was Refused Drinks on Veranda or in Dining Room.

Suit to collect $100 initiation fee, paid to the St. Clair Country Club, was filed in a Justice Court at Belleville yesterday by Robert Bethmann, an East St. Louis brewer.

Bethmann recently resigned from the club because of alleged infringement on personal liberty. At a dinner party he was informed that intoxicants were not served on the clubhouse veranda or in the dining room. Parties desiring this service, it is said, were compelled to rent private dining rooms.

Officers of the club have refused to refund his initiation fees. C. E. Pope, president, was served yesterday with a summons to appear at the hearing tomorrow and Nat McLean, secretary, was ordered to bring books and records of the organization into court.

SIMPSON FIRST IN THREE EVENTS AT "BIG NINE" GAMES

Missourian Scores 16 Points Against West's Best in Windy City Contests.

CHICAGO U. WINS TITLE

Two Conference Records Fall and Another Is Surpassed, but Not Allowed.

CHICAGO, June 9.—Piling up 54½ points, the University of Chicago team triumphed over seventeen other Universities and colleges in winning the seventeenth annual track and field championship of the western inter-collegiate conference today.

The University of Illinois, which scored in every event except one, was second with 41½ points, and the University of Missouri, through the prowess of Robert Simpson, the world's champion hurdler, scored 24 points for third place. Oberlin College was fourth, with 10 points.

Two conference records were shattered. Fall of Oberlin, clipped 3 3-5s. off the record for the mile run. His time was 4m. 15 4-5s. Higgins of Chicago, hurled the javelin 194 ft. 11 in., beating the former record held by Arbuckle of Purdue by 22 ft. The record for the mile was previously held by Ivan Myers of De Pauw University.

Sol. Butler, the negro representing Dubuque College, broke the American intercolegiate record with a leap of 24 ft. 6 in. in the broad jump, but was disqualified. The mark, therefore, will not stand, as officials ruled he touched the ground at the take-off.

Simpson Through as Tiger.

Simpson, competing for the last time for Missouri, was the individual star of the meet. He bagged 16 of Missouri's points by winning the 120 and 200 yard hurdles, the broad jump, and scoring fourth in the 100-yard dash. Simpson's time in the 120-yard hurdles was 1-5s. slower than his world mark. He shot over the barriers in 14 4-5s.

The performance of Fall, the Oberlin star, was as brilliant as Simpson's. After shattering a record in the mile Fall came back and took the two-mile after a thrilling race, defeating Tenney of Chicago. Graf of Nebraska started off like a winner, but failed to stand the pace after showing the way in the first mile ,and finished fourth.

Higgins was Chicago's individual point winner with 12. The half-mile run developed into a thrilling race between Jones of Chicago, and Rodkey of Kansas University. Jones snatched the victory from the Kansas flier after overtaking him in the stretch. Hoyt of Grinnell, who won the 220-yard dash in 21 4-5s., was largely responsible for the eight points. The remainder were scattered as follows:

Kansas, 7; Purdue, 6; Indiana, 3, and 3½; Northwestern, Ohio State and Dubuque College, 3 each; and Ames, 2½. The Michigan Aggies, Simpson College, Iowa and Superior Normal failed to score.

Soldan Wins I. L. Title by Beating McKinley, 8 to 1

West End Nine Scores Decisive Victory in Play-Off at High School Field.

Soldan won the interscholastic pennant yesterday afternoon at High School Field by defeating McKinley 8-1. For the first five innings the game was close, the score being 1-0 in favor of Soldan. Soldan tallied two in the fifth and clinched the game in the eighth when it scored five runs. In this inning Hager, the McKinley pitcher, allowed six hits. He gave only five others in the other eight stanzas. Jones of Soldan, in defeating McKinley, scored his sixth consecutive triumph. He gave only eight hits, several of which were infield bounders. He passed three and fanned five.

McKinley had several chances to win the game, but always fell down at critical moments. A peculiar play ruined McKinley's hopes on two occasions. These occurred first in the third inning. With men on first and second Reed singled past Williamson. Fredericks, who was on second at the time, rounded third and continued toward the plate. Burton, the Soldan shortstop, made a wonderful stop and threw to Williamson, who got Fredericks before he could get back to third.

Again in the seventh the same thing happened, only this time it was Hager, who thought the ball had rolled to left instead of popping into Burton's glove. These two sensational stops were really the deciding factors in Soldan's victory. Had not Burton been "there" in the pinch McKinley would cetrainly have scored and possibly won the game.

McKinley, at the time of these discouraging setbacks, was only one run behind the first time and three the second time the play was repeated. After that the South Siders lost heart and quit cold, with the result that Soldan chased five tallies across the plate in the eighth. Reed's playing in left was the only redeeming feature of the McKinley team. He made two seemingly impossible catches and rapped out three hits. This is the second time in two years that Soldan has won the title. The score:

MEADOWS TO OPPOSE ALEXANDER IN FIRST CLASH WITH PHILLIES

HENRY LEE MEADOWS will fling the first game against the Phillies this afternoon. Pat Moran say the "Big Fellow" will oppose Meadows. The "Big Fellow" is none other than Grover Cleveland Alexander. Pretty soft for Meadows, eh! All he's got to do is shut out the Phils, who are usually good for three runs per game.

Manager Huggins was inclined to think last night that he would start the game with Walton Cruise in left field. Cruise has a lame leg that is mending nicely. Should he be unavailable, Betzel will show in left. Otherwise no changes. Play at 3 o'clock.

Watch for McGaffigan.

Moran has made no changes over his team of last season. He's the world's greatest stand-patter. He has added, however, one promising infielder in Marc McGaffigan of Carlyle, Ill. Citizens of Carlyle, to the number of 50—count 'em—50, are coming to town today in a special car to present McGaffigan with a $100 gold watch. The presentation will be made by State Attorney Hugh Murray, who is a brother of George, Dolore and Dick Murray, all former athletes of St. Louis University.

Bobby Jones, 15, Wins Southern Golf Tournament

Youthful Atlanta Star Defeats New Orleans Man in Finals, 6 Up and 4.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 9.—Robert Tyre Jones Jr., 15 years old, of Atlanta, Ga., is the new Southern golf champion. He defeated Louis Jacoby of New Orleans, six up and four at Birmingham in the finals of the Southern tourney today. Young Jones gets his name from his grandfather, a prominent citizen of Santon, Ga., near here. He is a senior in the Tech High School. Robert P. Jones, an Atlanta attorney, is the youngster's father.

The fact that "Little Bob," as he is affectionately called by all Atlanta, was born on St. Patrick's day, may have something to do with his success for it was on March 17, 1902, that Bobby first saw the light of day.

He started playing golf when he was nine years old and Stewart Maiden, instructor also of Miss Alexa Stirling, the national woman's golf champion, is given the credit for the lad's rapid rise in the golfing world. In 1915 Little Bob first came into prominance when he caused the man that eliminated him in the Southern tournament played here to shoot a 71 breaking the course record by two strokes

Started at Early Age.

Late in the summer, Jones won the invitation tournament of Roebuck Club of Birmingham and still later the invitation tournaments of the Druid Hills and Atlanta Athletic Club here besides setting several course records.

In 1916 he came fully into his own He won the invitation tournaments of the Birmingham Golf and Country Club of the Atlanta Athletic of the Cherokee Golf and Country Club of Knoxville and the Georgia State Golf championship, defeating young Perry Adair of Atlanta for this honor.

Young Jones holds the amateur record for all Atlanta courses, three in number. He established the amateur record over the remodeled Eastlake course here with a 77, lowered it to 74, then to 71.

Not satisfied with this he then tied the professional records of 69 and just recently broke that, shooting a remarkable 68 which professional Maiden says is the best golf ever shot in the South. Fifteen years old and Southern champion. Atlanta expects to hear from Jones in the national open and amateur meets this season.

DOUBLE PLAY ENDS BIG BROWN RALLY; MACKMEN WIN, 2-1

Jacobson, After Driving In Only Run, Hits Into Two-Play Killing in Eighth.

GROOM'S WORK IS WASTED

Belleville Bob Pitches Fine Ball, but His Support Is Always Weak.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 9.—The Browns gave Bob Groom no support on the attack today and the Athletics were returned winners in a neat baseball frolic, score 2 to 1. The victory gave the Mackmen two of the three games played with the St. Louisans, one of the four scheduled games having been postponed because of rain.

The Jonesmen ran into a snag in the person of Russell Johnson, a young righthander who is called "Jing-a-Ling," by his team mates. He held the Browns to six hits, one fewer than the Athletics obtained off Groom. Three bases on balls were also coaxed by the Browns, but save in one round, when the Browns scored their lone run, Johnson pitched masterly

While seven hits were made off Groom, four were for extra bases and two of the long wallops hammered in runs. Three passes were also doled out and Pratt contributed an error but while one walk was converted into a run, the boot did not figure in the Philadelphia scoring. In fact, the three runs of the game were all earned.

Miller Starts a Rally.

Ward Miller blazed the way for the sole St. Louis marker when he walked in the first inning. Austin's best was a pop fly to Witt. Sisler singled to left and Miller tried for third, but was cut on Bodie's peg to Bates. It proved costly, as Jacobson followed with a long double to right center on which Sisler scored. Jake, however, was left stranded when Bates snared Severeid's wicked grounder and tossed to McInnis.

Russell Johnson coaxed a walk at the start of the third and it later was turned into a run, tieing the score. He was forced on Witt's grounder, Johnson to Pratt, but Strunk doubled down the left field line and Witt scored from first. Amos went to third when Ernie Johnson pegged out Bodie and died there.

It went along at a 1—1 rate until the eighth, when the Macks got their winning run. Strunk had expired on a long drive to Marsans and Groom had fanned Bodie, when Bates singled to left. McInnis, who had gone hitless in three previous attempts, inserted a long triple to center and Bates came around. Austin's stop and throw of Schang's grounded ended the inning.

Big Rally Falls Short.

While the Browns went runless after round one, they fell down on more than one good opportunity to score. Their best chance came in the eighth, when with one out, Austin walked. Sisler contributed his second single, sending Austin to third. With runners on first and third and only one out, Jacobson stung the ball hard—in fact too hard—as it rolled to Witt, who passed to Bradshaw, forcing Sisler, while Bradshaw's throw to McInnis doubled the Browns elephantine fly chaser, snuffing out a promising rally.

Manager Jones called on his reserves in the ninth. Sloan, for Severeid, but was called out on a questionable strike. Rumler, for Marsans, got a life on Bates' low throw. Shotton ran for Rumler and reached second on Pratt's single. Shotton and Pratt attempted a double steal. Schang's throw to Bates snuffed out Shotton. Ernie Johnson left the tieing run on second with an easy fly to Strunk.

Notes.

Dallas Bradshaw, who played second for the Macks, hails from the Charlotte (South Atlantic League) team, which gave Outfielder Leo Gooch to the Athletics.

Marsans' many batting failures caused Manager Jones to yank him in the ninth to let Bill Rumler bat for him. It's the first time in a long while that Jones has weakened on the Cuban.

With two out in the seventh, Russ Johnson hit to the score board in center for a beauty bright triple. It was wasted as Witt proved easy.

The fielding feature was turned by Jacobson, who robbed Gooch of a triple in the seventh by making a nice one-handed catch of the youngster's liner.

Had the attempted double steal gone through in the ninth it is doubtful if Ernie Johnson's fly to Strunk would have scored Shotton. It was a short lift. Had Johnson gotton on, Hartley would have batted for Groom.

Chris Kinney's 78 Is Low Qualifying Score in City Golf Tourney

Eddie Limberg Is Next With 79; but Cards as High as 95 Qualify on Country Club's Course, That Puts a Premium on Perfect Shooting.

When two cards of 95 qualify for the championship flight of the city golf tournament, it's high time some folks contend for a thorough investigation. But such was the case in the qualifying round of the annual local championships at the St. Louis Country Club, yesterday. However, a Scotland Yard man is not needed to solve the mystery. A journey over the new Country Club course is enough to convince any of the initiated that local golfers had something of a herculean task in conquering the hazards of that course.

One hundred and 10 golfers entered yesterday's competition and considering that the course was in splendid shape and that the contestants were supposed to be, following last week's play in the State championships, the showing was the most mediocre of many seasons. It is true that the morning players were worried by frequent showers, but the skies cleared in the afternoon, and still there was no improvement in the play.

Par Is 72, Bogey 83.

Christian Kenney, former city and State title holder, was the low medalist of the day, turning a "darlin" 78. Kenney is a representative of the Triple A. E. A. Limberg, another shooter from the Forest Park Club, was right behind with a 79. Eddie won the local title in 1915 and since then has been a militant figure in local golf. Yesterday's round was his first one of the tournament season as he was not an entrant at Algonquin last week. These two scores are unusually good as par for the Country Club links is 72, while an unofficial bogey has been set at 83.

State Champion James Manion of the Kirkwood Country Club, but in reality the pride of the Municipal links, continued his splendid play by turning in a card of 81 which was third money. Jimmy had traversed the course on only one previous occasion, but seemed to be acquainted with all the tricks of the fair ways and greens. His partner, Cyrus B. More, former State title holder and a regular Country Clubber was favored with an 83.

The real surprise of the day came when Roger E. Lord of the Algonquin Club, present king of the local links, barely slid into the chosen flight with a lowly 94. Lord was in hot water all of the way. He went out with a 45, and was apparently retrieving on his homeward journey when he struck No. 15. Here he took a 9, and followed it on the sixteenth hole with a 7.

Big Day for Country Club.

As to the success of the various clubs in the tourney, the Country Club had a virtual field day. Almost one-half of the qualifiers for championship play are members of the "host" club. Harry Potter, Sterling Edmunds, the three Stickneys, G. H. Walker, Clarkson Potter and D. B. Hussey are among the year-in-and-year-outers who are entered for title play. In fact there were but few upsets in the main flight. All of the regulars are there with the exception of Jesse Carleton, who was unable to enter.

Well over $400 will go to the Red Cross coffers from the entry fees of the tourney. Each entrant was taxed $4, and with 110 playing a goodly sum was raised.

MACOMBER'S BOOT WINS THE SUBURBAN HANDICAP WITH "THE FINN" THIRD

NEW YORK, June 9.—With the weather and track conditions as if made to order, a great crowd witnessed the thirty-first running of the historic Suburban handicap at one mile and a quarter over the Belmont Park racecourse today. A. K. Macomber's six-year-old gelding, Boots, by Hessian-Little Flower, carrying 122 pounds and piloted by Jockey Loftus, was the winner, three-quarters of a length in front of H. P. Whitney's aged gelding, Borrow, which finished second, half a length ahead of the favorite, The Finn, owned by H. C. Hallenbeck. The race was worth $4900 to the winner.

Nine horses started, the winner and Ed Crump being coupled as the A. K. Macomber entry, always a strongly supported second choice in the wagering. Starter Cassidy sent them all way to a good break.

Evans' medal score for the 18 holes was an even 70. Par for the course is 72 and bogey 85. Swift's score was 87, Clark's 75 and Sawyer had 83. The amateur record is 73 and the professional 72.

RULES SEAL LIPS OF UMPIRE BYRON, M'GRAW'S VICTIM

Official, Disfigured by New York Manager's Blow, Says, "Let Mr. Tener Talk."

GIANTS' CHIEF SUSPENDED

Affidavits Submitted by Him Assert He Was Blameless in Cincinnati Row.

MINISTER WRITES TENER McGRAW WAS WRONG

CINCINNATI, June 9.

THE action of John J. McGraw, manager of the New York National League Club, in attacking Umpire Byron after Friday's game, aroused a storm of protest in Cincinnati.

Chief among the protests of the fans is the petition being circulated by the Rev. Frederick N. McMillin, one of the city's leading ministers, who in a statement, declared that every decision during Friday's game was fair and that McGraw's attack on the umpire was absolutely unjustified.

"I have written President Tener at the suggestion of fans," said the minister. "I believe McGraw's actions were a disgrace to baseball and men of his type should be dismissed from the game. I know a little about the game and the things that are a credit or a discredit to it. That's why I say that McGraw and the ways of McGraw, should be put out of the game forever."

By W. J. O'Connor.

William, alias Lord Byron, an ambitious union steamfitter from Detroit, who aims to make an honest living umpiring, arrived yesterday from Cincinnati with his lips hermetically sealed. Figuratively speaking, they were sealed.

Literally speaking, Bill's were compressed like a couple of sponges afflicted with hydrophobia. The upper lip looked like the French tricolor—in spots, red, white and blue. The lower lip was large and limp, with every physical evidence of having been bitten by John McGraw.

A close-up of Bill's entire map should have been submitted with the report of what happened under the grand stand at Cincinnati as "Exhibit A" in the case of John McGraw vs. the American people's sense of refinement. It would have been more convincing, proving among other things that McGraw, ancient though he is, still has a good punch in his right hand.

We're assuming that McGraw landed with the right. Byron wouldn't admit even that. He explained, however, the reason for such reticence.

On the Strict Q. T.

"What ever developed on the field between umpires and players is strictly confidential with the umpire and President Tener," said Byron. "I have wired a full report to Mr. Tener, and it's up to him to do the talking. I can't say a word. If I did I would be violating orders."

Byron is associated with Ernest Quigley, the erudite arbitrator of St. Marys, Kan., who is remembered as a football coach and basketball official of no mean standing in the Missouri Valley. They will be here for the remainder of the intersectional series, having been transferred only yesterday.

McGraw Is Suspended.

What the eventuality of the McGraw-Byron episode will be only President Tener is able to say. And he is holding his tongue.

However, pending the fullest investigation, Tener has indefinitely suspended McGraw, despite the fact that the latter forwarded several affidavits, some signed by citizens of Cincinnati, saying that he (McGraw) was justified in attacking Byron.

McGraw says that Byron has been "on" him all season; Byron only smiles when you mention McGraw's name. However, fans in different parts of the N. L. circuit, even in St. Louis, are preparing petitions which will be sent to President Tener asking that the "gag rule" be applied to the Giants. The National League "gagged" the Braves a year ago and look what happened! Didn't the Cards win four in a row?

New York fans are solidly behind McGraw, but that was to be expected. We have long since been wised up to New York. McGraw is going big in his home "base." So are his dismounted Uhlans—Heine the Zim, Herzog, Hoelke and Fletcher. But, possibly it pays to advertise. Some persons never heard of New York until "Gyp the Blood" gave a little party at the Metropole Hotel.

What's the Answer?

Recent records of the two major leagues reveal many interesting facts, but none more startling than these:

The Browns are first in batting and last in fielding. The Cardinals are last in batting, first in fielding.

Had you predicted, during the Hot Stove League season, that such conditions would exist on this the tenth day of June, you might have been summarily dealt with as one mentally deficient and dangerous to the good health of the community.

How often did we hear persons prating about the Browns' great defense and the Cardinals' great prowess with the ash? How often did the wisenheimers deplore the fact that the Cardinals would nullify their possible hitting strength by their Swiss-cheese defense?

But there they are, away up yonder at the top o' heap while the Browns are wallowing in miserable mud of mediocrity. That's what makes the wild Cats wild!

Rain Prevents Game.

Yesterday's game between the Phillies and Cardinals was called off at 2:45 because of rain. Whereupon the clouds disappeared, the sun shone and the management moaned. However, when the concellation was decided upon, rain was falling, and there was every indication of a long spell of it. Some 600 fans were disappointed.

KAUFF HITS HOME RUN

Benny's Circuit Smash Comes With Herzog on the Sacks in the Eighth Inning.

CHICAGO, June 9.—Schupp held Chicago to three scattered hits today and New York shut Chicago out 4 to 0 in the first game of the series. It was Schupp's seventh victory of the season.

Demaree's wildness in the fourth inning, when he walked two men, followed by a triple by Robertson, gave the vistors a two-run lead which the locals were unable to overcome. They made victory certain in the eighth inning, however, when Kauff knocked the ball over the right field wall for a home run, scoring Herzog, who had singled before him.

Chicago had several chances to score, but Schupp tightened up and pitched his best ball.

Manager McGraw, who attacked Umpire Byron after the game yesterday at Cincinnati, and drew an indefinite suspension today, was not present at the game. Score:

REDS, SCHNEIDER UP, DEFEAT SUPERBAS, 2-1

CINCINNATI, June 9.—By bunching three of their five hits in the third inning, Cincinnati took the opening game of the series from Brooklyn here today, 2 to 1. Schneider was hit by a batted ball in the ninth. Schneider, who had pitched great ball up to this time, was carried off the field and Eller took his place. Cadore also pitched well, with the exception of the third inning. Both Cadore and Schneider led the hitting for their respective teams. Score:

Vic Moran, who is advertised as a graduate of the navy and as having served on the Minnesota and Oregon, will oppose Young Denny of New Orleans in a 12-round bout at the Future City A. C., Tuesday night, weight 140 pounds.

Moran has gained some notoriety in the East, of recent months, following a setto against Charley White at Chattanooga, wherein he surprised the Chicagoan by upsetting him.

He is credited with several knockouts in his record, and with victories over some fair fighters. Here is a partial list he submits as his performances:

One for T. Sullivan.

Tommy Sullivan's benefit has died down, following the former Brooklyn fighter's refusal to accept any such tender of good will. He states that he expects to struggle along and find his own way out of his troubles, which shows he has still his old fighting spirit.

Tommy's friends are not so willing to let him escape, as the following letter indicates:

ST. LOUIS, June 8, 1917.
Sporting Editor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, City.

Dear Sir: After reading Frank Robinson's article in today's Post-Dispatch, giving a history of Tommy Sullivan's experience in the boxing game, I think the only way to fill any building just at the moment is as Mr. Robinson suggests—"give a benefit for Tommy Sullivan." While I think the regulars are entitled to more sympathy than is Tommy, on account of poor matchmaking, long delays on account of lack of money to make good purses guaranteed, I am for him, as he is unquestionably a nice fellow and a gentleman. Club regulations at the best, from a financial standpoint, are bad for boxing shows, but the way boxing is regulated at present is ridiculous. eW should have an open door, or close the game up entirely.

Abe Brooks, Pitcher for the Losers, Weakens in the Fifth, After Striking Out Seven Batters in Four Innings.

After striking out seven batters in four innings and permitting only two hits, Pitcher Abe Brooks of the Froebel School team collapsed and Bryan Hill piled up 12 runs in the closing rounds, and won 13—12, at High School Field yesterday morning.

The Victory gives Bryan Hill the championship of the Public School League. The victors have possession for one year of the Post-Dispatch team trophy, won last season by Cote Brilliante. The winning players also will receive medals donated by the Post-Dispatch.

The game was below the standard of former championship finals. In the ninth inning an argument developed when it was found that the Froebel players had been batting out of turn. Maus, one of the boys who hit out of turn, doubled and drove in a pair of markers that put his team one run behind.

Brooks weakened in the fifth, when, with one out, Alvater at first base missed a perfect throw from Baer to retire the second batter. Haverporth walked and Karr followed with an infield hit that filled the bases. Then Thorn walked, forcing in Bade. Adams, who had fanned on his two previous appearances at the plate, cleared the sacks with a triple, while he himself tallied on an infield out.

This rally put Bryan Hill one run in the lead. After that the game was erratically played by both sides, with odds about even, both scoring seven runs in the last three frames.

Karr Very Steady.

Alois Karr, who was in the hill for the victors twirled a better game than the score indicates, many of the tallies off him coming as a result of errors, while of the dozen hits obtained by Froebel, at least half were of the infield variety, which, with faster fielding would have been turned into outs. All of Bryan Hill's bingles, on the other hand, were solid smashes to the outfield.

The Score.

Froebel got off to a running start putting over a run in the first on singles by Goeddel and Heibucher and an error by Thorn. Four more came in the third, as a result of a base on balls, a fielder's choice, infield hits by Goeddel, Baer and Heibucher, and an error by Karr. All of Froebel's hits were taps down the third base line. Haverporth, the Bryan Hill third-sacker, was playing far back on the grass and the runners easily beat out the bingles.

Bryan Hill tallied one in the third, on a pass to Green, Mayer's sacrifice and Bade's single. Then came the rally in the fifth, which had already been told.

Adams Drives In 5 Runs.

The winners, however, did not let up, getting two more in the sixth, on a hit by Bade, passes to Haverporth and Thorn and Adams' single. The latter had the honor of driving in five runs in two innings, which is real "pinch-hitting."

Three more for Bryan Hill in the seventh, mainly through an error by Heibucher, the catcher. With two out, Bates walked, as did Haverporth, who drew five passes during the game, not being credited with an official time at bat. Karr followed with a double and Bade scored, while Haverporth and Karr also came over when Heibucher made little or no effort to retrieve a wildly thrown ball.

Karr, who had twirled great ball after the third seemed to weaken in the eighth, and Froebel put over five markers. Baer opened with a double. Heibucher singled and stole, putting men on second and third. Altvater fanned, but Bade played "soccer" with the sphere, and before he finally grabbed it Baer had tallied. Schmitt hit to Karr, and when Bade missed the throw home, Heibucher scored This was followed by a hit and two passes, and before it was over, Altvater, Schmitt and Brook had crossed the plate.

Bryan Hill Scores Again.

With Heibucher on the hill Bryan Hill woke up again in its half of the round. One down, Turley walked, went to second on a wild pitch. Weis then hit to the pitcher, and Baer let the ball get away from him when Heibucher tried for the man at the plate, and both Turley and Weiss scored.

Froebel made a determined stand in the ninth, but fell short. One out, Altvater walked, while Schmitt was safe on Karr's wild throw. It was then Brooks' turn to bat, but he had been put out of the game at the end of the eighth, and instead of sending in a pinch-hitter, Maus, the next batter, went up in his place. He doubled, scoring Altvater and Schmitt. Pieper walked, but Miltenberger and Goeddel were retired ending the contest.

Yesterday's victory gave Bryan Hill its first Public School championship. Four years ago, when the Post-Dispatch still ran the league, the taem was beaten out in the semi-finals by Sigel. It has won its division title four times.

In the three years the Post-Disparch trophy has been in competition, Benton, Cote Brilliante and now Bryan Hill, all of the North Side, have been the winners. Benton beat Shaw, 13-13, in 1915 and in 1916 Cote Brilliante nosed out Madison, 3-2.

$900,000 BASEBALL SUIT OF BALTIMORE FEDS WILL BE BROUGHT UP MONDAY

NEW YORK, June 9.—Unless there is another postponement or a compromise, organized baseball will appear in the role of defendant at Philadelphia, Monday, in the $900,000 suit instituted by the Baltimore Federal League Club. If the case goes to trial some extremely interesting developments are expected by close followers of baseball. Both sides have engaged brilliant legal talent and a host of baseball authorities, magnates, players and others connected with the game have been summoned to appear and testify.

Stated briefly, the complaint, which, with exhibits, covers more than 75 printed pages, charges that the Baltimore Federal League Club was the victim of discrimination in the settlement of the baseball war between the Federal League and organized baseball when peace terms were arranged in this city in December, 1915. Violation of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust acts are claimed and the complaint gives a list of moneys and other perquisites alleged to be awarded to certain other clubs and magnates of the former Federal League.

The National Commission, National League, American League, the individual clubs of the latter two organizations, and James A. Gilmore, former president of the Federal League; Charles E. Weeghman and Harry Sinclair are all cited as defendants.

All the defendants who made answer to the bill of complaint deny generally and specifically the material allegations in the bill of complaint. Fred T. Chandler, vice president of the Philadelphia Nationals, filed a lengthy answer, taking up each of the 46 paragrahps in the bill filed by the Federals, and all other defendants identified with the National League adopt Chandler's defense as their own answer.

John K. Tener, in his answer as president of the National League, in addition to adopting Chandler's answer as his defense, states that the National League is not a body that has a standing to sue or to be sued in its common name. The league, he says, is not a resident or a citizen of any State.

The answer of the American League is the same as that of Chandler's, taking up all 46 paragraphs, the only changes being where American League is used for National League and other changes in names of defendants.

HARRIS' BATTING DOWNS DONOVAN'S MEN, 2-0

NEW YORK, June 9.—New York made only five hits off Coveleskie here today and Clevaland won the deciding game of the series, 2 to 0. It was Coveleskie's second shut-out against the Yankees this season. Harris, once discarded by New York after a brief trial, drove in Chapman with both Cleveland runs, with a sacrifice fly in the second inning and a double in the seventh. Score:

UMPIRE'S DECISION IS CAUSE OF NEAR-RIOT

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 9.—Spectators at the St. Joseph-DesMoines Western League game here today disagreed with a decision of Umpire Miller, rushed onto the field and shoved and pushed the arbiter about. Only by the combined efforts of players and the managers of both teams and police was a threatened riot prevented, and the field cleared for further play. St. Joseph lost the game, 1 to 5. Umpire Miller called McCabe, St. Joseph center fielder, out at first on what the crowd thought a bad decision. That raised a storm of protest, and immediately the field was crowded.

WRAY'S COLUMN

A Little "Strafing" Due McGraw.

THE Little Kaiser of baseball, McGraw, formerly the "Little Napoleon," suffered a severe reverse on the Cincinnati front, Friday when, after momentarily getting a foothold on Umpire Byron, he was dislodged by counter attacks and subsequently hurled back into the dugout indefinitely, by John K. Tener.

As a result, until his suspension is lifted, McGraw will be deprived of all connection with the club, except drawing his pay, giving his team orders and otherwise conducting himself as if John K. Tener had not set him down indefinitely. For suspensions of managers usually mean little except that the punished leader gives his orders from a box in the grandstand, instead of from the dugout.

Just here is where the Grandma heads of the creaking-jointed old National League ought to get busy with their knitting. By enforcing the suspension, by keeping McGraw out of the ball park, and by shutting up the mouths of his bulldozing Prussians, Herzog, Zimmerman and Fletcher, every time they start a yelp, perhaps they can discipline these throw-backs of the Dark Ages into modern decency.

N. L. Needs and Fears McGraw.

J. HOHENZOLLERN McGRAW is to baseball what Kaiser Bill is to Europe. He wants to run it his own way—and it's a ruthless way. If Lord Byron really referred to McGraw's Baltimore reputation, he hit it just right, for McGraw has not advanced one step since then. His career is one long succession of umpire-baiting, fight-provoking and bulldozing. He has furnished more "rough-house" head lines for news stories than all rival rough-necks added together.

He is 20 years behind the times in appreciation of the fact that foul play is the resort of a bad loser and is utterly obsolete.

The league needs McGraw because he knows baseball, baseball players, can handle men and begets winners; it needs him because a winner in New York is a necessity to this weak-spined, poorly-financed organization. Unless the Giants draw BIG, the rest of the league is a loser. On many occasions other clubs have saved their faces on the crumbs picked up from New York's sumptuous table.

REALIZING this, McGraw's cranial periphery is increasseems expanding. Fawned on by newspaper men, given a contract that is said to yield him close to $50,000, catered to by league heads and club owners and swelled up by the cringing umpires who fear him, McGraw at times seems to believe that he is bigger than the organization he serves.

And perhaps he is, in one way.

He wouldn't have to be more than 6⅞ in the top story to fill the bill, at that.

Yet if the league has to stand for him the public does not. The public can do without the National League, but the league cannot get by without the public.

Because McGraw's tactics affect the playing of rival clubs, fans everywhere insist that the militancy of John J. be eliminated. The issue is now squarely up to the National League heads:

To rule John McGraw and have fans support, or

To be ruled by him and lose it.

"I'd Do It Again"—McGraw.

McGRAW, it appears, has affidavits to show he was not at fault. He also states that he would repeat the blow for the same provocation. It may be that in this particular instance McGraw may have been offended; but has Kaiser John affidavits for the long line of offenses on record committed by himself and his men in the past 15 years? Can he alibi away the nagging, ragging, bulldozing acts that have caused opponents to see red and start fighting?

McGraw's trail is blazed with his own fighting mark. No affidavit need apply in the case of the Fans vs. McGrawism.

St. Louis and Boxing.

TOMMY SULLIVAN has waved aside the benefit idea, suggested by friends in his interest. Tommy has made a meager living since he entered the game of fight promoting and now finds himself several hundred dollars in debt.

A Sullivan sympathiser, while suggesting that the benefit is all right and that Sullivan meant well, writes that "the regulars who attend St. Louis bouts are entitled to more sympathy than Tommy."

Which exactly corresponds with the views of many others. Sullivan is suffering from the mistakes of trying to run a big thing on a shoe-string policy; from wretched matchmaking; from advisers whose standing is none too well assured, and from a natural lack of a sense of order, system, and even housecleanliness.

Man Who Paid Suffered.

THE combination of causes resulted in bad contests, delays in the ring, collections from the spectators to complete purses, wrangles with referees, fighters and managers, broken promises to boxers, dirty arenas and other ills, all of which descended on the devoted head of the Walter Orthweins, Eddie Macnases, Marion Lambert and other ringside regulars.

The wonder is that the public has clung to the game as it has. Bad as conditions have been, the game would romp back to popularity with big league handling. But it has not had this since C. "Hardluck" Haughton quit the city.

Michigan U. Is Asked to Come Back to "Big 9"

Wolverines Expected to Accept Invitation Made by Faculty Committee.

CHICAGO, June 9.—Michigan men are agreed tonight that their alma mater will accept the invitation extended to the Wolverines today to otherwise know as the "Big Nine," return to the Western Conference. The invitation was made by members of the Faculty Committee who met here this morning.

Michigan withdrew from the "Big Nine" in 1905, after refusing to subscribe to certain training restrictions, one of which was the abolition of the football training table. Since then the Wolverines have played most of their big games with Eastern schools, chiefly Cornell and Pennsylvania.

The Faculty Committee also voted to continue athletics during the war, as this is the wish of President Wilson.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 9.—Students of the University of Michigan welcomed with enthusiasm the announcement from Chicago that the Western Conference had approved Michigan's desire to again become a member of the organization. No official statement was given out, but it is understood that faculty and student leaders confidently expect Michigan will have football matches with conference teams in 1918 if the war is over. Michigan abandoned varsity athletics shorty after the break with Germany.

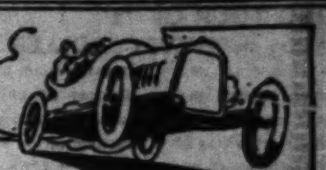
AUTOMOBILE NEWS



NEW MEN WILL BUILD THE STANLEY STEAMER

The announcement is made that the Stanley Motor Carriage Co. of Newton, Mass., has been reorganized on a greatly increased scale. The company is widely known as one of the oldest in the motor car business and has long held the reputation of being one of the most conservative. The Stanley Steamer is sold in St. Louis by the Stanley Motor Car Co.

The factory name still remains the Stanley Motor Carriage Co. The capitalization is increased to $2,500,000 of preferred stock and 100,000 shares of common stock of no par value. There will be no public offering of stock.

Prescott Warren, formerly vice president, becomes president of the new company, succeeding F. E. Stanley. Edward M. Hallett, formerly secretary, becomes treasurer, succeeding F. O. Stanley. Carleton F. Stanley remains vice president of manufacture. Frank Jay, western manager, becomes vice president of sales. These four have been with the company since 1906, and constitute the active management of the new company. Together with Charles Counselman and Arthur L. Goodwillie of the Chicago banking house of Counselman & Co., representing the new financial interests, they form the board of directors.

The history of the Stanley company makes a story of absorbing interest and reaches back to the earliest days of the industry in America. The first Stanley car was built in 1895 by the brothers, F. O. and F. E. Stanley, for their own personal use. At that time their business was the manufacture of the Stanley photographic dry plate and their factory building is now part of the extensive Stanley works. The original car was so successful in operation that it encouraged them to further efforts and during the next two years a number of cars were built and sold to impatient buyers. In the spring of 1898 first steps were taken for the manufacture of cars for sale.

WILL SELL AMAZON TIRE.

The Amazon Tire and Rubber Co., of Akron, O., exclusive manufacturer of Amazon Anti-Blowout Tires, have appointed the Moerschell Electric and Auto Supply Co., 2944-46 Locust street, the Western distributor for its tires.

The Amazon tire has "absolutely dependable service" built into it all the way through. The best Sea Island fabric and upriver fine para rubber than can be secured is the basis upon which the ultimate product is built. All actual building is done by seasoned tire men, supervised and directed by the ablest men that Akron—"The Rubber City"—has ever turned out.. Included in the tire is also the anti-blowout feature.

NEW MOON OFFICIAL.

Carl W. Burst, who for several years has been purchasing agent of the Moon Motor Car Co., has been appointed general superintendent of the Moon factory, vice R. L. Cleveland, resigned. Cleveland has gone to the Chadwick Six factory.

Burst started with the Moon company nine years ago as a mechanic, and has built up rapidly to his present important position.

WILL SELL THE OLYMPIAN

The new Olympian car, a high grade automobile to sell for a little less than $1000, having all the good points of the best, is to be sold in St. Louis and territory by the Welling Motor Equipment Co., 5033 Delmar boulevard. It is built in four-passenger roadster and five-passenger touring styles and sells for $965.

JUMPED FROM $2000 TO $14,000,000 CAPITAL

The rise of the Smith Motor Truck Corporation from a small concern of less than $2000 capital two years ago to a corporation with a capital of $14,000,000 is one of the remarkable stories of the motor truck industry, and sounds almost like a dream narrative. However, the romance is anything but a fiction, as 28,000 users of the Smith Form-a-Truck can testify.

Two years ago, A. D. Smith, who had been a marine engineer for a steamship line operating between Seattle and Yokohoma, came to Chicago to market his idea of converting pleasure cars into commercial trucks. He had, during three years of his spare moments, given over to the perfecting of his scheme, proved its worth; but he was without capital and unable to exploit his invention.

In Chicago he formed an alliance with E. I. Rosenfeld, who, after great effort, managed to obtain the comparatively insignificant sum of $1500 with which working capital was commenced. When the first attachments were placed on the market, interest rapidly developed and funds were accumulated for increased production and $50,000 was set aside for advertising purposes. Inquiries came in by the hundreds and the little factory was completely swamped.

Orders were there, but no means of filling them. At that critical time several steel men, were interested in the concern, and materials necessary to fill the orders were seured, and the present big development is the result.

SOLD 54 CARS IN MAY.

Frank Bishop of the Briscoe Motor Sales Co., of St. Louis handled during May 54 Briscoe and Marion cars, about 50 per cent of which were shipped to dealers in the St. Louis territory.

TRUCK EASY TO LEARN.

"The rapidity with which the average young man can be made a competent motor truck driver is another proof of the perfection to which the American motor truck has been brought," says Harry Newman of the Kissel Kar.

"A good many business concerns who have become Kissel truck owners, send the men who are to drive the trucks to us for instructions and it is surprising how quickly the average man learns not only how to efficiently drive, but also how to properly take care of the trucks. This knowledge not only enables the truck driver to keep depreciation down to the minimum but also gives owners high tire and gasoline miles."

$50,000 Owners' Contest to Follow Maxwell's Economy Triumph of May 23rd

Hundreds of Maxwells on May 23rd made good our claim that a Maxwell will go further on a gallon of gasoline than any other 5-passenger car—now, from June 16th to 30th, we expect 40,000 Maxwells to make as good or a better showing than was made on historic May 23rd.

We told you to watch the Maxwells with the one-gallon red gas tanks attached to the windshields.

We told you they were going to make history on May 23rd.

That was Maxwell Gasoline Economy Contest Day all over the United States and Canada.

And those Maxwells did make history

—achieved a triumph we defy the world to beat.

Fifty Maxwell cars went a total of 1,983.6 miles on a total of 50 gallons of gasoline.

The average gallon mileage of those cars was 39.67.

And these weren't specially built cars.

They were privately owned Maxwells.

892 Maxwell Cars Prove What Maxwell Economy Is

Those 892 cars covered 24,505.3 miles in the aggregate on one gallon of gasoline each.

They averaged 27.47 miles each per gallon of gasoline. More wonderful records are being received daily.

We could rest our laurels on this great triumph

—but we don't intend to do that.

Nobody else can beat it

—so we're going to beat it ourselves.

$50,000 In U. S. Liberty Bonds To Be Given Away Next Time

Inspired by the splendid success of the Maxwell dealers' economy contest of May 23rd

—we're offering now $25,000 in U. S. Liberty Bonds as prizes to the 500 Maxwell owners who make the best mileage on one gallon of gasoline. Every Maxwell owner has an even chance to win a bond.

June 16th to 30th are the opening and closing dates of this second great Maxwell economy contest.

The other half of the $50,000 Liberty Bonds is to go to dealers for helping us with this stupendous undertaking.

Your Chance To Win a U. S. Liberty Bond

If you own a Maxwell your chance to win a Liberty Bond is as good as anybody's

—no matter what State you live in. The rules of the contest give every owner a fair and even chance.

The contest is open to women as well as men Maxwell owners.

Haynes, "America's First Car," built on honor nearly a quarter of a century ago is STILL America's First Car. It is the crowning achievement of the master builder's art. LONG TOUR OF THE "HYATT ROLLER"

A record of 261,800 miles traveled is almost enough in the lifetime of any motor car; yet here's one that's not content with it and is starting off on a 10,000 mile jaunt that will carry it across the continent and back.

The "Hyatt Roller" as the old veteran has been christened, is a 1909, Model 10 Buick, owned by F. E. Slason of Plainville, Kan., and was the winner in the famous mileage contest conducted by the Hyatt Roller Bearing Co. in 1915, when prizes were offered to motorists whose cars had traveled the greatest distances on a single set of Hyatt bearings. The Hyatt company is now sending it on this long tour to further demonstrate the wearing qualities of Hyatt bearings in automobiles.

The car started from Detroit on its long mileage grind, Monday, June 4, going first to New York City, thence across the continent by a southern route to Los Angeles then north along the Pacific coast through San Francisco to Seattle, and then back by a northern route to its starting point.

This test, remarkable in itself, takes on something of the spectacular because of the fact that the "Hyatt Roller" has already traveled farther than any other car on record, having covered, during the nine years it has been in service, the surprising distance of more than 10 times around the world. This mileage record was made on a single set of Hyatt bearings, without either replacement or adjustment.

PROSPERITY AHEAD FOR AMERICAN BUSINESS

While the present price of the Jeffrey Six cannot be maintained indefinitely, certainly not after the present stock of raw materials, which The Nash Motors Company purchased over a year ago at the then prevailing lower prices, is used up, nevertheless the Nash Motors Company is making plans for big production schedules and according to C. B. Voorhis, general sales manager, is confident that unparalleled prosperity lies just ahead for all American business, including the automobile industry.

"For the next few years" says Mr. Voorhis, "America must be the workshop of the world. Night and day the smoke will be black above her factories. The wheels of commerce must turn as they never turned before.

"America must feed the world; she must clothe the world; she must furnish transportation for the world; she must be the world warehouse.

"Our lands will produce more crops, our mines more ore, our factories will double, treble their outputs.

"Prosperity, unperalleled prosperity must follow. Billions of dollars must flow through the channels of American trade.

"Men and women in every branch of society will make more money, spend more money than ever before.

"They will buy more shoes, more furniture, more stoves, more homes, more sewing machines, more automobiles and even more trucks."

NEARLY EVERYBODY DRIVES WITH TOP UP

Few people, even automobile owners, realize how seldom the automobile top is manipulated. Most persons have the feeling that automobile tops are put up and down at every change of the weather; that every time the sun comes out, down comes the top; or that every time the sun glares too brightly, up it goes again.

To get some accurate information on this subject, Newman Samuel. Franklin dealer in Cincinnati, recently conducted an investigation among the Franklin open-car owners in that city. Strange as it may seem, the data showed that during the past 75 per cent of Cincinnati Franklin owners ran their cars with the tops up all the time.

This investigation is typical of the discovery people are making of the practicability of the permanent top, and the resulting change of sentiment is largely responsible for the rapidly growing popularity of the enclosed type of car.

NO CHANGES TO BE MADE IN 1918 CHANDLER

Word was received last week from the Chandler factory by the Lewis Automobile Company announcing the fact that in the cars which are to be brought out after July 1, there will be absolutely no change. As a matter fact there has been practically no changes, with the exception of body refinements and minor mechanical improvements, since their first Chandler light six was produced.

This announcement will at once settle any question regarding a difference due to the $200 increase in price which goes into effect on that date. The change in price, according to factory officials, is due solely to the enormous increase in manufacturing cost.

The Chandler factory has always aimed to give the public the benefit of any decrease in cost as shown by the fact that their first car, listed for $1795, is now selling for $1395. The increase will be only a partial return to the former price.

As an incentive to the sales force this month, the Lewis company has worked out an ingenious systsm of targets for the various salesmen to "shoot at." It takes six sales to register a "bull's eye," but that feat carries with it a generous cash prize. Each salesman is "taking good aim," and expects to hit the little black dot in the center of the target before the gong sounds on June 31.

ALL GOODYEAR SHOD.

The 250-mile International Sweepstakes automobile race at the Sharonville speedway, Cincinnati, O., on May 30, was marked by another big victory for Goodyear cord tires, when the first seven drivers romped home on them, winners.

Louis Chevrolet, in a Frontenac, took first place after driving a wonderful race at the average speed of 102.18 miles per hour, five miles faster than the record set at the dedication of the speedway last wear, on Labor day. Only 9 seconds behind, Gaston Chevrolet, a brother of Louis, stormed over the line in second place, also in a Frontenac car. Both drivers drove non-stop runs.

Ira Vail finished close behind the Chevrolet brothers in a Hudson. Tom Milton, Otto Henning, Eddie Hearne and Earl Cooper constituted the field that strung out behind Vail.

Ralph de Palma, in his Packard, did his best to prevent the race from becoming a Chevrolet joy ride and alternated in the lead with Louis and Gaston Chevrolet for 160 miles. But a splinter from the track, thrown by one of the other cars with great force, entered the radiator puncturing the water tank, and forced him from the race. De Palma's car rode on Goodyears also.

MOTOR CAR IS NOW VITAL NECESSITY

"Physicians, real estate dealers, traveling salesmen, municipal departments and public service corporations are a few classes to whom the motor car is indispensable," says J. E. Newell of the Newell Motor Car Co., Dort distributor in St. Louis.

"Tens of thousands of automobiles are required each year to satisfy demand from these sources, yet they are but a fraction of the cars bought wholly or principally for business purposes. The automobile is one of the world's most important utilities."

TYRO HANDLES MACHINE WITH NEARLY 3000 PARTS

"The most surprising thing about automobiles to me is the simple fact that they render the splendid service they do," says P. H. Brockman of the De Luxe Automobile Company, local dealers in Oldsmobiles. "We now rely on them so confidently that we lose sight of the fact that they are in truth wonderful, complicated, and in some respects delicate machinery.

"In the average car today there are from twenty-five hundred to three thousand parts. In the motor alone are several hundreds of these. From our experience with the simple tools we all use in our daily work, we know the possibility of any part giving trouble. If we were told to operate a machine built of 3000 parts we would wish we were expert mechanics.

"Besides involving scores of mechanical principles, many of which are new to the mechanical world, automobile construction embodies many principles of electricty, and of hot and cold water, and of lubrication, etc. Some of the parts are shaped by the mighty blows of monster drop forges while others are so minute and delicate they exact the care and pains of a watchmaker.

"And when all this is assembled together, it is mounted on wheels and given over to people from every walk of life, to use with care or speed at 60 miles an hour.

"It's the brains of the automobile engineers, and the skill of the motor car mechanics, and the science and exactness of the army of inspectors that have made the automobile the dependable vehicle it is."

Important men in the automobile manufacturing field who attended the big advertising convention in St. Louis last week were Charles W. Mears, general manager of the Winton Co.; W. C. Barnes, publicity manager for the Garford Motor Truck Co.; John Vette of the Hudson factory, C. G. Anderson, from the Jeffry factory; W. H. Koch, district sales manager of the Stephens six factory.

Thomas L. Robinson, chairman of the board of directors of the Republic Rubber Co., announced the appointment of Guy E. Norwood as president of the company.

The R. C. Solomon Motor Car Co., closed a contract Saturday for 10 Pathfinder cars with D. D. Adams of Joplin, Mo. Solomon has just returned from the Pathfinder factory.

WHY MOTOR TRUCKS ARE REPLACING HORSES

Almost countless columns have been printed on the passing of the horse and the reasons therefore, but new and astounding figures come to light every day which make the situation more impressive to the casual observer. In Los Angeles County, California, for example, a late report shows that there are less than half of the number of horses there today than there were in 1900 and in the meantime the number of registered automobiles in the same county has increased from six to 79,146.

In 1900, there were on the county assessor's books 47,000 horses, valued at $5,000,000. There were just six motor cars valued at $8,400. The next ten years reduced the number of horses to 31,000 having a value of $3,000,000. The automobiles numbered 11,000, having a value of $15,400,000. During the ensuing six years the horses dropped down to 20,000 while the automobiles jumped nearly to the 80,000 mark, with a total value of nearly $100,000,000.

About a dozen dont's give the more important reasons for the rapid decline of the time honored hodse, in the opinion of E. A. Williams, Jr., president of the Garford Motor Truck Company.

"In the first place," he says, "motor trucks don't eat every time they stand still. They don't keep you up at night with the collis or other ailments to which the equine body is heir. They don't have distemper. They don't balk, if you feed them and take care of them. They don't have lockjaw, or something equally serious, when they step on rusty nails, but they keep right on about their business. They don't die."

SUBMARINES CHANGE MOTOR CAR ROUTING

Automobile manufacturers with large export businesses have developed a deep-seated grudge against the much advertised German submarine, according to A. S. Watson, export manager for the Allen Motor Co., Fostoria, O., in a letter to the Mound City Auto Co of St. Louis.

The reason for this strange prejudice, says Mr. Watson, is that automobiles directed to Australian and New Zealand ports must now make a trip across the continent in order to avoid danger of contact with the Kaiser's pets.

Until recently most New Zealand and Australian consignments went to New York and from there down the east coast and through the Panama Canal. But when his imperial German majesty declared unrestricted submarine warfare the Atlantic Ocean lost some of its popularity with the Allen company.

The more trustworthy waters of the Pacific now carry the Allen cars to Australia and New Zealand and, of course, San Francisco and Vancouver are the points of embarkation, instead of New York.

EXPORTS ARE HEAVY.

Foreign shipments, despite all the difficulties imposed by the war, have been an important feature of Marmon "34" sales all spring. Nordyke & Marmon Co. of Indianapolis say within the last 10 days of May foreign shipments of the Marmon amounted to more than 30 cars. Thirteen went to Peru and Chile. Ten cars, six touring and four roadsters, went to the Marmon dealer at Christiana, Norway; and dealers in the Philippines got two cars on the way to them. Three Marmons were shipped to San Juan, Porto Rica.

AIDS FORCE TO BUY BONDS

As proof that the manufacturers of today are fully alive to the seriousness of the present national crisis, comes news of the recent activities of the Fisk Rubber Company of Chicopee Falls in behalf of the Liberty Loan issue.

This public spirited concern immediately upon announcement that the Liberty Bonds would be floated, proposed a partial payment and installment plan whereby its employes would be enabled to participate. It agreed to purchase bonds in any sum named on behalf of its employes, permitting them to make reimbursement upon either one of two plans. The first plan was made available to salaried employes, the alternative plan applied to those on the weekly payroll. In both cases the payments are distributed over a period of nearly one year. For instance, an employe wishing to buy a $50 bond would make payment of $1 per week until paid up.

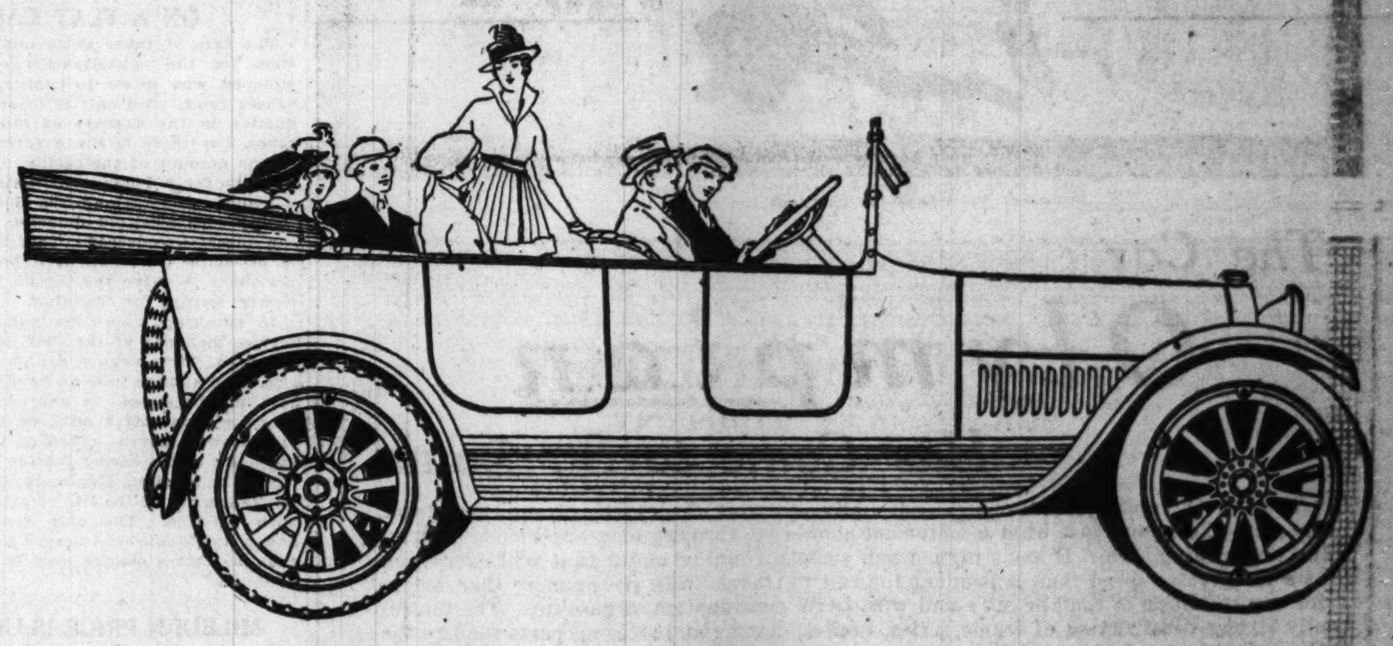
Studebaker



The Studebaker Car

A Car of Proved Economy

ECONOMY is measured by value received. The man who studies and analyzes and compares usually gets the most for his money. Economy means wise buying.

In Detroit, where thousands of people are directly connected with the production of automobiles, where people know from daily contact the organizations producing 80% of all American cars, there are more Studebaker cars registered than any other car selling at over $500.

In other words, where automobile materials are studied and automobile workmanship analyzed and compared, where practically everyone is motor-wise, Studebaker cars are bought in greatest numbers because they are known to be the best values on the market dollar for dollar of their prices.

Detroit's judgment of Studebaker Value is vindicated by the performance of Studebaker cars on the roads of America.

In the Far West, on the stage routes of the Rocky Mountains, on the hardest, hilliest drives in the United States, Studebaker cars stand up and give the service at a minimum expense for upkeep and repairs.

This is proved by the official registration figures of California, which show that in California there are more Studebaker cars registered than any other car selling at over $500.

Although Studebaker cars are probably the most powerful cars on the market in ratio to their weight, they are very economical in their consumption of gasoline.

Their weight is so perfectly balanced that Studebaker owners frequently get from 8,000 to 10,000 miles on a single set of tires.

Their remarkable accessibility reduces adjustment and repair expense to a minimum.

For these reasons Studebaker cars are distinctly economical to operate.

Due to their high quality and mechanical perfection Studebaker cars have uniformly high values in case of a re-sale or trade-in.

For this reason a Studebaker car is very economical to own.

Therefore, if you want to get the most for your money—if you want to practice true economy by purchasing wisely, follow the example of those who know by study, and by service rendered—buy a Studebaker.

AIR PAINT BRUSH NOT RIGHT FOR FINE CARS

It has been finally discovered by manufacturers of high-grade automobiles that they cannot use air brushes for painting their cars. Where careful work that is intended to last, and stay lustrous for a long period, and not to chip off, is desired, the air brush will not do.

At the factory of the Moon Motor Car Co., of St. Louis, the air brush was tried, but soon abandoned. Now every particle of paint on a Moon car, from priming coat to the final finishing varnish is put on by expert painters, by hand, with a brush. This department is in charge of M. L. Egold, who has been foreman of the Moon paint shop for 11 years, and who, prior to that time, had long experience in the painting of fine coaches and carriages.

The Moon Co., has adopted as its standard colors, bronze green, battleship gray, in bright or dull finish, maroon, black and London smoke. However the company accepts orders for special finish jobs, in any desired color, without extra charge.

The Car

Olympian

Has Come to St. Louis

The Car Olympian was designed—especially—to meet the exacting requirements of the man who knows just what a motor car should be, through long experience in driving and owning them. It has a high-speed, smooth running motor that will carry you at a far greater speed than is prudent for you to travel—with power more than ample for any condition of road or hill—and with LOW consumption of gasoline. The unusually strong construction of frame, axles, brakes, driving and steering parts renders the Olympian a car of utmost safety.

It is a BEAUTIFUL car—full streamline design—the full height hood—the slope of the windshield—the graceful sweep of the fenders—all attest to the designer's success in the attainment of that much desired impression commonly known as "class."

Luxury With Economy

All practical luxury features that make for comfort in the big costly car, have been retained—long, easy riding springs—long wheelbase—luxurious upholstering—everything that makes touring a pleasure. On the other hand, the economy of the small car has been retained—the avoidance of excessive weight meaning greater distances with less consumption of gasoline—less weight on tires, and so more mileage. These are features that attract the EXPERIENCED automobilist immediately.

Be Prudent

The Car Olympian makes a strong appeal to the prudent motorist. Heretofore, cars have been at two extremes—big, COSTLY cars; little CHEAP cars. The big cars of many cylinders and excessive weight are COSTLY to run. On the other hand the little cars lack comfort—lack style—lack beauty and lines—are embarrassing to their owners. The Car Olympian possesses none of the disadvantages of either extreme. It was designed to meet just this middle demand—and has succeeded admirably.

One of the most important factors in the system of guarding the health of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. employes is the dental clinic. Twenty thousand cases are treated in the clinic annually, service and advice being free to the thirteen thousand factory and office employes.

Every applicant for a position with the company must pass a dental as well as physical examination and the condition of his teeth are checked up every three months. Tooth brushes and dentifrice are furnished at cost and careful instructions given as to the proper care of the teeth.

The company maintains a large dental operating room and laboratory. The former has four chairs completely equipped with the best instruments. The laboratory also is furnished with the latest appliances for research work.

LIBERTY AIDS BOND SALE

In a unique way the Liberty Motor Car Co. is promoting the sale of Liberty Bonds. The idea is that of President Percy Owen, and consists of covering the country with "reminder" cards which immediately suggest to anyone reading them that it is his duty to buy Liberty Bonds.

The cards in question are in two sizes, each having a different message and each intended to be displayed in a different place. The larger of the cards is for store windows and contains the words: "We Have Bought Liberty Bonds. Have You?" The smaller size is designed for a place on the individual's desk and its message reads as follows: "I have Bought a Liberty Bond. Have You?"

ORGANIZED MOTORISTS TO SELL LIBERTY BONDS

What will be known as "Liberty Loan Automobile Week" will begin Monday, June 11, and continue during the five remaining days in which the final subscriptions will be made for the first issue authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury.

During its recent annual meeting the American Automobile Association appointed a special committee to cooperate in the various Federal Reserve Bank districts with the Liberty Loan representatives.

In a letter sent to presidents and secretaries of A. A. A. clubs throughout the country, Chairman Yellott thus indicates the manner in which the organized motorists are expected to expend their efforts:

"We have a comparatively limitely time in which to lend our nation-wide strength to the sale of the first bond issue, and I am calling upon you to ask the members of your club to get in touch at once with the nearest banking institution in your locality which has to do with the sale of Liberty Loan bonds.

"In behalf of the committee, I am asking you personally to see to it that your club at once sets the wheels in motion, and I know that you will use every facility at your command. Furthermore, I am going to suggest that you also have your members invest in as many Liberty Bonds as possible."

SHIP'S ANCHOR CAUGHT CAR LOST FOUR YEARS

A Mitchell automobile, which was lost in transit while being ferried across Chesapeake Bay, has been recovered by the torpedo boat destroyer Benham. When the torpedo destroyer lifted its anchor, the automobile was found caught in it.

The interesting account given below is taken from the American Marine Engine, a copy of which has just been received by Wesley Stanger of the Mitchell Auto Co. of St. Louis.

"When the torpedo boat destroyer Benham attempted to raise one of her big anchors a couple of miles offshore in Chesapeake Bay recently, preparatory to leaving her position near the submarine nets at the entrance to the Bay, trouble was found in raising the starboard hook. When the anchor was finally hoisted on deck there came along with it a fully equipped five-passenger Mitchell automobile. The top was nearly all gone but the body and chassis were in fairly good condition after four years in salt water and mud."

The Mitchell Motors Co., Inc. at Racine, Wis., received notice of the find and report that the car was lost four years ago from the Old Dominion Line ferry boat Berkeley.

CAR SHOULD NOT BE RUN ON A FLAT CASING

The care of tubes is an important item for the consideration of the motorist who wants to keep his expenses down. Not only is there a reduction in the expense of replacing tubes, but there is the greater saving on account of the casing. A bad tube suddenly letting the weight of a heavy car down onto the flattened casing causes untold damage, which can never be recovered. This damage is, of course, increased if it becomes necessary to drive the car on to the nearest garage for changing.

In speaking upon this point, the service manager of the Fisk Rubber Co., says, "Never run a car on a flat tire, keep a spare tube on hand ready for immediate use. A short run of no more than half a mile, no matter how slowly driven, causes a breaking down of the casing fabrics which cannot be repaired. Hundreds of miles are taken out of the life of a tire by such practice. The only remedy—and a simple one—is to carry a spare tube, so that a change may be made instantly."

MILBURN PRICE IS UP.

An advance of $1000 in the price of the Milburn Electric, manufactured in Toledo by the Milburn Wagon Co., has been announced as effective June 15. The present price of the car is $1685 and orders will be taken at that figure until the date announced for the new price by the local representatives, Marshall Bros.

When the Milburn Company recently announced its new and larger model, there was no increase in price. Company officials felt that, if the material manufacturers would live up to their agreements, the greater production of the new model would enable the company to sell it at a more narrow margin of profit than ever before.

The material situation soon became uncertain, however, and now the company finds itself following in the footsteps of the majority of other manufacturers who have had to add on to the selling price of their product in order to keep pace with advances in the cost of materials.

CLIFTON IS PRESIDENT.

At a record gathering of automobile manufacturers with more than 90 companies represented, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce members re-elected Charles Clifton, head of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company, to the presidency. Other officers elected were: Vice president, Wilfred C. Leland, (Cadillac); division vice presidents, Hugh Chalmers, (Chalmers); Windsor T. White, (White) and Herbert H. Rice, (Oakland); R. D. Chapin, (Hudson) Secretary; George Pope, treasurer and Alfred Reeves, general manager.

John F. Dodge of Dodge Brothers, Detroit, was elected to the directorate.

Speckhaus and Martin, automobile dealers at Morrison, Mo., will conduct a parade today from Morrison to Hermann, Mo., of Inter-State and Lexington cars which they have recently sold. Harry Richards of the Superior Motor Co. of St. Louis and F. J. Hugger from the Lexington factory and C. C. Conrad of the Superior Co. will take part in the parade or tour.

During May the Post-Dispatch printed 1822 Wanted to Purchase Want Ads—465 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

ELIMINATES THE HORSE FROM LUMBER YARDS

"Lumber dealers used to say that motor trucks never could take the place of horses in their business, but they have," says C. E. Morton, Pacific Coast district manager for the Packard Motor Car Co.

"How a little study of the lumber trucking problem will work out to great advantage is well illustrated by the experience of Melvin Savage of San Francisco, who lets his Packard trucks out to the Christenson Lumber Co. Not only has he solved the long-haul problem, but the short haul and quick loading and unloading ones, too.

"Old lumber wagons equipped with rollers serve as platforms on which the load is placed in the yard. The truck is backed up to the load and the load rolled on. Arriving at his destination, the driver dumps the load in the same manner as the ordinary roller bolster lumber wagon. Loading and unloading are accomplished in five minutes. While the trucks are on the road the platforms are being loaded in the yard, so no time will be lost.

NATIONAL ALLIES BUY OUR NATIONAL CAR

International patriotism on the western hemisphere follows the national sales flag. Cuba, the first of the pan-American republics to support President Wilson in his declaration of war against Germany, has purchased more National Highway Sixes and Twelves than any other country with which the National Motor Car and Vehicle Co. of Indianapolis does an export business. Brazil and Argentine, which next cast their lot with the United States in the fight on autocracy, rank second and third among the foreign customers of the national company while Panama, which also has allied itself with Uncle Sam, is fourth, according to George M. Dickson, president of the National company. On the other hand, Mexico, which is suffering from German measles, as well as revolution germs, has very few National cars within its disputed borders.

The sight of an automobile president, heading a company bearing his own name, and driving a car of his own design also bearing his own name, will be afforded to racing fans for the first time next summer, when Louis Disbrow, king of dirt track race drivers, and president of the Disbrow Motors Corporation, appears before the public after announcing his retirement from the game. He will pilot a Disbrow "Special," his new creation, in which he has done 96 miles an hour, and during the 10 weeks' period he will defend his title against teams put out by Alex Sloan, R. A. Hankinson, and, in fact, all comers. Before each race his managers, Friedman Brothers, will post a forfeit of $1000 which will go to the first man who succeeds in wresting the championship laurels from Disbrow.

AMERICAN NAVAL SECRETS GOT INTO HANDS OF ENEMY

Daniels Believes Officials Have Spoken Too Freely to Friends and Relatives.

ISSUES A WARNING

Admonishes Service Men and Civilians Not to Discuss Military Movements.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Convinced that valuable naval information is reaching the enemy, Secretary Daniels issued an order today at the urgent request of Admiral Benson, chief of operations, forbidding all persons in the naval service from discussing, except officially, even among themselves or with the members of their families, "any question relating to the disposition, movements or proposed movements of naval or military forces."

The department acted after officers of the intelligence division had reported that information, the nature of which was not disclosed, had leaked to Germany. Daniels said he had hesitated to issue the order, but that his military advisers had been very urgent. There was no thought, he said, that any person in the navy had revealed the plans of the department except through inadvertence.

Lesson From Allies.

The secretary pointed out that experiences of the allies had shown that very unimportant seeming news was sometimes a sufficient clew for an alert foe to determine a movement in advance.

The purposes of the department are fully explained in the order which Secretary Daniels was careful to explain did not refer to the press and was in no sense an effort to prevent the newspapers from getting news. The order follows:

"The Navy Department has reason to believe that information of character most valuable to the enemy and which might prove disastrous to the navy, has in some way reached the enemy.

"In view of the strenuous efforts that have been made to prevent the dissemination of such information, the department believes that in practically every instance this has resulted from certain information being given in confidence to or spoken in the presence of a close relative or a friend, who, failing to appreciate the gravity of the offense, inadvertently transmitted it into the hands of those who most desired to obtain it.

"Situation Too Grave."

"The department has on previous occasions endeavored to impress upon everyone in the naval service the urgent necessity for carefully guarding against the dissemination of any military information which could possibly be of advantage to an enemy," said the Secretary. "The situation at this time is entirely too grave to permit of a continuance of the present practice in this regard."

"Officers, enlisted persons and civilian employes are therefore directed not to discuss any question relating to the disposition, movements or proposed movements of naval or military forces (including personnel), at any time, except officially, either among themselves or with any person outside the naval service. It should be clearly understood that families and relatives are to be considered as "outside the naval service."

"All persons who attempt to obtain prohibited information from persons in the naval service should be regarded with suspicion and reported without delay to the proper authorities.

Order to Be Read to Crews.

"Those to whom a knowledge of a violation of this order comes shall consider it a serious official duty to report the matter immediately to the Navy Department for disciplinary action.

"This order shall be read to the crews of all naval vessels and shall be posted in conspicuous places on board all ships of the navy. Chiefs of bureaus and commandants of navy yards and stations will see that it is brought to the attention of all persons, civil and military, under their orders."

ADMIRAL ROUSSEAU GETS PLACE ON SHIP CORPORATION

Appointed to Position Left Vacant by Dismissal of F. A. Eustis.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Rear Admiral Harry H. Rousseau, of the Civil Engineering Corps of the Navy, was today designated assistant general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation to fill the vacancy caused by the dismissal of F. A. Eustis, following the wooden ship controversy. Samuel L. Fuller will act as assistant to Admiral Rousseau in place of F. Huntington Clark, also dismissed.

Admiral Rosseau was a member of the Panama Canal Commission and was associated with Gen. Goethals in the building of the canal. He is a native of New York and was appointed to the navy in 1898, and appointed Rear Admiral in the Civil Engineering Corps March 4, 1915, according to the provisions of an act of Congress "for the recognition of certain officers of the army, navy and public health service." At the time he was made Rear Admiral he also received the thanks of Congress.

TOLD SECRET, ALMOST ROBBED

HAZELTON, Pa., June 9.—Fearing confiscation of her cash on account of the war, Mrs. Annie Pisarczyk of West Hazelton withdrew her savings of $550 from the bank and concealed the wad in a bag tied about her left armpit.

Now she charges Victor Dongales, a neighbor, with attempted robbery after she had confided her secret to the wife of Dongales. Mrs. Pisarczyk claims that at a point near her home sometime afterward Dongales knocked her down and tried to take the money from her, but fled when she screamed.

REGISTRATION TO BE MILLION SHORT OF THE ESTIMATE

Indications on Basis of Half Returns Show Probable Total of 9,000,000.

10,264,000 EXPECTED

Many States, However, Which Sent Report, Are Filing Supplemental Figures.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Twenty-six states and the District of Columbia, having all told slightly more than 50 per cent of the country's population, had sent in complete reports of their military registration tonight showing total registrations of 4,716,768 young men for war service.

For the territory reporting the census estimate was 5,372,596 eligibles, and the basis of the returns it was calculated that the grand total of registration probably would be close to 9,000,000 in place of 10,264,000 as forecast by the census experts.

2,508,000 Possible Exemptions.

The reports showed white registrations totaling 3,501,456; colored, 634,170; alien, 277,057, and enemy alien, 45,018. Possible exemptions indicated totaled 2,508,624.

Officials pointed out tonight that the census figures were intended only as approximate, and that the discrepancy should not be taken as indicating evasion of the draft. It also was pointed out that between 500,000 and 1,000,000 men included in the estimate already are members of the armed forces of the nation and therefore did not register.

Supplemental Reports Made.

Many of the states which previously reported complete returns are sending supplemental reports adding to their totals. The states which had sent returns when the Provost Marshal-General's office closed tonight were:

Alabama, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, West Virginia, North Dakota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Iowa, Texas, Colorado and Kansas.

Final tabulation may be delayed a week or more.

ONLY $1,300,000,000 OF LIBERTY BONDS BOUGHT

Within Next Seven Days $100,000,000 Worth a Day Must Be Sold to Complete Issue.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—With only a week left in which to subscribe to the Liberty Loan, subscriptions must come at the rate of $100,000,000 a day to make up the total of $2,000,000,000. To date only $1,300,000,000 has been subscribed for. The daily average of subscriptions has been only $54,000,000.

The Treasury machinery, with its subsidiary Federal Reserve Banks and their thousands of ramifications into the nation's money stores, was set working at top speed today to gather in promises of participation in the loan.

An appeal was directed to banks, trust companies, merchants, employers and other agencies soliciting subscriptions to report their progress at once to the proper Federal Reserve Banks. Thus Treasury officials hoped to discover that the loan is not lagging quite as much as returns indicate.

ADDITIONAL MEASURES TO GUARD FORMER CZAR TAKEN

Due to Large Influx of Summer Residents—He May Exercise Only Two Hours Daily.

LONDON, June 9.—The Times Petrograd correspondent writes:

"On account of the large influx of summer residents into Tsarskoe Seloe additional measures have been taken to guard Nicholas II and his family.

"The ex-Czar is permitted to take exercise only two hours daily, morning and evening. A military escort follows all his movements from a distance not exceeding 25 paces. The ex-Czar's children take their outings separately.

"The ex-Czar and his wife have to appear at their window twice daily in order that the officer commanding the guard may be able to see them. A triple cordon of troops surrounds the palace grounds. At yesterday's meeting of the labor section of the Petrograd committee it was resolved to demand the transfer of the ex-Czar and his family to the prison at Kronstadt."

BANKING LAW DOESN'T APPLY IN CASE OF LIBERTY BONDS

Comptroller Rules That National Institutions May Accept Notes For More Than 10 Per Cent of Capital.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Comptroller Williams ruled today that the law limiting loans by a national bank to any corporation or person to an amount not exceeding 10 per cent of the bank's capital and surplus would not apply in cases where banks aid their customers in purchasing Liberty Loan bonds by installments.

"Such a transaction would not be construed by this office as involving the borrowing of money from the national bank," read the Comptroller's decision. "The notes here accepted as part of the purchase price are evidence of the agreement on the part of the purchaser to pay at a future date the balance of the purchase money of the bonds, in accordance with the agreement of sale, and are not, therefore, subject to the limitation imposed."

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Newton today advanced the semimonthly payday of the Treasury Department one day to June 14 to permit them to make subscriptions to the Liberty Loan.

LOSS OF LIFE IN QUAKE BELIEVED TO BE NOT GREAT

Wide Destruction of Property, However, Is Reported From San Salvador.

PEOPLE HAD WARNING

Two Neighboring Towns Virtually Destroyed and Most of Deaths Occurred There.

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, June 9.—Although the earthquake which shook San Salvador, capital of Salvador, and neighboring towns Thursday evening, caused considerable destruction of property, it is not believed that the loss of life was great. However, no authentic information of the casualties and damage caused by the earthquake and the simultaneous eruption of the San Salvador volcano is as yet obtainable.

Some of the principal commercial houses and theaters in San Salvador were destroyed, as were hundreds of smaller homes. The neighboring towns of Armenia and Quezaltepeque were virtually destroyed and most of the casualties caused by the disaster occurred there. The large town of Santa Tecla, several miles west of San Salvador, suffered great property damage, but the loss of life there was small.

Earth Shocks Continue.

The earth shocks continue to be felt in the country side around San Salvador, but they are diminishing in intensity.

The residents of the Salvadorean capital, according to the accounts of eyewitnesses, were finishing the evening meal when the city and the surrounding towns began to shake. This was at 7 o'clock Thursday evening. Almost simultaneously the San Salvador volcano began to throw out lava and ashes through three freshly opened craters. The extremely low casualty list in San Salvador is believed to be due to the early hour of the disaster, as it enabled the inhabitants to flee to the streets and other open places as soon as the first shock was felt.

Quake Accompanied by Rain.

A torrential rain accompanied the earthquake and fell for six hours, greatly increasing the sufferings of the inhabitants who had erected temporary shelters in the squares and public gardens.

Although the earth shocks were felt at a considerable distance from the center of activity, the departments of San Salvador and La Libertad were those chiefly affected.

Funds for the relief of the sufferers are being raised in Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

A message received here from the President of Nocaragua also indicates that the casualties at San Salvador were small.

A report from San Miguel says only 100 houses were left standing in San Salvador, a city of approximately 64,000 inhabitants.

EAST ST. LOUISAN HELD FOR MAILING ANTI-DRAFT CIRCULARS

Naturalized Dane Says He Was Swayed by Emma Goldman Three Years Ago.

J. B. Nelson, 43 years old, a newspaper carrier, residing at 605 North Twenty-eighth street, East St. Louis, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a Federal warrant, charging conspiracy to violate the conscription act.

About 1000 anti-conscription circulars were confiscated at his home last Sunday. The circulars urged that all persons resist conscription and donate money to defend persons apprehended by the Government. The circular was signed "No-Conscription League, 20 North 125th street, New York."

Nelson came to this country from Denmark 28 years ago, and is a naturalized citizen. He said that about three years ago he heard Emma Goldman speak, thought her speeches were good and later he subscribed $5 for the defense of several dynamiters in California.

About a month ago he received an anti-conscription circular through the mails and, after reading it, sent $3 to the league to assist it. A week ago he received several hundred of the circulars. He said he only gave away four or five and did not know that it was against the law.

He will be given a preliminary hearing this week. Meanwhile he is in jail in default of $2500 bond.

EASTERN RAILROADS SUBMIT RATE INCREASE ARGUMENS

Shippers Urge Commerce Commission to Make Thorough Inquiry Before Granting Advance.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Eastern railways and shippers today submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission their final arguments on the proposed 15 per cent advance in freight rates. The carriers in other sections and other interested parties will be heard Monday and Tuesday.

The Eastern carriers' attorneys told the commission that ample evidence of an emergency had been presented: increased costs of fuel, supplies and equipment, as well as advanced costs of labor under the Adamson law. The shippers' representatives declared that prophecies of the railways had proved fallacious in the past, and urged the commission not to grant an increase in rates until a thorough investigation of the basis of carriers' expense forecasts for 1917 had been made.

"Slackers" Now Ready to Register.

POULTRY, BIRDS and ANIMALS

FEEDING CANARIES A VERY SIMPLE MATTER

Biologist of U. S. Department of Agriculture Tells of Various Requsites for Songsters.

Contrary to the belief of many persons who have had no experience in keeping canaries, the matter of feeding these birds is very simple. According to Alexander Wetmore, assistant biologist of the Bureau of Biological Survey, Department of Agriculture, the prime requisite in the way of feed for canaries is a supply of good canary seed to which is added a small quantity of rape seed and a little hemp. This seed may be bought already mixed. One should be careful to see that the seed is clean and well matured, but not too old and musty.

This seed mixture is the staple diet, but in addition the birds should have some lettuce, chickweed, or a bit of apple frequently. Bread moistened in scalded milk and fed cold is also good, but all moist food should be fed strictly fresh, and not too wet. About once a week food may be given, made by mincing an entire hard boiled egg and adding to it an equal quantity of bread or unsalted cracker crumbs. This, too, should be fed only when fresh. Cuttle bone should always be kept before the birds.

During the breeding season the egg food must be given daily as soon as the birds are paired. While the female is hatching it may be discontinued or fed once every three or four days. For the first day after the hatch the yolk of a hard-boiled egg only should be given. Bread crumbs are added to this gradually until the third day, when the egg food, as prepared ordinarily, is given again. But no matter what other foods are fed, the seed mixture should always be present. Just enough of the egg or moist food should be given so that the allowance will be cleaned up at each feeding. When the young are four or five days old green food may be fed, but the egg food must be continued until they are fully grown and able to crack canary seed for themselves.

Meal worms occasionally are good for birds that are not thriving. A craving for animal food may be satisfied by bits of raw steak, but it is not advisable to feed this regularly as it will cause a foul odor about the cage. For delicate birds rape seed soaked in water overnight and carefully drained until dry, is beneficial. When the old birds are caring for well-grown young birds, feeding cracked hemp seed will lighten their labor. English fanciers favor maw seed or poppy seed as a stimulant, but its use must be guarded. It is poisonous to most animals, including man, but seems to have no effect on birds.

How to Improve the Poultry Flock

It has become a well-established principle in breeding poultry that, in order to improve the progeny from generation to generation, it is best to choose parents which have similar characteristics. If one wants a general purpose fowl, it may be had by mating a male from a meat-producing strain to hens which are excellent layers and bred from layers, and again it may not. The result may be a mongrel or scrub, or it may be some birds which partake of the qualities of one parent, and some which have the qualities of the other. At any rate, such breeding is not scientific.

The best way to get all-purpose fowls is to breed from an all-purpose pair of parents. In this way you tend to intensify the qualities desired. The progeny of any pair of animals are not likely to be half way between the two parents in character. They tend to be either like one parent or the other.

The old principle that the "male is half the pen" should be remembered. In other words, the male should be chosen with more care than the females.

Keep Incubators Clean and Wholesome

Incubators should be clean and wholesome. When the old one is first used every precaution should be used to see that it be absolutely sweet and clean. Wash it thoroughly with soap and water and brush. A little carbolic acid, or some food disinfectant in the water, will help. And then the incubator should be kept in a sanitary condition all season. It should be cleaned thoroughly after each hatch. In other respects also the incubator should be kept in a sanitary condition.

A cellar is an excellent place for an incubator if it is not too dark and damp. Above all, provision for ventilation should be made in the incubator cellar. Poor hatches are often the result of bad air in the room or cellar in which the incubator is kept. A good practice is first to have the incubator clean, provide good air and then follow carefully the printed instructions of the manufacturer throughout the period of incubation.

Birds First Essential in Poultry Raising

Fowls themselves are the chief part of the equipment of the poultry raiser, while other things are necessary, such as houses, yards, good food, good air, nests, roosts, etc., it is poor economy to spend money liberally for houses and other equipment and then stint on the fowls. You can get along with piano boxes for houses and almost any kind of old boxes for nests and coops, if you can afford nothing better, but you would better have no birds at all than to have those which you will keep at a loss.

Income Tax Paying Army Larger.

LONDON, June 9.—Income taxpayers in England in 1913-14 numbered 1,200,000 and in 1916-17 3,200,000.

POULTRY PROBLEMS SOLVED

Plymouth Rocks.

Will you kindly tell me what breed of chickens the "Barred Rock" is? What is the difference between it and the Plymouth Rock?—W. J. Z., St. Louis, Mo.

"Plymouth Rock" is the name given to a breed of chickens. The Barred Plymouth Rocks are a variety of that breed, the same as the White Plymouth Rocks, Buff Plymouth Rocks, Partridge Plymouth Rocks, Columbian Plymouth Rocks, etc. Of these the Barred Rock is the most familiar, with its characteristic black and white markings in the form of bars on the feathers, from which its name originated.

Duck Eggs in Incubators.

Please advise me as to the time to start the moisture, the time to stop and how often to apply it, in hatching duck and geese eggs in a regular hot water heated, non-moisture style of incubator.—L. E. H., St. Louis, Mo.

We could have given a much more definite and intelligent reply had we known the make of incubator you intend to use for this purpose. Some machines do not require additional moisture, but nine out of ten do require more than is provided for. In general our advice would be to place two wet Turkish towels in the bottom of the incubator after the seventh day. Wring these from steaming hot water and put them in the nusery tray morning and night until the morning of the twenty-seventh day. The amount of moisture required varies with the temperature of the room in which the machine is placed, and also the circulation of air in the room. Generally speaking, all the moisture that is needed by these eggs will be evaporated from the towels. During warm dry weather you will find more moisture has disappeared from the towels than on rainy or damp, cool days.

How to Eliminate the Broody Hens

Eliminate the broody hens. Even the fowls have no right to sit and do nothing at a time when the country is facing a food shortage, according to Ross M. Sherwood, acting head of the poultry department in the Kansas Agricultural College.

"The average hen lays four to five eggs a week, worth 12 to 15 cents at the present price of eggs," said Sherwood. "Hens should be 'broken up' as soon as they become broody. If possible, do not let them set over night, for a day saved in shutting them up may save two days of their laying period.

"Broody hens should be placed in airy coops with slat bottoms and kept off the ground. Too frequently an ordinary box or tub is turned over them, and as a result they are almost as content to sit on the ground as they were on the nest.

"It is a mistake to starve a broody hen. She should be well fed, so that she will be ready to lay when turned out. Avoid fattening the hen while breaking her up. Give a limited amount of grains and a liberal supply of milk and table scraps. Care should be taken to turn the hens out as soon as they are broken up."

Give Your Pullets Shell-Forming Food

Give the pullets a good supply of shell-forming material. They crave it, especially when they are laying their first eggs, and failure to supply it may mean the formation of the vicious habit of egg-eating, which is contagious and sometimes very difficult to break up.

Pullets should have, besides grain, some meat, oyster shell, grit and green stuff. If fed properly they are not likely to learn to eat their eggs.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

SPECULATION IS ACTIVE AND PRICES SHARPLY HIGHER ON NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

Trading Reflects a Strongly Bullish Tone Throughout the Week.

IRON MARKET STRONG

Highest Prices Since Civil War Are Recorded in Face of Abnormal Demand.

Steel Tonnage Shows a Loss of 296,492 in May.

NEW YORK, June 9.—The unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation on May 31, was 11,886,591 tons, according to the report issued today, a decrease of 296,492 tons from the April 30 figures, which were the highest in the history of the corporation.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 9.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Wheat and iron are probably the markets to which the ordinary business man of a given period, and the economist of a period long afterward, will look to determine the tendency of prices in that time. Application of the test to the period in which we are living would emphasize the fact that a few weeks ago wheat at Chicago went to the highest price in the history of the United States, and that this week iron went to the highest price since the Civil War, when the market for it was influenced by an inflated currency and by the fact that the product was imported with an enormous import tariff.

"The rise in wheat was checked by restriction of the market and by knowledge that the Government was ready to clap on a maximum price. The rise in iron is still going on, and the Government is indirectly the principal agent in promoting it. Both markets illustrate, each in a different way, the extraordinary character of the times in which we are living.

"War has always* in the past, advanced very notably the price of wheat and iron—of wheat, primarily because blockades interfered with free delivery from producing to consuming states; of iron, because of its use in war material; of both, frequently, because of inflation of the currencies. But to these habitual war influences, are added at the present time, a very unusual impetus in the rose of prices.

Wheat Supplies Are Low.

"Actual scarcity of wheat had been averted in the first two years of the European war, by the accident of two American crops, too stupendous in size as to cause apprehension among the growers whether they could sell them at good prices.

"This year—on the heels of a crop, so short last year throughout the world as to use up previous accumulations and leave producting states with their reserves exhausted at the end of the season—another unlucky crop season has begun, which gives no great promise of rebuilding those reserves.

"In iron, the demands of the belligerent States for munitions of war has increased so rapidly, with each year of conflict, as to more than keep pace with the hurried additions to the world's producing capacity, and, when our own Government's war demands were superimposed, to outstrip capacity.

"We have had short crops and iron—producing facilities unable to meet immediate demands, on numerous occasions in our time. Both phenomena, though on a smaller scale, were witnessed in the late nineties, and the revival of trade which followed. But the present situation in both markets cannot be paralleled without going back more than a century, to the climax of the twenty-year Napoleonic wars.

Some Past History.

"The circumstances which then caused the 'wheat famine' and the exorbitant price for metals, were the same in character as those which now exist; but 1809 presented no such malign and barbarous spectacle as Germany's navy, not capturing hostile grain ships, but sinking them with submarine torpedoes, because its own line of battle vessels were afraid to leave their ports.

"Nor did it present any such amazing use of metal in artillery fire as has occurred this week, in the advance of the English army on the German defences in Belgium.

"It has become utterly impossible to conjecture what the economic effect of this extraordinary situation is to be. No doubt, the answer rests mainly on the question of duration of the war. But one hears very little nowadays of the controversy as to what will happen to all these markets when the war ends. A year ago, that was the question in everybody's mind, because the problem of readjustment to normal conditions seemed to be uppermost.

"At present, however, that consideration is certainly superseded by two others—first, what is to end the war, and when; second, how can we foresee what are to be even the industrial and economic conditions after so prodigious and so economically wasteful a drain on the resources of nature.

"The announcement that subscriptions thus far to the Government war loan falls $700,000,000 short of the $2,000,000,000 required, means that intensive work must be done in the next six days, throughout the country; but it means nothing more than that. The situation merely duplicates what has happened repeatedly at this stage of the subscription to some of the largest European war loans. In our own case it was made more probable by the habitual dislike of the American investor to give up even a small part of his capital in the installment due on application, until the eleventh hour.

"The loan will unquestionably be covered. Nevertheless, the appeal to individual investors, between now and next Friday, must be of the most urgent sort, in order to avoid too large a relative participation by the banking institutions as distinguished from individual investors.

"The market showed strength and activity throughout the week, with wide gains scored on many of the leading industrial shares. Yesterday's prices were firm."

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, June 9.—"Financial London's judgment is that the new advance in Haig's army on the western front is the worst blow yet delivered against the enemy. In tangible achievement it transcends the battles at the Somme and at Arras and, with Messines Ridge now in our hands, we occupy the last height before the plains of Flanders.

"The original hope that our advance would be simultaneous with a forward movement by the Russians is apparently to be disappointed. Nevertheless, a better feeling prevails in the city and elsewhere regarding Russia's attitude; though it is recognized that time is needed for a satisfactory settlement of affairs after the recent great political upheaval.

"Lombard street looks for a successful result of your Government loan subscription. But it is difficult for us to judge the exact probabilities because we have no clear idea of what was the character and scope of your 'publicity campaign.' The great success of our own last war loan was largely due to the energetic public canvass. Subscribers who borrowed from the banks turned out to have provided nearly one-fifth of the £1,000,000,000 total, but the drawbacks of this process are now visible.

Advances Paid Slowly.

"The advances of the banks are being paid off slowly and borrowing holders of the new bonds are in many cases disposed to sell them. These sales tend to offset purchases for the sinking fund, made with a view to maintaining the loan at the issue price.

"It is now at a discout of ½ per cent.

"It is understood here that your gold exports are slackening, and that the exchange rate may weaken. But the city's belief is that in this as in other regards, strong enemy influences are at work in Spain.

"Your gold exports to Japan may easily continue, unless special steps should be taken to obviate the movement. That would be deprecated here, because we should have to fill any actual vacuum thus caused by sending gold ourselves. It is possible, however, that some optional mutual arrangement to restrict the exports may be made, when the Japanese Diet meets shortly.

"Your crop estimate is judged in the light of returns from the Continent, which are not encouraging. The French Minister of Agriculture gives the area sown to wheat in France May 1, at 10,000,000 acres, against nearly 13,000,000 a year ago, and the condition of winter wheat at 52, as against 68 last year, with spring wheat 57, against 72. Weather has lately been favorable, but local floods have damaged the grain. In Italy, however, the prospects for both wheat and oats crops are good."

Sudden establishment of a maximum price limit of $1.67 on corn proved by far the most important feature last week in the local grain trade. The effect, however, instead of being sedative, as in the case of wheat, led to a notable expansion of trading and to a big bulge in values. As compared with a week ago, corn closed 8¼c to 19c higher. Wheat showed gains of 23c to 36c, and oats were up ⅜c to 2⅛c.

Upward flights of the corn market seemed largely due to the fact that $1.67 a bushel, the maximum price set by the directors of the Merchants' Exchange, was much above the quotations which had been current before the action of the directors was taken. In case of wheat, taken on the other hand, the maximum named was below the level which the market had previously attained.

Unfavorable weather, unusual lightness of receipts and increasing demand, both domestic and foreign, were among the reasons assigned for the general eagerness which developed for the purchase of corn and for the consequent excited upward rush of prices. North American available supplies of corn were estimated at 4,856,000 bushels, as against 16,968,000 bushels a year ago.

Efforts of shorts to buy small amounts of wheat on a market bare of offerings had much to do with hoisting the cost of breadstuff material. The chief rise took place after announcement that the Government intended to protect growers in marketing their crops, and that prices would be guaranteed high enough to stimulate production. Notice was also taken of the fact that hedging sales of the new crop were scarce, and stocks at all Western terminal points unusually meager. Yesterday the market mounted 10c, following the Government report of Friday, suggesting a wheat crop of 656,000,000 bu, or only 16,000,000 bu over the low harvest of last year.

The country's principal crops as estimated by the Crop Reporting Board of the Department of Agriculture, from reports of conditions on June 1, follow: (Figures in millions of bushels, i. e., 000,000's omitted.)

CROP.	Forecast.	1916 Crop.	1911-1915 Average.
Winter wheat	373	482	542

Hay (tons)	102	110	866
Apples	208	202	214
Peaches	454	369	490

Improved weather conditions during May increased prospects of winter wheat and indicated a crop of 373,000,000 bushels. The crop began this spring under adverse conditions, 12,437,000 acres having to be abandoned because of the severe winter and other causes. April 1 conditions indicated a production of 430,000,000 bushels, during that month growing conditions were so poor that the May 1 forecast was reduced to 366,116,000 bushels.

Condition of winter wheat by important states follows: Ohio, 86; Indiana, 69; Illinois, 64; Missouri, 64; Nebraska, 60; Kansas, 60; Oklahoma, 69. Condition of spring wheat by important states: Minnesota, 93; North Dakota, 85; South Dakota, 97.

JULY WHEAT SELLS UP 16C IN THE CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, June 9.—Wheat ran up swiftly today on account of the Government estimate that the total yield in the United States this season would be only 16,000,000 bushels more than was harvested in 1916. At an average rate of consumption, this would not allow to exceed 36,000,000 bushels for shipment to Europe. Under such circumstances sellers were scarce and efforts to purchase on a very moderate scale caused the market to rise temporarily as much as 16c a bushel.

Opening prices, which ranged from 1c to 16c higher, with July at $2.29 to $2.40, and September at $1.96 to $1.97, were followed by a sharp reaction soon from the extreme figures, the market steadying at 5c advance all around as compared with yesterday's finish.

Unfavorable weather led to active buying of corn. Prices advanced sharply with the December option leading. Trade in that delivery broadened out to a notable degree. After opening ½c to 3⅝c higher, the market scored substantial further gains and then fell back somewhat.

Bullish constructions placed on the Government report lifted the value of oats. There was free buying, chiefly on the part of commission houses.

Provisions went upward with grain. Lower quotations on hogs were ignored.

Shortage in Kansas and Nebraska of 101,000,000 bu gave new strength to the wheat market, which closed 7c to 11c net higher, with July at $2.35; Sept., $2.02.

Fresh upturns ensued in corn on considerable buying. The close was nervous, at ½c to 7¼c net advance.

CATTLE MARKET SHOWS A GOOD TRADING TONE

Beef Steers Are 15c to 25c Higher on the Week; Hogs Are Lower.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Week Before.	Last Year.
Cattle	25,600	28,500	21,000
Hogs	48,300	40,600	46,100
Sheep	9,700	15,700	20,000

The cattle market showed a good tone last week on all classes of killing cattle and particularly to beef steers and yearling butcher stuff They averaged 15c to 25c per cwt. higher Cows and bulls met with an active market, though with no material advance to speak of, but if anything, they were inclined to show a little stronger, compared with a week ago The market, however, for stockers and feeders was the only dull spot in the trade, and this class averaged 15c to 25c lower.

Choice to prime beef steers are quoted at $12.50 to $13.75, good to choice $11.25 to $12.25, medium to good $10.25 to $11.25, common to medium $9.25 to 10.25, common off-colored light killing steers $8.50 to $9.50, good to choice stockers and feeders $9 to $10.25, medium to good $8.25 to $9, common to medium $7.25 to $8.25, good to choice stock cows $7.25 to $7.75, common to fair $7 to $7.25, good to choice stock heifers $7.50 to $8.25, choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle $12 to $13.50, good to choice $11 to $12, medium to good $10 to $11, common to medium $7.50 to $9, choice to fancy heavy beef cows $10 to $11, good to choice $9.50 to $10, medium to good $8.75 to $9.50, cutters $7.50 to $8, canners $6.75 to $7, good fat beef bulls $9.75 to $10.50, heavy sausage bulls $9 to $9.50 and light sausage bulls $8 to $8.50.

There was a downward trend to the hog market. A week ago Friday the top was $16 per cwt., while $15.65 was the highest point reached yesterday. From all indications it looks like the country is desirous of getting rid of its hogs before they are in a finished condition, which is due to the fact that prices have been comparatively high, and the price of corn has been excessive.

Yesterday's top was $15.65, while choice hogs 180 lbs up sold at $15.25 to $16.65; mixed hogs 160 lbs up $14.75 to $15.15; 120 to 140 lb pigs, $13.50 to 14.75; lighter pigs, 9 to 13.50; best rough hogs around 15, and half-fat roughs at $10 to $12.

The sheep and lamb trade continued the downward scale noted for several weeks, and averaged $1.50 to $2 per cwt lower than a week ago. The supply, while not unusually heavy, was sufficient in view of the record prices prevailing, to cause buyers to concentrate their efforts to cheapen the cost of food stuffs. Thus, on yesterday's market, medium to best clipped lambs were quotable at $13.50 to $14.25; good spring lambs, $16 to $16.50; best cull springers, $12.50 to $13.50; little common skippy culls, $7.50 to $10; good fat sheep, $9.50 to $9.75; choppers, $7.50 to $8.25; canners, $4.50 to $5.50; bat bucks, $7.50 to $7.75, and breeding ewes, $10 to $11.25.

Fat aged goats are quoted at $7 to $8, and choice fat kid goats, $8.50 to $9.50.

CITY WORKERS FOR HARVEST

Government Plans to Send Factory Workers to Farms.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Two special representatives of the Department of Labor today went to Kansas and Missouri to work out a plan for using the industrial workers in the fields during the harvest season. The plan is to induce industrial plants to do their repairing and grant vacations during the harvest season to reelase a substantial number of men.

The representatives sent J. L. Srangler, a Pennsylvania coal operator and Immigration Commissioner Skeffington of Boston.

U. S. Flag With Only 34 Stars.

ROME, June 9.—The Stars and Stripes has become decidedly popular since the entry of the United States into the war, but the scarcity of the American flag prevents its display in many public places. In one street demonstration that took place the day the United States declared war an old flag was resurrected carrying but 34 stars, the flag having been in Baltimore before the Civil War.

COTTON MARKET SCORES A NEW TOP AT 22.89C

October Contracts Mount $2 Per Bale in New York; Trading Very Active.

NEW YORK, June 9.—The cotton market made a very strong showing again today, new high records were established for all deliveries, with October contracts selling at 22.89c, or $2 per bale above last night's close, and approximately $5 per bale above the low price of yesterday morning. That delivery closed at 22.80c, with the general list closing steady at a net advance of 20 to 35 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 5 to 18 points and sold 16 to 20 points net higher immediately after the call, on overnight buying orders and a continued demand from trade interests. This bulge net considerable realizing, with the disposition to take profits for over the week-end, increased by the favorable view of weather conditions and improving crop reports.

Offerings were absorbed on a reaction of 9 or 12 points, however, and the market soon turned firmer on buying of the same character in evidence for the last few days. The demand was accompanied by reports of continued strength in the goods market, after the early flurry of realizing had run its course.

There were virtually few contracts offering around the ring. From 23.03c, the early price, July sold up to 23.40c in the late trading, while December advanced to the 23-cent level, or 39 to 41 points net higher. The closing was a few points off from the best under realizing.

Beyond the bullish reports from the goods trade, there seemed to be no fresh factor particularly discussed on the advance. The bulk of the buying was again attributed to trade interests, and local brokers were still more inclined to explain the steady advance to purchases of new crop contracts against forward sales of goods.

Some scattered Southern selling was reported early in the morning, creating an impression of hedging against better crop prospects, but offerings from those sources were light, while rumors that there was a little reselling of contracts by mills lacked confirmation. Weekly crop reviews noted need of moisture in some of the more Southern sections of the belt, but read more favorable as to conditions in the northern districts.

Port receipts today were 8569 bales, and 6,917,728 for the season; exports today, none; for the season, 4,974,200; stock, 836,535.

One Well Makes $250,000.00 WITHIN 46 DAYS

This Well Is Near Our Holdings in the Famous Goose Creek Oil Field.

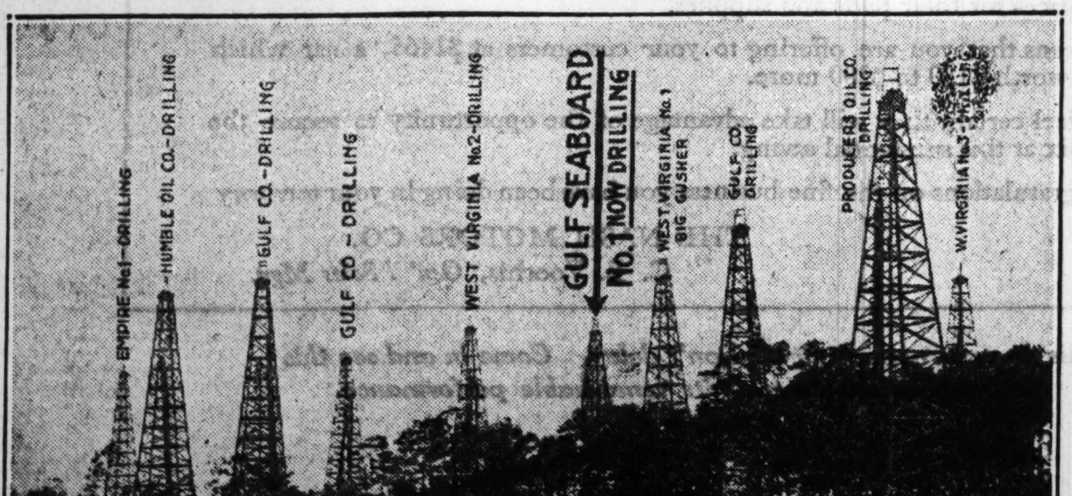
It is known as West Virginia No. 1—see picture below—note how close this famous well is to Gulf Seaboard No. 1, now drilling—we expect gusher making 5000 to 10,000 barrels.

Goose Creek—Greatest Oil Field of the Southwest

Every oil operator in the country is familiar with the tremendous profits realized by companies operating in the gusher fields of the Coast country, and Goose Creek is now the leading field of this district, although the first big gusher came in at Goose Creek only last August. This first big flowing well was estimated to make 20,000 barrels daily. The well mentioned above—West Virginia No. 1—came in March 25th, 1917, and is estimated to have made over a quarter of a million dollars worth of oil within 46 days. This great well is only about 500 feet from our holdings on which the first well is now being drilled.

We Expect Large Producers

Because of the excellent location of our holdings in this field of big wells, and because the first well on these holdings is so near the West Virginia, we have every reason to expect as good a producer. Well No. 1 is now down about 2000 feet, and should be completed soon. We offer a very limited allotment of treasury shares of the Gulf Seaboard Oil Association at par, $10 each, if taken now, before this well is completed, and so long as the allotment shall last. This offer is subject to withdrawal without notice. As soon as this allotment is sold the price will advance.



The Above Picture Tells the Story Better Than Words

Above is a view of a section of the Goose Creek Oil Field, in which Gulf Seaboard Well No. 1 is being drilled. Note the close proximity of this well to the West Virginia 10,000 barrel gusher, and to the wells being drilled by other big companies. The Gulf Seaboard has 100 acres under lease at Goose Creek.

Experienced Management

The men in charge of field operations for the Gulf Seaboard are experienced oil operators. We are thus assured of the proper handling of the properties, one of the great essentials to success in the oil business. We are operating in the best proven oil field in the Coast country, and expect big wells, as it is not uncommon for wells of 2000 to 10,000 barrels initial daily production to come in at Goose Creek.

Price Will Advance

When the allotment of shares now offered is sold the price of this stock will be advanced. Furthermore, the stock will probably be taken off the market when the first big well comes in. The time to buy is now—while the price is $10. Mail the coupon below for information. We will send Prospectus, Maps of the oil field and all particulars, free.

Cash or Terms

Gulf Seaboard shares are offered now for cash, or on liberal payment terms. A discount of 5% is allowed for all cash.

Wonderful Possibilities

Stock of the West Virginia Company became worth $700 a share a few days after the company's first well came in, and the company has just paid a 400% dividend. You can buy Gulf Seaboard stock now—before the first well is completed—at $10. An investment of a few hundred dollars in stock of oil enterprises, before developments were completed, has made many an investor a comfortable fortune. We invite full investigation of our properties and management. Prominent business men and capitalists have bought this stock after personally inspecting our holding. Send the coupon TODAY.

IMPERIAL PETROLEUM SHARES TO ADVANCE

An advance of 25% will take effect in the price of Imperial Petroleum Company shares on June 11, but in order to give those who answer this announcement an opportunity to investigate before they buy, if desired, we allow ten days from date until June 21 to write for prospectus, maps, etc., and to get their applications in the mail after considering the matter. The price of shares is now $10. After the advance is in effect the price will be $12.50. This company is organized for permanent operations—not to experiment with a well or two. We are putting down the first two wells now, and a limited number of treasury shares are offered for development purposes.

WELLS NOW DRILLING

This company is now drilling two wells at Goose Creek, the greatest oil field in the Southwest, both being in highly favorable locations for developing flowing wells of large capacity; one well near our No. 2 well having been reported as making up to 10,000 barrels daily. Many wells in this field have come in flowing several thousand barrels daily. We secured one of our leases at a consideration of $3000 an acre bonus and royalties as usual in addition to the bonus. We got the best location available, as we expect to build up permanent oil production and intend to drill a number of wells.

Below is a view of the famous West Virginia gusher which made over a quarter of a million barrels of oil in 46 days. This well is near our holdings where we are now drilling.

Properties Controlled by This Company

The Imperial Petroleum Company controls about 27 acres of leases in the Goose Creek Field, 25 acres at Humble, and has large holdings in other locations. The Goose Creek properties comprise two leases, both of which are on the west side of the field where the best flowing wells have come in. The Humble lease adjoins the famous Stevenson Survey, where many of the big wells have come in, some of them said to have made over two million barrels of oil. All of these properties are the very best we could secure, and there is every reason to expect that at least three of these leases will develop gusher wells, when drilling, and we are drilling on two of them at this time.

We also control leases on thousands of acres in other locations where the indications are good, but expect to confine our operations to proven territory until we have good production.

Management of the Company

W. C. Munn, President of the W. C. Munn Company of Houston, the largest department store in the Southwest.

C. A. Bryan, President Bryan Brothers Drilling Company, Houston.

J. R. Parks of the Great Southern Life Insurance Company, Houston, and interested largely in oil.

Chas. O. Guynes of Guynes & Colgin, one of Houston's prominent law firms.

L. J. Bryan of Bryan Brothers Drilling Company, who has had years of experience in oil development.

Dividend of 400 Per Cent

(Gulf Coast Oil News, May 12, 1917.) A cash dividend of 400 per cent was declared by the West Virginia Oil Company at a meeting of its directors held Friday. The Company is capitalized at $25,000. Forty-six days ago the West Virginia Oil Company's well on the Adey at Goose Creek came in making 10,000 barrels per day. The well is now making 5500 barrels per day, and has produced in the neighborhood of 250,000 to 290,000 barrels of oil in that time. Goose Creek crude is quoted, credit balance prices, at 90c per barrel, but it is understood that the West Virginia people are getting better than $1 per barrel for their oil.

Officers of the Company are J. M. West, president; D. H. Beatty, vice president; E. H. Coombe, secretary and treasurer, and H. Prince and Hugh Hamilton, directors.

LARGE PROFITS IN OIL

It is unnecessary to state to those who are familiar with the Coastal Oil Fields that many companies operating here have realized tremendous profits, paying stockholders very large dividends. One company operating near our holdings paid 400% shortly after the first well came in. Another company here made stockholders almost 7000% within one year. This is accounted for when the first well in gusher sands at Goose Creek last August came in, making an estimated production of 20,000 barrels daily. Many wells come in that make hundreds of thousands of barrels within a few months after completion.

REMEMBER THESE FACTS

This company is operating in the best proven oil field in the Coastal Belt, and that some wells in this belt have made a million to two million dollars worth of oil. The company is managed by successful business men, three of whom are experienced in the oil business. Bear in mind that large blocks of stock have been sold to prominent bankers, business men and shrewd investors, many of whom have visited the oil fields and looked over our properties. The company is past the early financing stage. It is operating now.

GUSHER NEAR OUR HOLDINGS

A well right near one of our leases on which we are now drilling has made about 250,000 barrels within 46 days. We expect to get good producers on both properties we are now developing. The time to buy this stock is BEFORE our wells are completed, as it will probably be taken off the market afterward.

ORGANIZATION

The Imperial Petroleum Company is capitalized at $250,000, divided into shares of $10 each, par value, fully paid and non-assessable. Sufficient number of treasury shares will be sold to insure a substantial drilling fund. RESTRICTED ZONES ARE NOW CLOSED TO ENEMY ALIENS

Order Became Effective at Midnight Last Night, and Violators Will Be Arrested.

NO PERMITS GIVEN HERE

4500 Applications Filed, but No Date for Issuance Fixed—Zone Boundaries.

The Government's restricted zone order, by which enemy aliens without special permits are forbidden to live in or traverse zones barred to them, became effective at midnight last night.

At the office of the United States Marshal in the Federal building it was stated that enemy aliens who enter any of the 10 restricted zones in St. Louis or the four restricted zones in East St. Louis are now subject to arrest.

The zones, as has been told, were fixed under proclamation of President Wilson that enemy aliens shall not be permitted to approach or be found within one-half mile of any Federal or State fort, camp, arsenal, aircraft station, Government or naval vessel, factory or workshop for the manufacture of munitions of war or of any products for the use of the army and navy.

The original time set for enforcing the order was June 1, but on that day an extension until June 9 was announced by Attorney-General Gregory to give the Department of Justice more time to consider the large number of applications for permits which were being filed by enemy aliens.

No Permits Given Here.

No permits have been given to applicants here and no date for their issuance has been announced. Consequently the 4500 enemy aliens, who have applied here for permits, are now subject to arrest. Enemy aliens who cannot show they have applied for permits will be interned while those who have applied will be released if arrested before the permits are issued.

Enemy aliens who have not applied for permits will be arrested and interned if they make such applications, Marshal John Lynch announced.

It is likely that the permits to be issued by the Government to aliens will not be given out to applicants until all of them have been investigated, and this may take a week or more. Thus far only about one-fourth of the St. Louis applicants have been investigated by the Marshal's deputies and Department of Justice agents.

Yesterday, the last day for the filing of applications for permits, 517 applicants appeared at the Marshal's office. All were accommodated.

Downtown District Restricted.

The barred zones are each of a half-mile radius about the point designed to be protected by their establishment. Two of the zones in St. Louis include all of the downtown district, extending from the river on the east to Fifteenth street on the west, and from Brooklyn street on the north to Hickory street on the south. The zones overlap, converging at Second street and Washington avenue, and at Eleventh street and Lucas avenue. The warehouses of the army medical department are in these districts, one at Seventh street and Clark avenue and the other at Broadway and O'Fallon street.

The zone established about the armory of Cavalry Troop B, at Oakland and Macklin avenues, extends a half mile into Forest Park, and includes the Mounted District Police Station and Forest Park Highlands.

In the central section of the city, zones have been established about the armories of the First Missouri Infantry at Grand and Manchester avenues, and Battery A at Grand avenue and Hickory street. The limits of these zones, which overlap, are Washington avenue, at Grand avenue, on the north, DeTonty street on the south, Cardinal avenue on the east, and a short distance beyond Vandeventer avenue, on the west.

Three zones have been established about large munitions plants in the central westrn portion of the city, extending from Hamilton avenue on the east, into St. Louis County on the west, and including a part of University City. The zones extend also from Washington avenue on the south, to a point beyond Greenwood Cemetery in the county.

Two zones on the South Side have been established about the Marine Hospital and the Arsenal. These extend from the river on the east to Ohio avenue on the west, and from Victor street on the north to Gasconade street on the south. They overlap.

In East St. Louis the zones have as their centers the Aluminum Ore Co., 2900 Missouri avenue; the General Roofing Co., at Seventeenth street and the Southern Railway tracks; the Malleable Iron Works, at Fifteenth street and Converse avenue, and the barracks of Illinois troops stationed at Nineteenth and State streets.

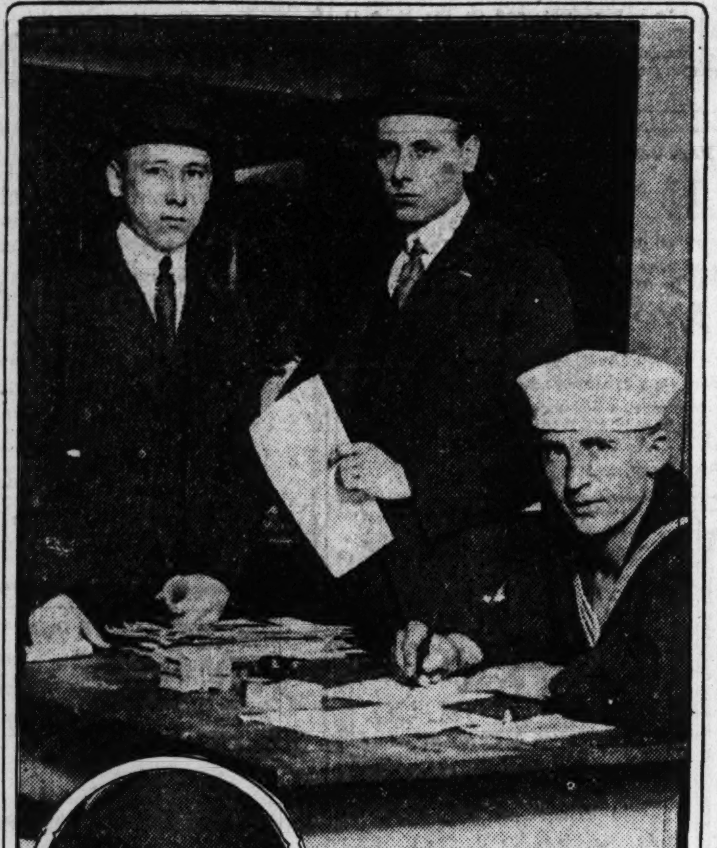
It is expected that more zones will be established in St. Louis and on the East Side shortly, as many factories on both sides of the river are to be converted into munitions factories or manufactories for the production of supplies of various kinds for the Government.

U. S. Marshal Receives Applications From Alton Enemy Aliens.

United States Marshal J. E. Dressendorf of Springfield, Ill., was in Alton yesterday, receiving applications of enemy aliens in that district for permits to enter the barred zones there. The zones established in Alton and Woodriver include nearly all of the business districts of both towns.

At the Western Cartridge Co. plant at Alton, it was said many of the workmen employed in the factories would require permits to allow them to continue working at the plant, about which a zone has been established. Several other large factories are in this district.

Three Brothers Apply for Enlistment in the Navy



MARSHALL, DAMON and (below) DONALD HOLMES.

THREE brothers yesterday applied at the recruiting station at Seventh and Chestnut streets for enlistment in the navy. They were Damon Holmes, 25; Donald Holmes, 23, and Marshall Holmes, 20, sons of Buren Holmes of 6206 Victoria avenue.

In making their applications the brothers stated that they hoped, after their training at the Great Lakes Station, to be assigned to the same warship.

Damon and Marshall have been employed as clerks by the St. Louis Bed Co., and Donald has been employed by the Continental Bag Co. They said their father wished them to enlist jointly. He is employed by the St. Louis Union Trust Co.

"We selected the navy," Damon Holmes explained, "because we thought we would find a better opportunity to fight Germany than in any other arm of service.

LEGISLATOR ASKED FOR $1000 TO PUSH CHIROPRACTOR BILL

Attorney-General Strikes New Lead in Investigating Graft at Jefferson City.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 9.—Attorney-General McAllister, who returned to his office in the Capitol today after several days' work in connection with the St. Louis grand jury investigation of graft in the Missouri Legislature, was occupied nearly all of today in preparing for a continuation of the investigation next week.

In addition to checking up the testimony of witnesses already examined on the St. Louis police salary increase bill and the optometry bill, the Attorney-General was investigating important leads of crookedness in connection with other legislation.

One of the most important links in the chain of evidence being slowly woven about leaders in the Legislature was discovered today when the Attorney-General was informed that a legislator had solicited a $1000 bribe in Jefferson City from a representative of a chiropractic college for his vote and work in connection with the passage of a bill to license chiropractors in Missouri.

The registers and books of account of the Madison Hotel, where lobbyists entertained members of the Legislature, and which was the home during the session of the more influential legislators and of the more influential lobbyists, were obtained today by the Attorney-General, who started one of his assistants at work on them to check the accuracy of certain testimony already given, and to prepare for questions to be asked witnesses next week.

Aside from the testimony on the police salary bill the information received as to the chiropractic bill is considered by official to be of unusual importance.

It has been stated that a member of the Legislature learned that there was a lobby fund amounting to several thousand dollars in connection with the bill, and that he told friends that he understood other members were to receive money on it and that he intended to get his share.

Wanted $250 at Once.

The member referred to opposed the bill in the House and it was defeated for engrossment, one of the technical steps in the progress of a bill.

Afterward, it is stated, he met a man who was known as a lobbyist and agreed to try to get a reconsideration of the bill if he was paid $250, the agreement also containing a provision that he was to be paid an additional $750 if the bill passed.

The Attorney General will have a subpena issued for the lobbyist whose name has been mentioned in connection with the transaction, and it is expected he will be before the St. Louis grand jury next week.

In Kansas City today Hunt C. Moore, Prosecuting Attorney, acting on suggestion of Circuit Attorney McDaniel of St. Louis, demanded of the Gate City Bank a check for $2115 drawn by H. H. Watts, president of the Missouri Optometric Association, in favor of Ernest Eggert of St. Louis, the treasurer. Prosecuting officers refused to explain why they wanted the check.

Watts told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he did not spend a cent illegally, and that all the money expended by him was for his personal living expenses in Jefferson City, and for dinners and drinks for members of the Legislature. He said his purpose in buying the dinners and drinks was to enable him to get on more intimate terms with the members in order that they would give more attention to his arguments in behalf of his bill.

Read This Letter. It Tells You Why Motor Car Prices Must Go Higher

The Nash Motors Company makes plain why the price of Jeffery Six can probably be maintained only a short time, and how you can save $150 to $200 by acting now. Read this letter. Consider these facts. They are important to every automobile buyer in this city.

NASH Jeffery MOTORS

Kenosha, Wis.
June 2, 1917.

Dear Mr. Rottersmann:

We can not hope to maintain the present price of the Jeffery Six at $1465 for long—certainly not after our present stock of raw materials is exhausted.

Materials have advanced, as you know, between 20 and 50 per cent in the past few months. Forty-four automobile manufacturers have been obliged to raise their prices from $75 to $200, due to this condition alone. There is no let-up in sight. The cost of materials is still advancingan d with the proposed government war tax to consider, motor car prices must unquestionably go still higher.

Now so far, we have been practically unaffected by the rising cost of raw materials. Because we actually build ninety-three per cent of every Jeffery Six in our own factory, we have to buy our materials far in advance and in huge quantities. Therefore, the cost of this car right now is based on the cost of materials purchased over a year ago at much lower prices. That is why we can sell the Jeffery Six now for $1465.

Because we have these materials in stock we have a great advantage over companies which merely assemble cars and have been paying the high prevailing prices for their parts and supplies.

It means that you are offering to your customers at $1465, a car which is really worth $150 to $200 more.

We feel certain they will take advantage of the opportunity to secure the Jeffery Six at this substantial saving.

Congratulations on the fine business you have been doing in your territory

THE NASH MOTORS CO.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our only child and grandchild, Le Roy George Bucher, aged 11 years, who left this life one year ago, June 16, 1916, through accident.

The evening shades have vanished;
The night was calm and still;
God sent his Holy Angels to do His holy will,
To summon our precious loved one
Before the Eternal throng.
There to rejoice forever in his new and happy home.
The years roll on, we watch and wait
For a voice we hear no more.
We know he is waiting at the gate
On that beautiful golden shore.
But how we long to see his pleasant smile
And long to feel his presence near.
Our broken hearts would cheer
The while, but never wipe the silent tear.

Sadly missed by his loving
PARENTS AND GRANDPARENTS, AUNT AND UNCLES.

The Continued Success of Many Business Ventures Can Be Traced to the Selection of Capable Help.

Some employers make a virtue of over-patience with incompetents—of charity and kindliness for the men and women who MAR and MIX and MUTILATE the best plans.

The so-called "hard-headed business men" know that over-patience with bunglers is not a genuine kindness to them nor a "square deal" for the business itself. A few "marplot" employes can tax a business to a breaking point.

Then, there is the argument that emphasizes the necessity of securing NEW BLOOD, new "help," in all businesses—from time to time the bringing in of men with new visions and greater enthusiasm.

Whatever may be believed the need, Post-Dispatch Wants are unexcelled in bringing men—a selection from which to choose "men who fit."

Last month the Post-Dispatch printed 4701 Female Help Wa Ads—105 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

SOUTHEAST [illegible] is just on the eve of being discovered. For years the outside world has heard nothing whatever of it or the stories of its swamps that it has heard have created an altogether erroneous impression. Within the past 2 years prices at which lands have changed hands have advanced somewhat, but the prices for even its most wonderful soils are still absurdly low. We have well located tracts in the Little River Drainage District which we are selling to discriminating buyers at from $48 to $62, with some absolutely perfect soil as low as $50. Lands more or less developed at correspondingly low figures. It is our judgment that these lands will advance presently in much livelier fashion to two or three times the figures at which they can be acquired at the moment. Box A-5, Post-Dispatch. (c99)

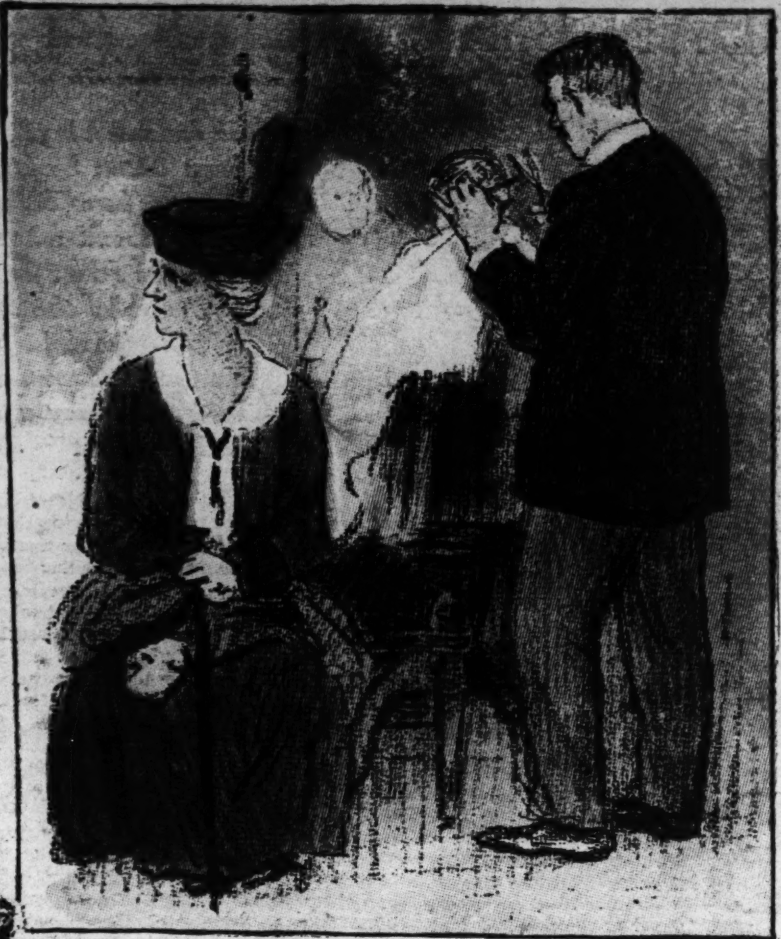
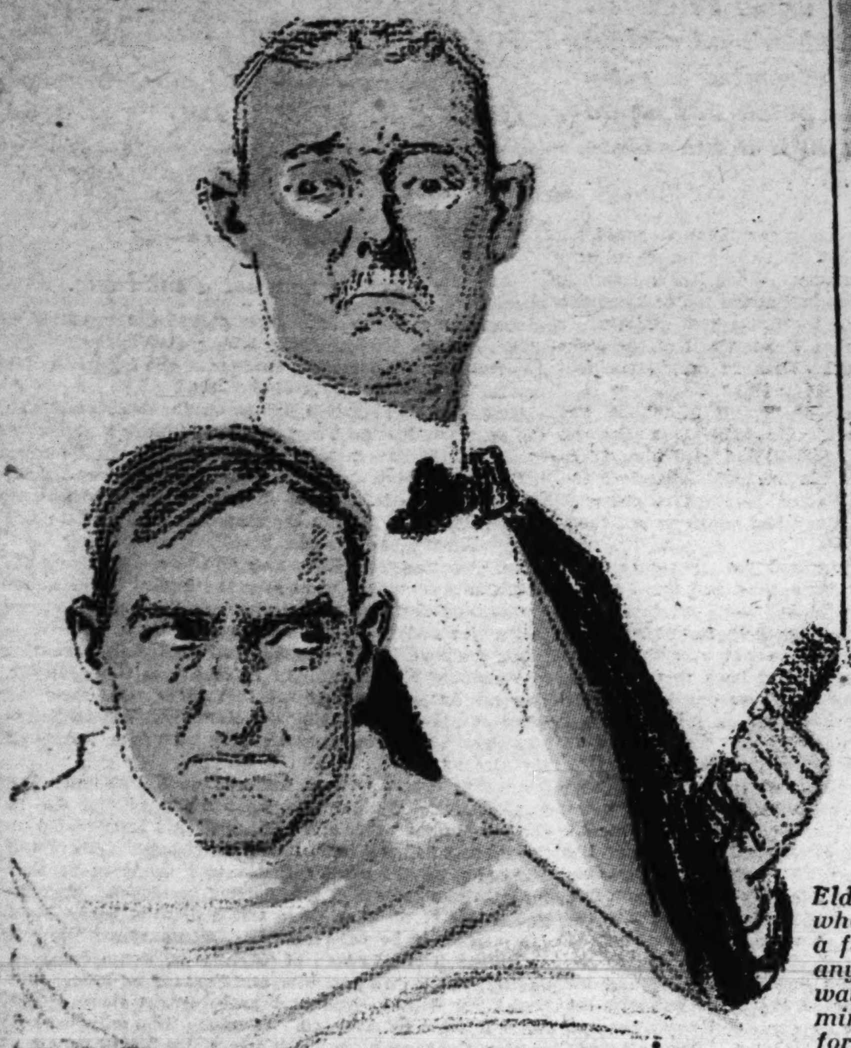
In the Barber Shop

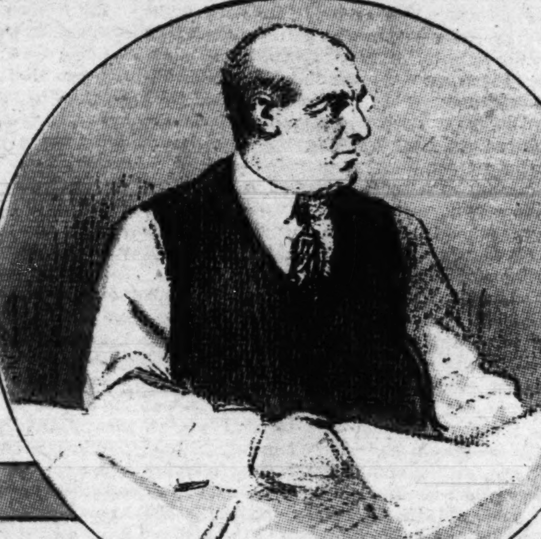
Character Sketches by W. E. HILL.



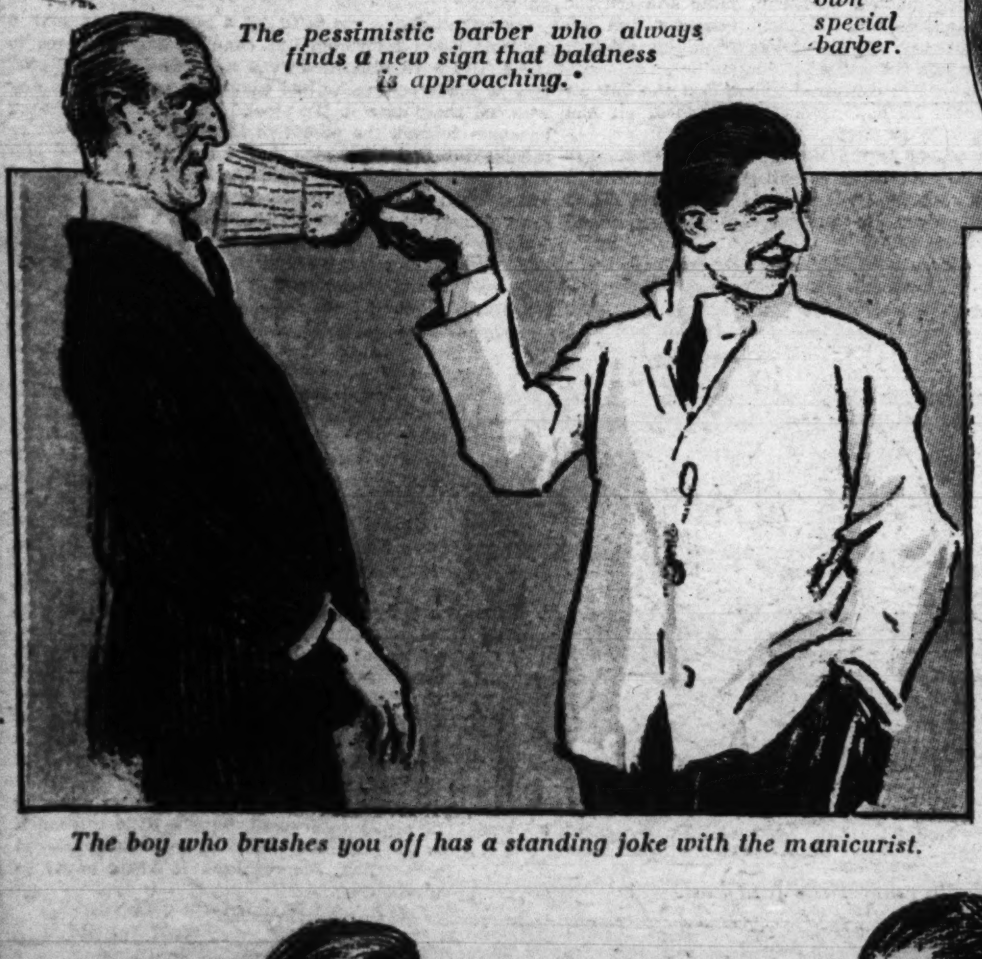
Mrs. Z, waiting while her little boy's hair is trimmed, watches the manicure table and then and there decides that in the future she will fix Fred's nails for him at home.



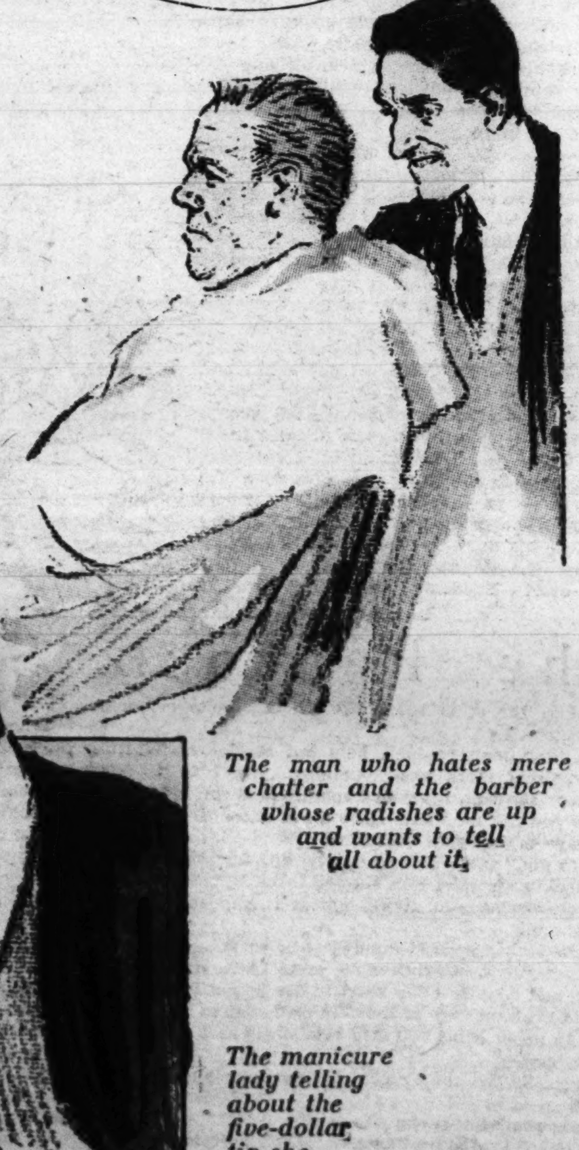
The pessimistic barber who always finds a new sign that baldness is approaching.



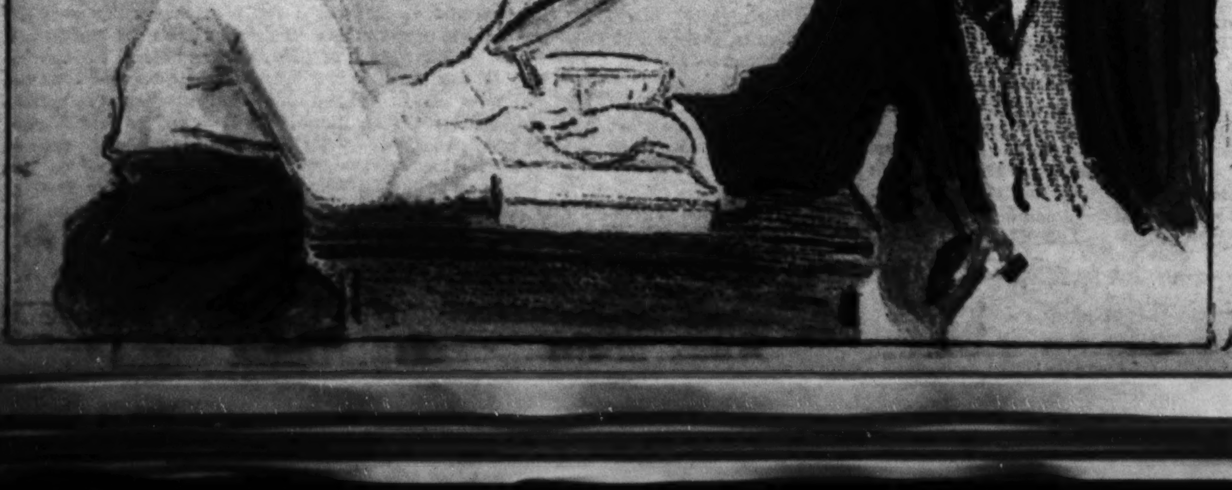
Elderly party, who has only a few hairs, anyway, waiting 35 minutes for his own special barber.



The boy who brushes you off has a standing joke with the manicurist.



The man who hates mere chatter and the barber whose radishes are up and wants to tell all about it.



The manicure lady telling about the five-dollar tip she got from a dandy traveling man last week.

The Rebirth of a Thoroughly Bad Man

From a consumptive, drug-ridden criminal, Louis Victor Eytinge, serving a life term in the Arizona penitentiary for murder, has in ten years made himself an expert in certain lines of the advertising profession—Conducts a regular mail order business and edits a magazine issued in Boston -:- -:- -:-

By Clair Kenamore.

LOUIS VICTOR EYTINGE, the man who has received conspicuous honors from all National Advertising Men's conventions in recent years, is a life-term convict in the State Penitentiary at Florence, Ariz. Many of his friends fear that the immense and powerful campaign which seeks to have him pardoned will fail, and that he will spend all his years within that prison.

His story is that of the Fall and Rise of a Man, and as he has told it to me on the many occasions when I have visited him in the penitentiary, I have never failed to feel a great sadness that such a wonderfully active and brilliant mind should have been put to such evil uses, and now that it is rehabilitated and cleaned, it cannot be put to doing some big work in the free and open world.

Here is his story, told with an effort to free it of the bias which I acknowledge I feel for Eytinge. I have never talked with a man who had more personal charm. and I have never anywhere seen letters which compare with his in arrangement, texture, content and finish. It is impossible for a person without a calm and cold judicial mind to know such a man and not desire to see him free.

Eytinge comes of a good family, several members of which went into the navy, and one of which attained to the rank of Commodore. As a boy he was sent to the best public and private schools, but he soon drifted away from his home at Dayton, O. He was a bad lot. A number of small offenses against the law featured the years up to the nineteenth, when he was finally laid by the heels and sent to the Ohio State Prison for forgery. He had previously been sentenced to the same institution for aiding in a jail delivery, but had escaped because of his youth and through a general belief that he was not sound mentally.

Later he served another term for defrauding a national bank and in both the Federal and State penitentiaries he was listed as an incorrigible. He drew all the penalties for misbehavior, and could by no Warden be regarded as a desirable prisoner.

He served his time, and when he emerged his relatives took him up again, hoping that the severe lesson had cured him of his youthful willfulness. But he seemed to be aimed downward. He committed other forgeries, developing an uncanny aptitude for making bad checks and a remarkable ability in cashing them. He was handsome, well bred and had little trouble making people believe in him.

Then followed the few years of his main criminal career, interrupted by an enlistment in the navy. He devoted his talents to forgery, and Ohio and all points East was his field. He acquired the vices which accompany a life of crime, was addicted to drugs and finally fell ill with consumption. He was not in prison at the time and his family decided to send him West. He started for Arizona, with a sufficiency of money and an income of $100 a month. On the train he met John Leich, a barber of Sheboygan, Mich., also a consumptive going to Arizona in the hope of regaining his health.

They became friends and went driving into the desert near Phoenix one day. Leigh died while they were away from town, and the circumstances were such that one can believe Eytinge killed his companion or did not kill him. Eytinge fled to California and was captured and put on trial for murder within 60 days after he had first entered Arizona. But in the brief time he was in California he had floated more than $500 worth of bad paper.

He was tried for murder while lying on a cot, apparently near death from tuberculosis, found guilty and the term of life imprisonment was given to him only because he seemed so near death. The State prison was in Yuma then, so located that it might make the punishment of the prisoners greater. Within the sweltering walls Eytinge hung onto life, but sank lower mentally and morally.

Then G. W. P. Hunt was elected Governor of Arizona and he inaugurated prison reforms. The prison was moved to Florence, hot enough in all conscience, but on the higher grounds of the Upper Gila River. The utmost liberty compatible with safety was allowed the prisoners, good food, the freedom of the yard and unlimited use of the mails. Something stirred in Eytinge.

The courts had taken the wreckage he had made of his mind and body and of his life and had thrown it into prison to get it out of the way, and to make the outdoors cleaner and safer. Eytinge decided to make a man out of the wreckage.

He nursed and nurtured his disease-wasted and drug-ridden frame until he is now a solid, strong, 185-pound man. He awakened his mind and fed it on books, magazine, papers, and pabulum he could get. His energies had to have an outlet, so he organized and put on a substantial paying basis the business of marketing the curios made by his fellow convicts in the prison.

Louis Victor Eytinge.

Apparently in the first years after his regeneration, he had no thought of obtaining a pardon. He had to do something, and he decided to do worthy things, having already done most of the unworthy things. From that time forward his career has been one in which no flaw can be found. He commenced to contribute to prison papers, and produced articles of high literary merit, and of much power and thought. His letters about the selling of the convict-made curios were so compelling as to call attention not only to the wares, but to the writer, and soon he began writing letters for other people. He already had written hundreds for the other convicts, but he was not paid for his work. Follow-up letters of every kind were his forte, and for some series he has received very liberal payment.

I agree with certain of my friends who may be regarded as connoisseurs of such things, that his series of follow-up letters designed to collect old bills are marvels of efficiency.

He formed an epistolatory acquaintance with Miss Pauline L. Divers, treasurer and part owner of the Poates Publishing Co. of New York, and they organized a corporation to market his output. She went out to see him, became interested in him very deeply, and they became engaged to be married if ever he is free.

He has written a book on the writing of advertising letters which is regarded as a sort of textbook on that subject, and he has for more than a year edited a magazine called "Postage," published in Boston, which is devoted to the letter method of advertising.

At times Eytinge's monthly income has reached $300, but he has not endeavored to save it. He spends the money to advance schemes and in experiments with advertising methods.

When a man descends into the depths, out of sight and hopeless, and then reappears, climbing to the high places, the usual assumption is that religion saved him. It was not so in Eytinge's case. He is not at all religious and never has been.

Eytinge is now 40 years old, a strong, capable, brilliant man. By his own ability he has brought himself from a depth of degradation which is difficult for the ordinary citizen to conceive.

Judge Kent, the trial Judge who sentenced him, said a short time before his death, "I shall be very glad to do anything I can to secure liberty for Eytinge, as he has made a greater rehabilitation than any man in prison history."

He is now a model prisoner, and is allowed sufficient time to carry on his work. He eats the prison food and sleeps in a locked cell, but by day he has an office in one end of the mess hall where he works undisturbed. He wears good clothes (there are no stripes in this prison) and has the freedom of the institution, as have all well-behaved prisoners. He plays in the prison orchestra, is a leader in theatricals and takes a leading place in the little world he has known for 10 years, just as he is trying to take a part in the outside world which he may never see again.

It seems to me that the question in Eytinge's case is not whether he is guilty, but whether this new, clear-eyed, creative man should be longer punished for a deed charged to the chattering, consumptive criminal 10 years ago.

They are different men. That one belonged in prison. There was no fit place for him outside. For this one there are many fit places outside in the world. In the prison yard he has kept step with progress outside the walls, and he could take his place in the ranks of the workers in his line.

The only question is whether he would keep his place.

What the Man Who Sentenced Eytinge Says of Him.

"I SHALL be very glad to do anything I can to secure liberty for Eytinge, as he has made a greater rehabilitation than any man in prison history."

Eytinge was tried before Judge Kent, considered one of the most distinguished jurists on the Pacific slope, an unusually scholarly man, learned in law and possessing the respect and admiration of both bench and bar. The above words were part of a letter which he wrote just before he departed on a trip to the East in which he met his death. He had made arrangements to do anything in his power for Eytinge, having cleared up certain points of the case in his own mind, but his sudden demise prevented,

Germany's War Aims as Noted Germans Have Told Them

ON the subject of Germany's war aims her Chancellors have been noticeably silent. Nobody outside of the inner German circles knows just what they are. But as to showing the trend of German thought the following paragraphs are illuminating.

The quotations given were picked at random from the writings and sayings of some of Germany's foremost men by William Archer. They cover a period of 20 years and more but many of them are recent. Through them all is sounded the dominant note of expansion, even to a World-Germany in which aliens shall be suffered to live only in a subject capacity.

The following are selected for reproduction in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine out of hundreds collected by Mr. Archer and published in a book, "Gems (?) of German Thought." (Doubleday, Page & Co.)

A DEVELOPING, onward-striving people like ourselves requires new land for its energies and if peace will not secure it, then only war remains. To arouse people to a realization of this fact was the mission of the Defense League.—Gen. von Wrochem, at meeting of the German Defense League, Danzig, March, 1913.

It is precisely our CRAVING for expansion that drives us into the paths of conquest, and in view of which all chatter about peace and humanity can and must remain nothing but chatter.—Joseph Ludwig Reimer, in "A Pan-German Germany," 1913.

Let us bravely organize great forced migrations of the inferior peoples. Posterity will be grateful to us. We must coerce them! This is one of the tasks of war. The means must be superiority of armed forces. Superficially such forced migrations and the penning up of inconvenient peoples in narrow "reserves" may appear hard; but it is the only solution of the race question that is worthy of humanity. * * * Thus alone can the over-population of the earth be controlled. The efficient peoples must secure themselves elbow room by means of war and the inefficient must be hemmed in, and at last driven into "reserves," where they have no room to grow * * * and where, discouraged and rendered indifferent to the future by the spectacle of the superior energy of their conquerors, they may crawl slowly towards the peaceful death of weary and hopeless senility.—Klaus Wagner in "War," 1906.

A new period of progress towards unification is possible only by means of a great and courageous policy, which should lead to victorious wars, and if possible to the territorial expansion of the empire.—"Germany at the Beginning of the Twentieth Century," by a German, 1900.

All the policy, internal and external, of the empire ought to be subordinated to this governing idea—the Germanization of all that remains of foreign populations within the empire and the procuring for the German people of new territories, proportionate to its strength and its need of expansion.—Prof. Ernst Hasse in "The Colonization of the German Folk-Territory," 1905.

Our frontiers are too narrow. We must become land hungry, must acquire new regions for settlement, otherwise we will be a sinking people, a stunted race. True love for our people and its children commands us to think of their future, however much they may accuse us of quarrelsomeness and lust of war. If the Germanic people shrank from war it would be as good as dead.—Baron von Vietinghoff-Scheel, at meeting of Pan-German League, Erfurt, September, 1912.

We are indubitably the most martial nation in the world. * * * We are the most gifted of nations in all the domains of science and art. We are the best colonists, the best sailors and even the best traders! And yet we have not up to now secured our due share of the heritage of the world. * * * That the German empire is not the end but the beginning of our national development is an obvious truth.—Fritz Bley, in "The World-Position of Germanism," 1897.

One thing alone can really profit the German people: the acquisition of new territory. That is the only solid durable gain. * * * That alone can really promote the diffusion, the growth and the deepening of Germanism.—Albrecht Wirth, in "The East and World-Politics," 1913.

The war must last until we have forced disarmament upon our enemies. There is a nursery rhyme which runs thus:

Knife and scissors, fork and candle,
Little children must not handle.

Since the enemy states behaved so childishly as to misuse their arms, they must be placed under tutelage. Moreover, our enemies have acted so dishonorably that it is only just that rights of citizenship should be denied them. * * * When they can no longer bear arms they cannot make any new disturbance.—Otto Siemens, in "How Long Can the War Last," 1914.

We must establish ourselves firmly at Antwerp on the North Sea, and at Riga on the Baltic. * * * At all events we must, at the conclusion of peace, demand substantial expansions of the German empire. In this our motive will not be greed and covetousness of world-ruling England, nor the national vanity of glory-seeking France, not the childish megalomania of Rome-mad Italy, nor the insatiable craving for expansion of semi-barbarous Russia.—Prof. Ernest Haeckel, in "Eternity: Thoughts on the World War," 1915.

We must create a Central Europe which will guarante

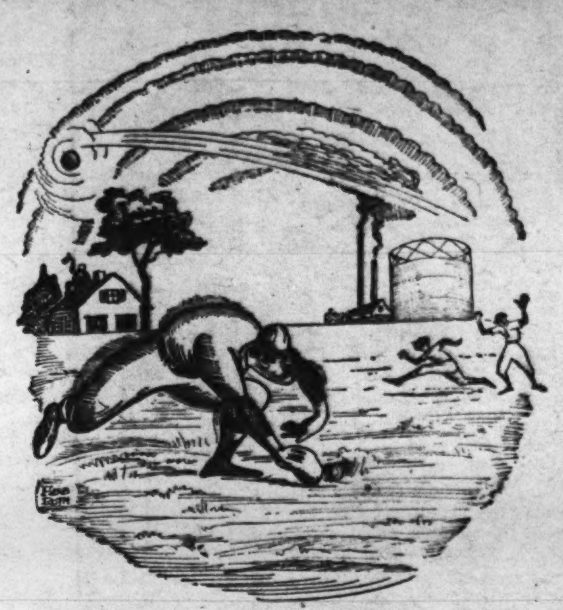
BASEBALL AS PLAYED IN YE OLDEN TIMES
DAN BROUTHERS' STORIES OF MIKE KELLY

This famous player who, Dan says, had been bitten by a fox in his infancy, used to keep balls "planted" in the outfield and when a batter hit one over the fence he would be cut off at home by the fielder's miraculous relay—Once he attempted to get a man at third with a potato and would have got away with it if the potato had not burst



Kelly had an extra ball planted in the outfield.

By Dan Brouthers.

"BRAINS," said John McGraw to me when I was a scout for the Giant team, "brains and speed are what you are to look for." Because, as a general thing, if you get hold of a good, speedy man, with something more than bone above the ears, you probably have the makings of a good ball player.

There are a good many ways of winning baseball games. Sometimes the better team wins, sometimes not. It may be that the poorer team had a fox on it somewhere, and every time the umps are asleep or looking the other way, he puts one over. It has been done. There are, of course, some people who believe in playing baseball on the level. But a good many other birds realize that it is played on a diamond, and so take advantage of all the corners. They practice anything they can get away with. They declare for ruthless baseball. Get the better of the opposing team anyhow, and international law be blowed.

Now it takes brainy men to think of such things on the spur of the moment, and it requires witty men to pass them off as a joke if the ump happens to have his eyes peeled. And that is the reason a combination of brains and speed makes the best baseball players.

Instances of quick thinking and tricks are numerous in baseball, were much talked about when they happened, and in the course of time came to be regarded as jokes, just as I am going to tell them now.

Mike Kelly was a shark for that sort of thing. He could have sold earmuffs in the Philippines or palm-leaf fans in Alaska. He was a wonder as a baseball player, but as a trickster he was a marvel. Whenever he was on the field the umpires spent half their time combing the wool away from their eyes. He was very little short of six feet tall, weighed in the neighborhood of 180 pounds, had a fine, full mustache (which was the fashion in those days), and a bluff, genial manner, that disarmed suspicion and made you like him from the first. He was an easy spender, of a jovial, sunny temperament, witty and crafty, and would go any length for a friend, or to do an umpire. Mike had a scar on him somewhere, which, although he never showed it, must have been there. It was the scar of a bite. He was bitten by a fox in his infancy!

Mike was the idol of the fanatics, and anything he did was right. He broke into baseball about '78 and died of pneumonia in Boston in '94. He was so popular that he had three nicknames—The King of the Diamond, The Only Kel and the $10,000 beauty. This last name was given him because the Boston team bought his release from the Chicago club for that amount of money.

Kelly was as full of tricks as a monkey, and couldn't stand to lose a game if he could win it—by any means at all. Here is an instance: Kelly was manager of the Boston club when I played with them about a thousand years ago. He caught as a rule, but also played in the field. One afternoon Kel was sitting on the bench, while Bennett caught. The game was close, but Kel had made up his mind we had to win it and had his peepers skinned for a chance to put one over. Suddenly the man at bat knocked a high foul that Kelly saw Bennett could not catch. It is hardly likely that what Kelly did would have occurred to any other manager. What Kel did was to jump up and run for the foul ball at the top of his speed. And while he was running for it he kept shouting to the umpire that he had taken Bennett out of the game and had substituted himself. Then he caught the foul ball.

According to Mike's way of doping it out, it was strictly according to Hoyle. He had taken Bennett out before the foul had landed, had put himself in Bennett's place and had caught the ball. Therefore the batter was out. Then Kel walked over to Bennett, took off the catcher's mask and glove and began to put them on himself.

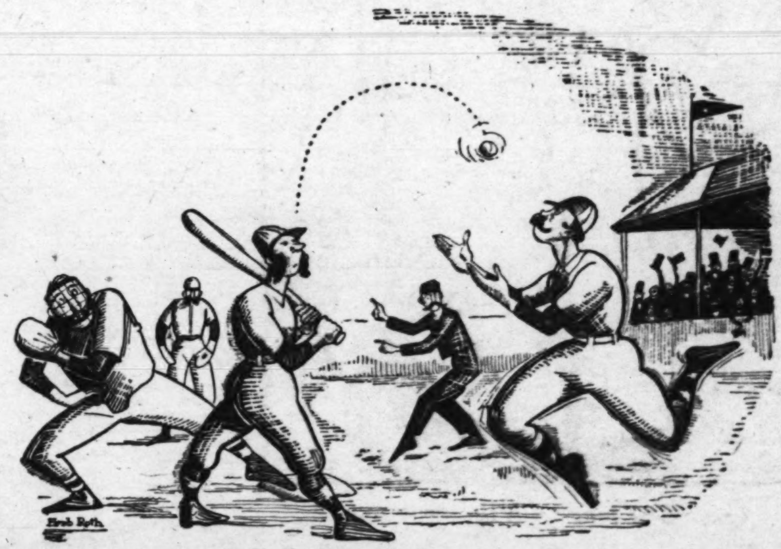
Then the astonished umpire and the spectators came out of their trance at the same time and there was a yell from both of them. Kel insisted everything was O K. In fact, he didn't even concede there was room for an argument. There was nearly a riot over the affair, but it ended by Kelly being shooed back to the bench, and the batter being called safe. That one was a little too raw for the ump. But Kel wore an injured air all the rest of the game, and although the crowd knew he was wrong, they all sympathized with him.

But Kelly generally had better luck than that, and here is an example of the sort of stuff he got away with: When I was with Detroit Kel was playing with Anson's Chicago club. At a game in Detroit, when I came to bat in the ninth inning, there were two out and three on base. Moments like that are big ones in a batter's life, and I got a toe hold and made up my mind to tear the cover off the first good one that came across. I believe we needed all three runs, too. Kel was playing in the field that day. I picked out one that I liked and hit it hard enough to drive it out of the lot. I was sure the ball was going over the fence, because Kelly was running in that direction like a mountain goat. Just as he got near the fence he made a wonderful jump and got the ball. That made three out; the game was over, and Kel kept right on running into the clubhouse, taking the ball with him. We lost the game, of course.

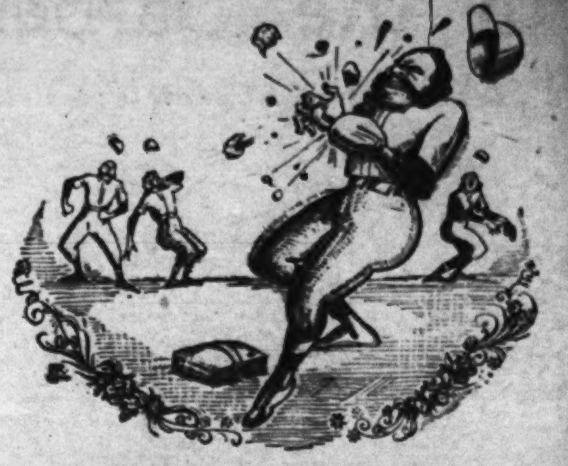
Some time later Kel confessed to me that the ball he apparently caught he had never even touched. It had cleared the fence by 10 feet!

When Kelly played in the outfield it was a customary thing for him to have an extra ball planted out there in case he should need it! Of course, opposing teams didn't know this at the time. If they had, Kel probably would have died a violent death.

Here is an example of how he used that ball. One foggy afternoon in Philadelphia, with Phil Powers umpiring, Philadelphia had a man on base when Sam Thompson came to bat. Sam picked out one that he liked, and, as we found out later, poled it cleanly over the right field fence. But because of the fog the umpire couldn't follow the flight of the ball.



Kelly caught the foul ball.



The potato was not a solid one.

Now Kelly had a ball hidden in the long grass near the fence, and when Thompson made his hit, Kel never looked at the ball in play at all, but dived for the extra ball. He fumbled around a bit as though he were looking for it and then picked it up and made an accurate throw home, putting out the man who had been on first base when the ball was hit.

But it seems that Thompson had kept his eye on the ball, and was sure it went over the fence. So when the ump called the man at the plate out, Thompson roared like a lion and called down the vengeance of high heaven on the head of the umpire. And while he was ranting and roaring Kelly, with an injured and innocent air, was calmly proving that the ball never went near the fence at all. Powers believed Kelly and his own eyesight, and Thompson, almost crying with rage, was fined for kicking.

Another favorite bit of foxiness on Kelly's part was to get on the coaching line when a new pitcher was in the box for the other side. If a ball had been fouled by the man at bat and had hit the grandstand, Kelly would demand that the pitcher throw to him, in order that Kelly might be sure it was not cut or ripped. He only pulled this stunt when there was a man on base. Then the pitcher, if he were not wise, would throw the ball to Kelly. Kelly, instead of catching it, would dodge it, and allow it to roll past him, and the man on base would streak for home! And he'd probably get there before the ball could be returned. Of course, this only worked once on the same man, but it sometimes helped to win a game.

He wasn't above trying to put a man out, even with a potato. I can remember one time he took a potato to right field with him, and when a hit ball bounded past him he made believe he had caught it, and then turning whipped the potato to the second baseman. The second baseman relayed the potato to third in order to get the man trying for that base. And he might have got him but for the fact that the potato was not a solid one and burst when the third baseman caught it. That gave away the whole show and nearly caused a riot.

Kel was always a fast base runner, but if he could take any shortcuts he always did it. He was on first base one time when one of his teammates made a hit. Kel streaked for second and then started for third. When he was about a third of the distance to third base he noticed that the umpire had his back turned to him. He didn't mind third base at all then, but hotfooted it for home, straight through the diamond past the pitcher's box; and when the umpire turned he saw Kelly sliding into home plate. You never heard such a riot in your life. The opposing team vowed he was out, the bleachers and the grandstand howled; but the ump didn't see what Kel had done, and so the old fox got away with it!

Kel was the most genial fellow in the world off the diamond, but when he was on it, umpires were an eyesore to him. And so, if he had nothing particular to do when his side was up to the bat, he would stand as close to him as he could and jaw him until the ump would run up a $100 fine on him in $5 and $10 clips. But that didn't work the King any, because someone else always paid his fines.

So there you are. Kelly was an example of brains and speed, with a little too much brains; and the brand of baseball he played was a little too ruthless. It would never go nowadays.

The Peacock Screen

And in the other room Mrs. de la Fuente began on "Trovatore."

"A blind man couldn't help but see," said Whiting coolly, "that there was something. Am I in the way, Yvette? My dear, it's your happiness I'm considering."

"Do you ask me," said Hays all at once, "if you are in the way—is that your question?"

"I do not," said Whiting slowly, and for the first time the steel in his quiet eyes showed through, "because I am not considering you at all, unless it happens that she wants you."

Yvette locked her two hands tightly together in her lap, and kept silent. Doubtless die erste Liebe stirred in its grave, and doubtless the heart in her breast leaped, with the old exultant urge of the skin-clad woman who beheld from an upper ledge two men belaboring each other upon her cave-step.

Woman is the one element the ages cannot altogether refine.

While she waited:

"Yvette!" said Hays hoarsely. (And here is the hinge of the story—so far as it was in the man, he really loved her.)

But Whiting, without speaking, moved a peacock-embroidered screen a little forward to shield her face from the blaze.

Then Yvette drew a long breath. She lifted dark, glorious eyes to Whiting's waiting look, and her lip trembled.

She said:

"Do not be silly, Tony." That was all. Apparently, however, it was enough.

"Then that's settled," said Whiting, and he also drew a long breath. He had been under something of a strain.

"I fancy you'll forgive me if I leave early," said Hays. He went, with distinctly more dignity than might have been expected. He had come back, and he had not come back—which is an engaging paradox.

Then Whiting sat upon the arm of Yvette's big chair, a thing not every lover of 40 years can do with grace, and laid his arm about Yvette's proud shoulders. It is preeminently the gesture of ownership.

"I was afraid, Yvette," he said softly. "My dear, I was damnably afraid."

And Yvette—even as you and I—Yvette stood in the line of direct descent from Eve—"Ah, Tony," she said, "you might have had more—how do you say?—more faith in me!"

And what is stranger yet, she meant it.

BETTER TOOTHBRUSHES NEEDED

ROTARY toothbrushes are receiving wide attention on the part of inventors these days. A number of patents have lately been granted on devices of this kind, many of which are distinctly ingenious and should find a ready market when once the advantages of the rotary toothbrush are fully understood by the public. Some of these devices depend for the rotary movement upon the tightening and loosening of the grip on a pair of handles, and it appears that the polishing member is exceptionally well suited to reach tooth surfaces that are wellnigh inaccessible with present toothbrushes. Furthermore, there appears to be less danger of injuring the gums with the rotary type of toothbrush, for the reason that few people take the trouble to use the flat toothbrush properly.

WHAT IT MEANS TO A WOMAN TO BE NURSE IN A WAR HOSPITAL

Remarkable letters from an American girl, who is a lieutenant in the French army, show that 14 hours is an ordinary day's work—There are all manner of wounds to be treated and bandaged, oftentimes with so few facilities at hand that the nurse must become inventor—The patients always must be kept cheerful and one cannot become unnerved when called upon to witness a last agony :: :: ::

THE letters which are reproduced in part on this page were never intended to be published; indeed, when they were placed between the covers of a book it was without the author's knowledge. But justification was found in the thought that they would serve a purpose—that of bringing help to France. Such proved to be the case.

Now it is believed that they can be of value in another way. American women are going to France to serve as Red Cross nurses in the hospitals at the front; from these letters they can glean what that means—what it means to work 14 hours a day; clean and bandage the ghastliest wounds without a tremor; invent the very tools of her trade when they are wanting; summon the strength, when necessary, to carry a sick man in her arms from his bed to the operating room; "mother" her charges—and all the time carry a smile on her lips and a jest on her tongue; for these sometimes are as efficacious as medicine.

The letters were written by an American girl, the daughter of a former Medical Director of the United States navy. She was in France when the war broke out, passed an examination for a nurse's diploma in the French Red Cross and was sent to the front, with rank of Lieutenant, to serve in a French army hospital near the trenches of the Marne. She is known only as "Mademoiselle Miss,' which is the name her charges bestowed upon her.

WORK has begun in earnest. Alas, that I dare not take the time from sleep for more than a hasty scrawl, but when one puts in 12 hours' work daily, one must guard jealously the other 12. Actually, for the first time in my life I begin to feel as a normal being should, in spite of the blood and anguish in which I move. I really am USEFUL, that is all, and too busy to remember myself, past, present or future.

You know how it is in the trenches—load and fire most of the time. That's how it is here. During the last week we have averaged 25 operations daily. One day we had 33, and if you have any conception of an operating room where they are short of assistants, you may know there was not much time left over. But the struggle, and the sense that one is saving bits from the wreckage, doesn't give one a chance to be mastered by the unutterable woe.

In these days I have lost four—two peritonitis, one hemorrhage, one tetanus and several others are in a desperate condition. I have never left my ward except for six hours' sleep each night. * * *

I haven't the time nor the heart to tell you the tale of my days, but I tell you this, that I shall never get hardened to last agonies and heart-broken families. And when my little No. 23 flung out his arms last night to say "Goodby" (he knew he was going)—"O, my sister, my sister! Kiss me!"—I tell you it took control to finish giving the last of my 34 anti-tetanus injections a few minutes later.

I never dreamed what real work was before, of course; but now I know, and am learning mighty quick to accommodate myself to the revelation—never to take two steps when I can arrive in one, never to bend over the low beds if I can sit, to relax everything but the occupied hand when I am feeding a patient. These seem little things, but just because of them I am fit as possible, though I work always more than 14 hours a day.

A record day without a death, and everything went like clockwork. I had several inspirations—impossible to live without them here on the front—for constructing important things out of nothing. Don't be surprised if I turn out inventor! One has to be out here.

The day has been tremendous, and the first in which I have not lost a life. Indeed, I saved one by compressing a hemorrhage in the nick of time.

While the instruments are boiling and my 29 children are resting after their midday soup, I can conscientiously snatch just a minute. Ever since I began my work I have been watching for a chance to sketch for you at least one day in detail.

At 5:45 a. m. I am up and sponged and well flesh-brushed. My good old lady gives me a huge bowl of coffee and four lumps of sugar, bread and butter and a boiled egg, for 12 cents.

When I get to my pavilion there is sure to be "Grandpa," my treasured old orderly, busy at brushing out the entrance. Last week he and my other orderlies were ill, and I had to carry my patients to the surgical dressings room myself. He nearly wept with chagrin.

The first thing I do after a word of greeting to each of the 34 children, is to review the ward and see that it is well washed, in order and no spoons or bottles out of place, and start instruments boiling. After that begin the temperatures. Along with the temperatures go face-washing and mouth-rinsing, generally engineered by faithful Grandpa. About 8:30 the doctor makes his appearance. When he has made the tour of the ward, I am left complete mistress of the scene for the rest of the day, with 34 lives in my hand, more than half of which hang in the balance. If there is anything critical, I send for the big surgeon. About 9 a. m. I begin the dressings, unless there are anti-tetanus injections to give for those who may have arrived in the night, or someone is dying, or there is an urgent operation.

By "Mademoiselle Miss."

I TELL you that here on the front it isn't just a mere nurse that is required; send the finest, most versatile women that America or any other country can produce, and her fineness and her gifts will not be wasted. To be ideally adapted to the post she should combine a glacial calm with the unfailing gayety of springtime and a sense of humor always; she should possess law and order and arrangement, the powers of construction and invention, a touch as light as a watchmaker's, and strength to carry a man alone on occasion; she should combine tremendous initiative with excessive caution, firmness with tenderness, authority with courtesy, fearlessness with awe, and she ought to be a psychologist and deeply learned in the profession, and ready to read the riot act when called for.

"MADEMOISELLE MISS."

But we shall suppose an uninterrupted day. I begin with the important dressings, which are often long and dangerous, and I can do but three or four until the bell rings for soup at 10:45 a. m.

I think you would sicken with fright if you could see the operations that a poor nurse is called upon to perform—the putting in of drains, the washing of wounds so huge and ghastly as to make one marvel at the endurance that is man's; the digging about for bits of shrapnel. I assure you that the word responsibility takes a special meaning here.

After the soup for the wounded comes that of the nurses, when all crowd into a tiny plank hut and stuff meat and potatoes as fast as we can. Immediately after lunch I spend an hour or so setting to rights the surgical dressings room, doing little services and distributing cakes or bonbons. It is amazing how a bit of peppermint will console a soldier when a smile goes with it!

Dressings all the afternoon until it is time for temperatures; then soup for the soldiers; and mine, which is soon finished; then the massage for those that need it, etc., after which I prepare my soothing drinks and give the injections. It is the sweetest time of the day, for then one puts off the nurse and becomes the mother; and we have such fun over the warm drinks.

When this is done, I go around and stuff cotton under weary backs and plastered limbs, bid all the children good-night, polish my instruments, clean out the surgical dressings room and hurry home through the frosty night.

This is the rough outline of an ordinary day, and into that let your fancy weave all that is too holy or terrible, too touching or humorous to put into words—the last kiss a soldier gives you for the family he will never see; the watches with the priest when all is still and dark, but for the light of my little electric lamp and a bit of moonlight through the window; the agonies and heroisms; the wit and affection that play like varied lights along the days.

Night before last I believe I saved a man for good, who would not have survived the night. But, oh, what I need is a great, strong, intelligent man, always devoted and always right there to follow instructions. He should be six feet, never tired, never out of humor, tender as a woman and muscled like Ajax. What a lot we could do!

Up to now we have been allowed almost nothing to work with, and now a general order has gone forth from the army headquarters to economize on that. When I tell you that I have one large needle for my whole pavilion, and that I am obliged to give on an average of 15 injections a day with it—and as if that were not enough, the doctor frequently asks to borrow it for another hospital, you may guess how it all goes.

You can't imagine, I suppose, that we laugh and jest all day long? Yet so it is, and if you can't do that, you might as well get out for all the good you will do a French wounded soldier. Why, I believe his very wounds wouldn't heal if he were not allowed to make merry over them, and he will jest with you up to the hour before he dies.

No. 9, contusion, cerebrale trepannation, etc., has just waked up. Se sees me writing. "Mademoiselle, will you give my greetings to your family?"

Echoed by No. 4. "And mine, also, Mademoiselle." Poor fellow, he can hardly be here long!

My little boy from Havre, 19 years old, with resection of the shoulder and a temperature that refuses to moderate, one day was looking at my insignia. "What's your rank, Mademoiselle?" I told him. "Then I think they should call you Lieutenant of the Life Guards."

It is no joke to pour alcohol into a gaping wound, and No. 1, though brave as can be, resents it intensely. One day as he gripped the sides of the operating table to keep from upsetting my arrangements, he gave me a quizzical look: "Sister, why are you tempting me so when you know very well that the Government has strictly forbidden our taking any sort of alcohol?"

The fewer my wounded, the more I work. That may be a slight exaggeration, but it is perfectly true that with 19 patients, all in serious cases, one undertakes a great many things that one wouldn't dare think of for 33, and under the delusion that one has plenty of time, one does things with a sort of refined thoroughness, so that the day is gone before one realizes.

You will like to hear of the living skeleton, with wounds in back and hands and shoulder that they brought me filthy and nearly dead from another pavilion. That was nine days ago. I diagnosed him as a case of neglect and slow starvation and treated him accordingly—malted milk, eggs, soap and alcohol to the fore. His dressings took one and a half hours every day, and all nourishment given a few drops at a time, for he was almost too weak to lift an eyelid, much less a finger. This morning he actually laughed with me and tried to clench his fist inside the dressings to show me how strong he was. He's SAVED, and that makes up for much.

A pearl fisher—a good Catholic and a brave fighter—had come from the sunny shores of Guadaloupe, to die for France. When they amputated his leg they didn't discover that there was a ball in his back. I found it when I took Pavilion V. But then it was too late. Every day the fever mounted higher and every day his black cheeks grew thinner; but he always kept saying, "It is going well," in the sweet caressing tones that recalled that the State was in possession of evidence to corroborate Oxman's story; that one John Rigall, "an Oregon business man," who was with Oxman on the day of the explosion, could be produced to corroborate Oxman's testimony.

Then a bellboy at the Terminal Hotel, where Oxman stayed, found some papers that Oxman had thrown on the floor near the writing desk of the hotel, which showed that he had been in correspondence with one Rigall at Grayville, Ill.

The boy turned these papers over to Mooney's attorneys. They were sent to one of the attorneys for the defense, Frank Mulholland of Toledo, O., who went to Grayville, found Rigall and obtained from him several letters which Oxman had written him and his mother, to the effect that he, Oxman, could use them as "expert witnesses," and would pay well for their services. Rigall went to San Francisco in response to the letters, but was never used as a witness by the State.

The San Francisco Bulletin, which is espousing the cause of the defendants, published fac simile copies of the Oxman-Rigall letters, as follows:

"San Francisco, Dec. 14, 1916.—F. E. Rigall, Grayville, Ill.—Dear Ed: It has been a long time since I heard from you. I have a chance for you to come to San Francisco as an expert witness. A very important case. You will only have to answer three or four questions and I will post you on them. You will get mileage and all that a witness can draw. Probably $100 in the clear, so if you will answer me quick in care this hotel and I will arrange the balance. It is all O K, but I need a witness. Let me know if you can come. January 3 is the date set for trial. Keep this confidential. Yours truly,
F. C. OXMAN."

"San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 18, 1916.—Dear Ed: Your telegram received. I will wire you transportation in plenty of time, also expense money. Will route you via Chicago, Omaha, Union Pacific, Ogden, South Pacific to San Francisco. I think you can make the trip and see California and save a little money, as you will be allowed to collect 11c per mile from the State, which will be about $200, besides I can get your expenses and you will only have to say you seen me on July 22 in San Francisco and that will be easy done. I will try and meet you on the way out and talk it over. The State of California will pay you and I will attend to the expenses. The case won't come up till January 3 or 4, 1917, so start about the 29th of this month. You know that the silent road is the one and say nothing to anybody. The fewer people that know it the better when you come. Register as Evansville, Ind., the more mileage. Yours truly,
F. C. OXMAN."

"San Francisco, Dec. 25, 1916.—Dear Mrs. Rigall: As I am sending Ed transportation tomorrow, 26th, it might be that I can use you also about the 10th, if so, I can obtain you a ticket that you can see California if you would like the trip. Address me care of this hotel. Tell F. E. to say nothing until he sees me. Can probably use extra witness. Been a long time I didn't see you. Yours truly,
F. C. OXMAN."

Publication of these letters led to the arrest of Oxman at his Oregon home, and proceedings were instituted against him for subornation of perjury.

The District Attorney's office suddenly caused a grand jury to be summoned, with John D. Spreckles Jr. as foreman, to investigate the charges. The labor unionists viewed the grand jury with suspicion and started an independent investigation in police court. The grand jury without calling Oxman to testify, found no "bill" against him and commended District Attorney Fickert for his "able and fearless conduct of the bomb cases."

In police court Rigall confessed that he came to San Francisco at the solicitation of Oxman; that he had not seen Oxman in 17 years; that he was wined and dined by the District Attorney and his assistant; that Oxman took him out to the scene of the explosion and told him that all he would have to do would be to swear that he was there at a certain time with Oxman and saw Billings and Mooney placing the suit case against the wall. He declared he told Oxman that he was at Niagara Falls on the day of the explosion and refused to perjure himself "to put a noose around anybody's neck."

After the police court hearing, Oxman was held to the Superior Court on the charge of subornation of perjury. Then followed more sensational disclosures.

Chief of Police Matheson, head of the "Bomb Bureau," made the statement that Estelle Smith, an important witness against Mooney, had told him she had been offered a "sum of five figures" to testify against Weinberg, and that the offer came through Oxman. She later made affidavit to this effect. Chief of Police Petersen and Inspector William J. Smith of Oakland proffered evidence to the grand jury that Mrs. Edeau and her daughter, who identified Billings and Mooney as the men with the suit case, had failed to identify them when they were first arrested, stating that they were "too young." Mrs. Edeau came forward and stated that while this was true, her memory had been refreshed at the District Attorney's office by a photograph taken at 721 Market street on the day of the parade, which showed herself and daughter among the crowd. She admitted she had never told Inspector Smith of being at 721 Market street that day, but had mentioned Steuart and Market streets. Smith was not called by the grand jury.

Explaining the Oxman letters, the District Attorney said his office knew of the letters having been sent asking Rigall to come, but was unaware of their contents. He added that Oxman had told them he had a corroborating witness who was with him at the time of the explosion, but that later, when Rigall came, Oxman found that he was mistaken in the man, and that they, the District Attorney's office, knew, as soon as they had talked with Rigall, that Rigall had not been with Oxman on the day of the parade, and, consequently, his office would have nothing further to do with Rigall.

To add to the unprecedented state of affairs, Judge Franklin A. Griffin, who tried the Mooney case, addressed a letter to the Attorney-General requesting a new trial for Mooney, stating that "The letters of Oxman (undenied and undisputed) undoubtedly require explanation, and, so far as Mooney is concerned, unquestionably the explanation should be heard by a jury which passes upon the question of his guilt or innocence."

A new trial was accordingly granted to Mooney, and a hotly contested one it is very likely to be. Meanwhile, both sides are requesting that the public, which sits in judgment in such cases, be calm and suspend judgment until the whole mess has been cleaned up.

Mrs. Mooney's trial began three weeks ago. Nolan and Weinberg are still awaiting trial.

Germany's War Aims by Noted Germans

the peace of the entire continent from the moment when it shall have driven the Russians from the Black Sea and the Slavs from the South, and shall have conquered large tracts to the east of our frontiers for German colonization. We cannot let loose ex-abrupto the war which will create this Central Europe. All we can do is to accustom our people to the thought that this war must come.—Paul de Lagarde, in "German Writings," 1903.

For this evil (the emigration of the surplus population) we see only one remedy: the extension of our frontiers in Europe. * * * We must make room for an empire of Germanic race which shall number 100,000,000 inhabitants, in order that we may hold our own against masses such as those of Russia and the United States.—"Germany at the Beginning of the Twentieth Century," by a German.

(In the Great-German Confederation which will comprise most of Europe) the Germans, being alone entitled to exercise political rights, to serve in the army and navy and to acquire landed property, will recover the feeling they had in the Middle Ages of being a people of masters. They will gladly tolerate the foreigners living among them, to whom inferior manual services will be intrusted.—"Great-Germany and Middle-Europe in 1950," by a Pan-German.

The territory open to future German expansion * * * must extend from the North Sea and the Baltic to the Persian Gulf, absorbing the Netherlands and Luxembourg. Switzerland, the whole basin of the Danube, the Balkan Peninsula and Asia Minor.—Prof. Ernst Hesse, in World Politics, Imperialism and Colonial Politics," 1906.

Since the Western Powers restrict our right to life, it is necessary that we should attach one of them to us or that we should sweep them out of the way by force.—Maximilian Harden, in The Zukunft, Aug. 12, 1911.

EXPANSION BEYOND EUROPE.

A German policy of expansion is today generally accepted. The empire must acquire more colonies.—Dr. Pohl of Berlin, at a meeting of the Pan-German League, Augsberg, September, 1912.

In this nineteenth century, when Germany has become the first Power in the world, are we incapable of doing what our ancestors did? Germany must lay her mighty grasp upon Asia Minor.—"Amicus Patrie," in "Armenia and Crete. A Vital Question for Germany," 1896.

WORLD DOMINION (After July, 1914).

Germany, as the preponderant Power in a Great-German League, will, with this war, attain world supremacy.—Rudolph Theuden, in "What Must the War Bring Us?" August, 1914.

The hostile arrogance of the Western Powers releases us from all our treaty obligations, throws open the doors of our verbal prison house, and forces the German empire, resolutely defending her vital rights, to revive the ancient Prussian policy of conquest. All Morocco in the hands of Germany; German cannon on the routes to Egypt and India; German troops on the Algerian frontier; this would be a goal worthy of great sacrifices.—Maximilian Harden in The Zukunft, July 29, 1911.

If we do not soon acquire new territory, a frightful catastrophe is inevitable. It signifies little whether it be in Brazil, in Siberia, in Anatolia or in South Africa. * * * Today, as 2000 years ago, when the Cimbri and the Teuton beat at the gates of Rome, a cry arises * * * ever louder and louder, "Give us land, give us new land!"—Albrecht Wirth, "National Spirit and World Power in History," 1904.

Formerly German thought was shut up in her corner, but now the world shall have its coat cut according to German measure, and as far as our swords flash and German blood flows, the circle of the earth shall come under the tutelage of German activity.—F. Philippi, in "World-Germany."

Before everything, however, we must see the provision of agricultural land! We require more soil for settlement * * * and we require unsettled land for settlement. No alien fellow citizens!—Prof. M. von Gruber, in a series of pamphlets by professors of Berlin University.

What It Means to Be Nurse in a War Hospital

early lullabies. Never a murmur, always a smile. The last day our faithful priest confessed him and it was moonlight when he went, one of us kneeling on either side. After Extreme Unction he pressed my hand; and suddenly a marvelous change passed over his face, as if it had grown white and luminous. "Mamma," he murmured, "Louis," then fainter and sweeter, "O, mon bon Dieu," and it was over and nothing remained but a radiating smile. I went to lay him away among the heroes, and if ever I doubted how to die, my black pearl fisher from Guadeloupe has shown me the way.

The last you heard of me I was waiting for wounded. Well, they came, 300 in one night, the latest victims of Verdun, in such a condition as beggars description, and pales all my former experiences. * * * Usually the rough filth of the trenches is removed in the depouillage, but on that night there was no time for such daintiness and they were dumped right into their beds with all manner of blood and mud caked to their shivering bodies. Imagine my despair over my clean sheets, so hard to come by! But such despair was too trivial, beside the horrors one was powerless to cope with. Both operating rooms worked all night and all the next day and most of the next night, but in spite of that more than one life was lost that could have been saved had there been a third. Most of my wounded arrived with their first dressing, which had been done five days before—even in winter you may know what that means, and the kind of work it gave me for the next two days.

You ask about "the skeleton." You will be glad to know he is at Toulouse, on the high road to walking. He writes that the work I did on those poor, turned-down feet was lastingly satisfactory. He had double anthrotomie of the knees and when he came the insteps were bent like a ballet dancer's. Even admitting his recovery, which seemed impossible, he would be obliged to go about on the points of his toes, the knees being permanently stiff. At first, after "peeling" with every conceivable dissolvent, I began just the slightest effleurissage, which developed into massage, and then I invented an apparatus. Now don't laugh! Anyhow, it straightened out the difficulty. A board about 14 inches square was padded with cotton and swathed neatly in a bandage. This was laid vertical against the soles of the feet, which I tried to place as nearly as possible in a normal position. Then I attached a bandage (having no elastic, which would have been better) to the head rail of the bed on one side, passing it around the board and up the other side, fastening it again to the rail, as taut as possible. The knot was tightened twice a day. Result—in two weeks those refractory feet had regained a proper attitude. You who live in the land of perfect apparatus will smile, but just remember that Ambulance 1-2 lacks several things.

American Physician and His Bullet-Proof Armor

"I believe you've got the right thing," said Capt. Burns. "It will prevent from 50 to 75 per cent of the casualties in trench warfare."

All of which was reported to the Ordnance Bureau.

And then the day of days—Maj. J. C. Nichols, assisted by Capt. C. T. Harris and Lieut. R. L. Maxwell, all of the Pickatinny Arsenal, were to make an official test out of doors under battle conditions. Capt. Burns gave up his place as the sharpshooter to Sergt. George Cheswell, Company C, Fifth New Jersey Infantry, National Guard. A lot of officers were there as spectators.

Dr. Brewster climbed down into a sand-pit and let the guardsman shoot at him. The minute he was hit just above the heart the physician started forward, rifle in hand. He charged, he knelt and took aim. He went through bayonet exercises and he ran. He threw grenades and he flourished a saber. He certainly took the offensive.

And Washington is thinking it over, very seriously.

GOOD NEWS FOR FAT FOLKS!

If You Want to Reduce Ten to Sixty Pounds Easily and Quickly, Read This

Most fat people would like to enjoy healthful, normal weight. After unpleasant experiences with starvation dieting, drastic drugging and tiresome exercising, most of those burdened with surplus weight give up hope of ever finding relief.

At last a home treatment has been evolved, which is so simple that some may doubt its efficacy for that reason alone. But don't pass judgement until you know more.

A very easy requirement of this unique system of fat reduction is that you take ten deep breaths each morning and evening in the open air or standing by an open window. Take one oil of korein capsule after each meal and before retiring at night; also follow the other simple directions that come with the capsules.

This treatment often shows a noticeable reduction in a very few days. Its consistent use should greatly improve the general health, overcome sluggishness and reduce your weight to normal. Beautify figure; add to vitality and efficiency; become genuinely happy! The oil of korein capsules may be obtained at the drug store. It is certainly a happy feeling to have a lithe, natural figure.—ADVERTISEMENT.

The Peacock Screen

BY FANNIE HEASLIP LEA

BECAUSE Yvette was beautiful, men flattered her, and because men flattered her, Yvette was beautiful. Her dark eyes had the exquisite daring of the woman who knows she pleases. The blood came readily into her smooth, pale cheek because admiring glances called it there; and her red flower of a mouth shaped itself easiest to smiling acceptance of broken hearts. It is a gracious look and difficult of attainment to the plainer sisters.

Yvette, withal, was not invincible.

Back in the earlier days of her reign, there had been a man, and while the man went—as men do—the memory remained. I mention this merely to open the way to other facts. Yvette had, then, beauty, prestige—and a past, of a delicate, hidden sort. It was but natural that thus endowed, she should come eventually to consider matrimony.

Her mother—have I said that Yvette's mother was none other than Mrs. Jacque de la Fuente (nee Duprez)?—her mother, perhaps, stated the case most eloquently.

"In a year you will be 24," she said, the beautiful limpid French softening and sweetening the words. "That is, almost an old maid. It is time, Yvette, you thought—I, myself, was married at 15."

Yvette touched her rosy nails with a chamois skin and sighed. She was standing at the moment before her dressing table, and the candles set in tall sconces on either side of that artistic bit of furniture afforded a mellow radiance to the mirror's depths.

"At 15," repeated her mother, a trifle insistently, "I was married."

"But, from the cradle—to the grave!" said Yvette, and fastened a single string of pearls about her long white throat.

"What is it you say?" asked Mrs. de la Fuente somewhat sharply. She was not infrequently to be found some distance in the rear of her beautiful daughter.

"How you must have been bored!" said Yvette.

"In my trousseau," continued the lady, "I had, as you know, great quantities of real lace. The veil of my grandmother alone"——

"Eh!" said Yvette, "it does not matter." She shrugged her slender shoulders. "I am quite willing to marry—but the man?"

Then Mrs. de la Fuente flung out a crafty feeler. "He has been most attentive," she murmured, "and there is no slightest fault to be found with his position, his name"——

"His money," thrust in Yvette, almost vulgarly. "Say it, mamma! You mean Tony Whiting." She added with a little yawn, "I had thought of that myself."

"He has perhaps spoken," said Mrs. de la Fuente rather eagerly.

"No," said Yvette. "No," and finished superbly arrogant, "but he will speak tonight."

She drew on a pair of long white gloves, slipped into a long black velvet coat with a collar of fur and extinguished the candles on the dressing table.

"What is it tonight?" she asked languidly. "'Faust?' If you knew how tired I am of that opera with its tenor who is just a grocer's boy in doublet and hose, and its so mysterious devil and its so silly Marguerite. Mind the stair, mamma!"

And it came to pass, as they say in ancient chronicles, that Tony Whiting spoke that night. He had been waiting only the infinitesimal encouragement which Yvette allowed him during the "Jewel Song." The box was very dark, and he sat just behind her, where his eyes could rest without ostentation upon the little curl that touched her neck. It was in his sight, perhaps, the sweetest thing about her—that little wayward, kissing curl. Once she dropped her fan, and when he stooped for it, her fingers fumbled delicately over taking it back. It is just such things which derail the train of otherwise quite prudent events.

In any case, Whiting spoke, in a slow, careful whisper, while Marguerite upon the stage trilled brassily above some bits of colored glass; she was a stout Marguerite, it may be hardly necessary to remark, with a vanishing waist line and three chins.

Tony Whiting's waist line was also being threatened and the hair at his temples had yielded visibly to the persuasion of time, but he had still but one chin and that a good one.

"Yvette," he whispered—not even her mother heard him, though she had always an ear that way—"Yvette! You're very beautiful tonight."

Yvette just lowered her lashes. They were long and touched her cheek with a suggestion of shyness. A smile stirred the corner of her mouth. She did not speak. She knew how it went, that game.

"Suppose," said Whiting very softly, "you put me out of my misery tonight—Yes or no? Are you listening, Yvette?"

Yvette bent her head a very little to say that she was listening. The real old lace above her heart lifted and fell quite evenly. She did not flush.

"Will you?" said Whiting. At least in his throat the breath caught nervously. "Will you, Yvette?"

It was a queer question to ask while Marguerite bedizened her matronly self with earrings and necklaces. Whiting, perhaps, realized the queerness of it, for he leaned a little nearer and touched Yvette's scarf reverently with the tips of his fingers.

"It's been going on a long time with me," he said. "Nothing new—as you know."

Yvette folded her hands in her lap. She looked at the stage—and she looked back over her shoulder into Whiting's eyes. If you had been reared with the end in view of some day entering upon a certain road, you would not, when that road unfolded itself before your feet, draw back. Neither did Yvette. She took her first step between its orderly hedges, naturally enough, without excitement.

"I know," she said, very softly in her turn.

"You will?" said Whiting incredulous to the last adoring fiber of his being.

"Yes," said Yvette. She was not at all slow about it.

And that was the great moment, come and gone, without any blare of trumpets, while Marguerite ogled herself before a mirror and the devil loitered redly in the background coquetting with Dame Martha.

Mrs. de la Fuente received the news with radiance.

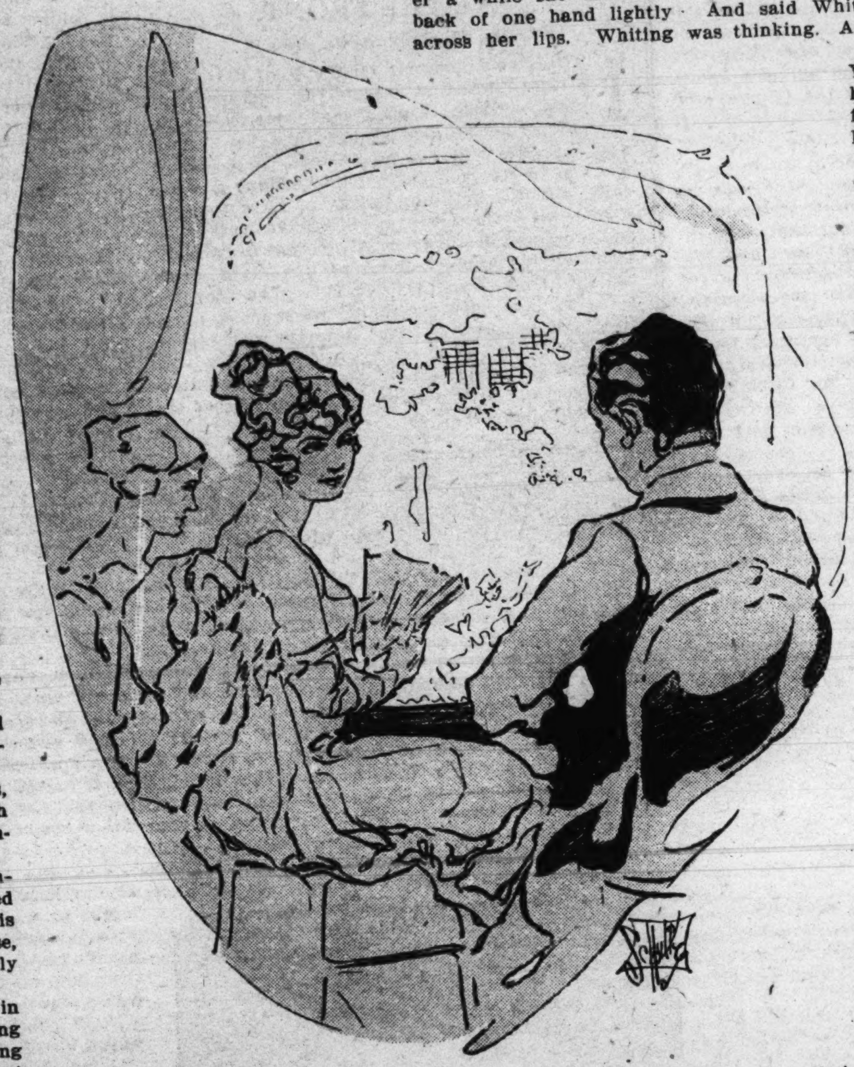
"Dear little one," she said, "I had hoped for it. He is most charming—in every way eligible—not a Creole, of course, but there are really many delightful people uptown. I am confident you will be happy. For the trousseau, of course, you will have Marie."

"I had not thought of the troussseau," said Yvette.

"Ah youth! youth!" sighed Mrs. de la Fuente sentimentally. "Color of rose and another color—of the loved one's eyes."

"I had not thought of that, either," said Yvette, quite truthfully.

When she stood once more before the mirror of her dressing table and lit the candles, she looked at herself with a vague interest. After a while she drew the back of one hand lightly across her lips. Whiting had kissed her in the discreet moment when Mrs. de la Fuente, mounting the stairs, had left them alone together.



"Yvette," he whispered—not even her mother heard him, "Yvette! You're very beautiful tonight."

The lips were softly crimson, much as usual, but Yvette, standing between the candles, stared at them curiously, somewhat as though she expected a scar.

She was not given to analysis of her emotions, Yvette. She only stared and sighed, and presently undressed herself and went to bed with a queer little smile twisting one corner of her mouth. She did not sleep very much, it is true, but an engagement involves a certain amount of excitement not conducive to slumber, and Yvette had not expected to sleep.

Next day she was none the worse for wear and went upon her way with considerable calm.

Also, when Whiting next kissed her, she neglected subsequently to erase it. She was nothing like so ardent as he, it is true, but then, as she explained to him with lovely indifference, ardor is not the woman's part.

"You care the most?" said Yvette. "Naturally. It should be like that."

"H'mph!" said Whiting. After those brief crucial moments at the opera, he had regained something of his usual poise—a delightfully humorous sophistication not untouched with cynicism. "I dare say—balance of power—eh?"

"There is an old French proverb," said Yvette, turning her winking solitaire about a cool white finger, "which says that there is always one who kisses and one who—how do you say?—one who presents the cheek. It is true, I suppose. And it should be the man who kisses. Otherwise he might grow tired."

"H'mph!" said Whiting. "There's something in that, of course—for flirtations—and episodes. This thing of ours goes a bit deeper—eh? I can't seem to see myself getting tired in case you—well, in case you ever decided to take the initiative. Mind being kissed, Yvette?"

"But that is absurd!" said Yvette, smiling.

"Yes—of course," said Whiting. He stroked his clean-shaven chin, which was as yet but one chin, and looked at Yvette out of keen, clear, gray eyes. His own smile had a winning kindliness, but it came slow. "Of course," he repeated. "By nature you're a trifle cold, I fancy—that's all."

Yvette looked at him swiftly and looked away.

"Queer!" said Whiting, "your eyes, now—but you wouldn't have said you'd marry me unless you cared—Yvette?"

"Why should you suppose," Yvette began haughtily.

"You're very beautiful," said Whiting, "and you're young. It's incredible that you shouldn't have stirred up a grand passion, somehow. I don't want to be insistent about it, but, my dear girl, don't for God's sake marry me for any reason but the one I've mentioned! You'd do yourself a very cruel injustice."

"You seem to think," said Yvette, "that it is impossible I should—care—for—you."

"Not impossible," said Whiting quietly. "An exquisite miracle, if you like. Nothing's impossible. But I can't seem to believe in my own happiness—and I wish it might sometimes occur to you to touch me of your own accord." Then he asked a strange question. "Ever been anybody else, Yvette?"

And Yvette said what every woman says when she feels the wall at her back.

"I don't know what you mean."

"Any other man?" said Whiting slowly. "At any stage of the game?"

Said Yvette: "I have known a great many men."

And said Whiting: "Yes, of course, that's what I was thinking. Any of 'em leave a scar?"

A scar, you will remember, was what Yvette had looked for on her lips. Not having found it, she probably felt justified now in smiling and shaking her head.

"Thank God," said Whiting rather suddenly.

Yvette turned pale.

Afterwards, when she remembered the conversation, she gave audience to a ghost, by way of corollary; but nothing resulted, and the trousseau went forward triumphantly. Mrs. de la Fuente swam in satisfaction like a trout in a purling stream. She designed gowns and matched laces. She hobnobbed with dressmakers and bullied seamstresses. The line of a hat was in her dreams by night and the argot of the sewing room was on her tongue by day. All of this demanded money, and to obtain that money certain of Mrs. de la Fuente's diamonds found their way into the loan shops. Yvette protested vainly.

"I do not wish, mamma, that you should ruin yourself."

But Mrs. de la Fuente was obdurate.

"In my trousseau were two dozen of everything. Upon my petticoats even was real lace — and the veil of my grandmother—Dear little one, will you have it draped back or falling before the face?"

When Yvette had no definite desire to express upon this point, her mother reproached her tragically.

"Is it that you do not care? Unnatural child! I remember that I was mad with excitement for weeks before my wedding. I knew to a fold how I wished the veil to fall. I shed tears if a tuck to much was placed upon a skirt—and I had but 15 years."

"Did you perhaps hide your doll beneath the steps of the altar?" inquired Yvette. Then she kissed her mother upon the cheek and smiled. She might have been the lovely elder sister of that other little girl in veil and orange blossoms.

"At least," said Mrs. de la Fuente, sighing before the hopelessness of Yvette's disinterest, "your papa approved. He found me wonderfully gowned. All men have eyes for chiffons upon a woman they love. Tonee will know if your veil is badly draped."

"And will he punish me, do you think?" asked Yvette. "Will he perhaps beat me, mamma?"

She put on her hat while her mother was still scolding, wrapped herself in great soft black furs that accentuated the clearness of her coloring, and went out to motor with Whiting upon a wintry road. Those were not unhappy days.

Then the man came back. I believe there is a saying that this feat is not possible. Still, he came. His name was Douglas Hays, and Whiting brought him to call one Sunday afternoon.

Yvette, coming into the drawing room, halted a very little in her slow, gracious step. Her eyes when they first fell upon his face widened and darkened. Perhaps a slow flush burned across her cheek. But she gave her hand unhesitatingly. Yvette had race.

"Yvette," said Whiting, "may I present Mr. Hays? Miss de la Fuente, Mr. Hays."

And Yvette smiled.

"I think," she said, "that I remember Mr. Hays. The year I came out—was it not?"

Mr. Hays smiled in his turn, but somewhat stiffly. His surprise wrote itself almost imperceptibly upon a lean, sunburned face. His eyes in that brown inscrutable setting were bright and blue like jewels, but the line of his mouth was hard.

"You've met before?" said Whiting in pleasant inquiry.

"Quite some time ago," the other man admitted, equally upon the surface of things. "It's good of you to remember me—Miss de la Fuente." Only to Yvette's conscious ear did the slight hesitation suggest that he stumbled over the formal appellation.

"I never forget names," said Yvette indolently, and

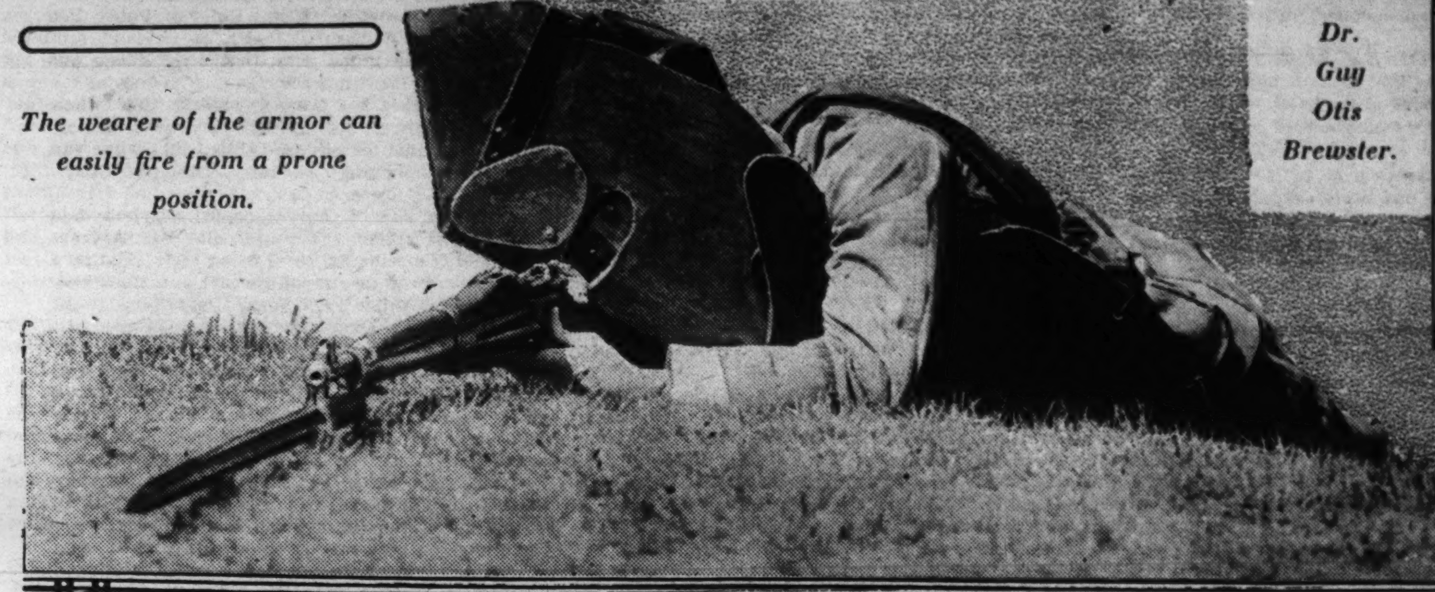
American Physician and His Bullet-Proof Armor



The wearer of the armor can easily fire from a prone position.

Dr. Guy Otis Brewster.

Inventor allowed regulation army bullet to be fired at him from 50 feet—The ball was shattered to bits against the steel and the target was not even knocked down—Then, while a sharpshooter fired at him, he charged from a sandpit, knelt and took aim and went through bayonet exercises ::

HAS the knight in armor come back into his own again? Will the American soldier, in order to be strictly up-to-date, don helmet and corselet and greaves before he charges the enemy trenches? Are we to believe that men clad in Bethlehem steel, stamped "Made in U. S. A.," will finally overwhelm the Germans on the field of France and find the solution of latter-day problems?

"Yes, indeed," declares Dr. Guy Otis Brewster of New York and Dover, N. J., and so impressed is the Government with his ideas that army ordnance experts have tested his theories and are now making ready to report upon them at Washington.

In a word, Dr. Brewster has devised a bullet-proof armor for the use of the American army which can stop our own high-power bullets with ease and effectiveness—an armor light enough for a man to wear in a charge and flexible enough for him to handle his rifle for a bayonet attack or to shoot at the enemy from any position.

DR. BREWSTER is one of the leading residents of Dover, where he is a specialist in diseases of the eye, nose and ear, as well as director of physical training in the public schools. Some years ago he filled the same position in the De Witt Clinton High School in New York. He also has offices in the city, coming in two days a week to practice.

It was while he was physical director that he thought out the problem of devising a boxing armor—something in which school boys might engage in fisticuffs that were as safe as lawn tennis. That led him to experimenting with armor that could stand more, even to the stoppage of the terrific flight of a bullet. At last, he says, he has succeeded—at any rate, the other day out in Dover, he donned his helmet and armor and let them fire at him with a high-velocity army rifle. The bullets never found their mark in him; they were spattered to bits or melted by the tremendous heat of the impact against the toughened steel that was only scarred. It was a great day for Dr. Brewster. He had set the army officers to thinking.

"I have worked for years," said Dr. Brewster, when he was asked to tell something about his invention, "on the physiological principle of distributing shock from the point of its impact. From the first I had in mind the making of some shock-proof, puncture-proof apparatus, or armor, which couldn't be knocked off. I wanted it to be as much the part of the wearer as his underclothing. I think I have found it."

Digressing momentarily, it may be said here that several foreign nations have worked for years to get bullet-proof armor for their soldiers, but without any success. Plenty of devices that would stop a bullet have been made, but when a man put one on and allowed himself to be shot at, the shock of the bullet either knocked him down or else paralyzed him. This didn't discourage Dr. Brewster. He went at his task scientifically and intelligently.

Ready for a bayonet charge.

"My problem," continued Dr. Brewster, "was to find the points of the skeleton which would take up the shock of a powerful impact at any angle and distribute it, without driving the man backward or knocking him down. You know, it takes a very little unexpected shock to throw a man off his balance. A small wound will knock a man down. I had to devise, therefore, an apparatus that in taking up the shock would avoid the ganglia which lead direct to the cerebral and spinal systems, and to the sympathetic nervous system, as well. The two biggest points I had to consider were whether the tremendous impact of the bullet would not dislocate the skeleton or knock down the wearer.

"In fine, my bullet-proof armor had not only to be impervious to the bullet, but it had to stand a ton-and-a-half blow from a projectile traveling half a mile a second."

You might think one of the characters from "Alice in Wonderland" had jumped out of Lewis Carroll's whimsy to see Dr. Brewster coming at you in his coat of Bethlehem steel. Did you spy him running head-on in the dark of the moon it would require little straining of the imagination to make him a hobgoblin on evil bent—the conical head, the angled armor body-piece, the great, staring eyelids of steel, opened up enough to give him a view in front, a thing of satanic aspect, verily.

The apparatus weighs something like 30 pounds. It is held on my two straps of webbing which will stand a wetting, and which a man may easily cut loose. The steel armor comes to an angle in front, both head and body, which are separate pieces. Topping all is a semi-pyramidal headpiece of steel to protect from shots above, or shrapnel.

The body-piece looks exactly like a shield that has been bent in the middle at an angle of 45 degrees. It comes to a point in front, and at the shoulders it is raised a trifle. The headpiece is fitted on behind it and over the shoulders, enabling the soldier wearer to bend his neck. This is necessary in order that he may raise his rifle to the position of "aim." At the height of the eyes is a slit through which he sees. In case of heavy fire he may drop two lids over the eyes which are pierced with two tiny holes at the line of sight, so that he can see, even with the lids down. Thus armored, every vital part is protected, and should occasion demand it, other pieces for the legs and arms and back can be made and worn which will add little to the weight.

"Your armor must stand two tests: 1. That it will enable the wearer to take the offensive. 2. That the shock of the bullet impact will not throw him flat on his back."

Such was the gist of a letter from Washington to Dr. Brewster when he wrote to the Ordnance Bureau. If this could be met then Dr. Brewster might come along; the ordnance experts were willing to be shown. Dr. Brewster was willing to show them.

The first test was at Frankford Arsenal, near Philadelphia. Armor-piercing bullets were fired at the apparatus from all angles, but not one of them pierced its toughened skin of steel. The second test was more searching—someone must consent to wear the armor and be shot at. The Pickatinny Arsenal, near Dover, was the place selected and for the person to wear it—"I'm your man," wrote Dr. Brewster.

In fact, it was harder to find the man who would consent to shoot. However, Capt. James Burns, U. S. A., a ballistic expert stationed at the arsenal and an old friend of Dr. Brewster's, volunteered. "I have faith in it myself," explained the Captain.

"As I walked down the testing shed," confessed Dr. Brewster, "past the rack of rifles, to a point 50 feet away, and then turned to face the rifle in the hands of my friend, Capt. Burns, it was the supreme moment of my life. I knew absolutely nothing as to what would actually happen."

"Are you ready, doctor?"

The figure in armor stood motionless. "I was just starting to say 'Ready!'" says Dr. Brewster now, "and the rifle sang out." There was a clang as of a gong and Dr. Brewster started forward. The bullet had blown itself to bits against his jacket of steel and the fragments had gone through the iron side of the shed to his right.

"Well?" cried Capt. Burns, eagerly.

"I felt a gentle push; that was all," answered the inventor, chuckling triumphantly.

Again and again the army man fired. Nothing happened. Dr. Brewster was neither wounded, paralyzed nor knocked down. The shock was too evenly distributed. The 15-100ths of an inch Bethlehem steel had done its work well and Dr. Brewster's faith in his device had been confirmed! A scar in the steel and a slash of the lead across the face of the armor—that was all.

They hit his armor with a sledge hammer as he ran through a door, but the blow couldn't knock down the physician. They fired at his head. "I don't feel anything," said he, "because the shock is even taken up better."

Impending Fate of an American Labor Leader That Echoes in the Russian Revolution

Bitter feeling engendered by the conviction of Thomas J. Mooney, organizer of street railway trainmen, for alleged participation in the San Francisco bomb plot, in which ten persons were killed last summer during a preparedness parade, found expression in a demonstration against America among radical Socialists in the capital of the new republic—Summary of the case against Mooney

PETROGRAD, April 23, via London, April 25.—The American Embassy was threatened with an attack last night by a mob of radical Socialists, incited by Nikolai Lenine, the exile who returned from Switzerland through Germany. A crowd gathered on the Nevsky Prospekt at 11 p. m. on Sunday night. It started a mile from the Embassy.

Lenine said America was the enemy of the Socialists for having hanged Mooney.

AS a matter of fact, Mooney has not been hanged. He was, however, sentenced to die, but since his conviction new evidence indicating perjury has caused an order for another trial. The absorption of the people of the United States in the war and the bigger domestic problems of national moment has served to keep from public attention this extraordinary case which is actually an outgrowth of the bitter labor quarrel which has kept San Francisco in a turmoil for a number of years. It has been referred to as "another Dreyfuss case"—that is, the persecution of an innocent man merely to punish a class. Socialists so believe, whatever the facts may be, and as the cablegram quoted above shows, this belief has traveled half around the world and became an element in the attitude of Russian labor leaders in their feeling toward the United States in a world crisis.

Since not many people in this part of the country know the circumstances which created "the Mooney case," the following general review of the events of the crime and trial are here presented:

The genesis of the Mooney case dates back to the preparedness parade in San Francisco, July 22, 1916. The labor unions held aloof from the parade as a "protest against militarism." The employers' associations and most everybody else in San Francisco advocated a large demonstration.

Feeling was intense on both sides, and soon letters were received by newspapers and individuals hinting at a bomb demonstration to give the paraders "a taste of war." The employers attributed these letters to labor unions, and the latter accused the employers as a means to place responsibility upon labor in case of trouble.

The parade started at 1:30 p. m., and at exactly six minutes after 2 o'clock a bomb was exploded at Steuart and Market streets, on the line of march, killing 10 persons and wounding a score of others.

Immediately after the outrage the Chamber of Commerce formed a law-and-order committee; the Police Department organized a new branch of the service, known as "the Bomb Bureau," and detectives were put on the case to spare no expense in running down the perpetrators of the crime. Some attributed it to German influences, some to anarchists, some to enemies of the United Railroads, but no one at first attributed the act to organized labor.

Witnesses came forward and declared that they had seen the bomb thrown from a roof, but, as pieces of a suit case were found in the debris, the hunt was conducted on the theory that an infernal machine, timed to explode, was placed in a suitcase and left in the crowd.

A week or so after the outrage all San Francisco was startled by the arrest of four men and one woman—Thomas J. Mooney, organizer of street railway trainmen; Warren K. Billings, past president of the Shoeworkers' Union; Edward Nolan, an active organizer of the Machinists' Union; Israel Weinberg, Executive Board member of the Jitney Bus Operators' Union, and Mrs. Rena Mooney, a music teacher and also active assistant of her husband in labor affairs.

From the moment of the arrest of the Mooneys there has been a persistent propaganda, tostered by labor unionists and Socialists in this country, in which the case is denounced as a flagrant travesty of justice designed to destroy organized labor on the Pacific coast. Labor unions everywhere contributed money for the defense of the Mooneys, while employers' associations in California assisted the State.

The Billings case was prosecuted, as was that of Mooney, by Charles M. Fickert, District Attorney, assisted by lawyers hired by the Employers' Law and Order Committee. For the defense some of the leading attorneys of San Francisco were employed. Bourke Cochran of New York also appeared for Mooney. Money was liberally contributed for both prosecution and defense, and offers of large rewards brought many volunteer witnesses.

Fickert was alleged to owe his nomination and election to capital and the influence of the United Railroads, and it was freely intimated that he sought the governorship from the same source through fighting labor unionism.

Billings was convicted, principally on the testimony of John McDonald, who swore that he had seen Billings place a suit case in the crowd at Steuart and Market streets, about a quarter of an hour before the explosion, and that Billings joined Mooney a short distance away, where they exchanged a few words and separated, going in opposite directions, and the testimony of Estelle Smith and her mother and Sadie Edeau and her mother, that they had seen Billings with the suit case and accompanied by Mooney, at 721 Market street, about a mile from the point of explosion, a short time before it occurred. Billings was given life imprisonment upon recommendation of the prosecution, in the hope, it was stated, that he might be induced to turn State's evidence.

Mooney's trial followed. His defense was an alibi. In the Billings trial three photographs had been used by the defense, showing Mooney and his wife on the roof of the building at 721 Market street. Across the street a clock was shown, but the dial was too indistinct in the prints to read the time. But attorneys for Mooney ascertained that better copies of the picture could be made and secured the film from the District Attorney by order of the court. Two police officers accompanied the films and remained while Theodore Krytka, a handwriting expert, printed enlarged copies. The street clock in the picture was magnified 2650 times and showed that the hands stood at 1:58, 2:02 and 2:04 in the different exposures. These pictures had been taken by an amateur photographer on the same roof with the Mooneys, taking pictures of the parade. An explosion took place two minutes after his last exposure, and it seemed impossible that Mooney could have been at Steuart and Market streets, a mile away, at the time alleged by the prosecution.

These photographs almost clinched Mooney's alibi, but the prosecution, at the trial, sprung a surprise by introducing a new witness, F. C. Oxman, an Oregon cattleman, who declared unqualifiedly that he was at the corner of Steuart and Market streets, when he saw the Mooneys, husband and wife; Billings, Weinberg and another man, not identified, drive up in a jitney bus; that Billings got out first and Mooney handed him the suitcase; that Billings in turn gave it to the unidentified man "with a scraggly beard and mustache," who carried it up Steuart street; that Billings overtook the man and again took the suitcase and set it against the wall of a saloon. Mooney, he declared, approached the saloon door and talked to Billings; looked at his watch; glanced at the Ferry Tower and seemed nervous and excited. Finally, Oxman testified, Mooney said to Billings: "Give it to him! The bulls may be here any moment."

Billings, the witness continued, then gave something to the man with the mustache and the man crossed to the east side of Steuart street. Mooney and Billings, he testified, returned to the machine, leaving the suit case against the wall, and drove away. A few minutes later, he declared, the explosion occurred.

The jury brought in a verdict of guilty in the first degree and Mooney was sentenced to be hanged May 17.

Mooney's friends went to work on Oxman's story at once and produced Mrs. Charlotte la Posse, formerly a resident of Oxman's home town, Durkee, Ore., who made affidavit that at the time of the explosion she had seen Oxman in front of the Phelan Building, a mile away. Next day the newspapers published a statement from the District Attorney's office to the effect that the prosecution was "undisturbed" by this new development and added as his eyes met hers, "but I have a dreadful memory—for faces. I am not sure I should have known"——

"Possibly I've changed," he suggested.

"Men of your type don't change a great deal, under, say 50."

At which the two men crossed glances, courteously enough.

"Why, no," said Yvette, "you have not changed—as I remember you."

"Nor you," said Hays almost significantly.

"Mr. Hays," said Whiting, in the ensuing pause, "is a stranger in a strange land, Yvette. Never been here but once before. I've asked him to see 'Aida' with us tomorrow night."

"That will be charming," said Yvette.

"It's very good of you," said Hays.

"You'll find the old opera house interesting," said Whiting. He stood up slowly. "Think by any chance I'd find your mother in the library, Yvette? I've a message for her from my sister."

"All afternoon," said Yvette calmly, "she has been in the library with a volume of De Maupassant. One fancies she will be there still, Tony."

And Tony went out with a nod and a smile. The curtains fell to behind him.

Then the other man spoke. He leaned forward in his chair, elbows upon his knees, hands interlocked, and looked a little mockingly at his hostess.

"Hello, Yvette!" he said, as if he had not seen her before. The words were flippant, almost with a touch of impertinence.

Yvette looked at him straightly. Nevertheless, an uncontrollable excitement stained her cheeks.

"You have not changed," she said, "in the least. You were always daring."

"Dear me, yes!" he agreed. "Why not? The ladies like it, God bless 'em!" Then, very suddenly, he dropped his smiling pose.

"I had no idea," he told her, "that it was you I was to see. Whiting mentioned no names. You believe me?"

"You know him well?" asked Yvette.

"I hadn't seen him in years until today. I knew him back East." He added curiously, "And you?"

"We are to be married," said Yvette.

"Oh!" said Hays. A little thereafter he smiled. "I congratulate him."

"Thank you," said Yvette.

Then the man looked into Yvette's eyes and found them deep.

"Clean forgotten everything?" he suggested coolly.

"What was there to forget?" she asked him.

"Never dig in the ashes?" he hinted.

"Ashes are cold and uninteresting," said Yvette.

She smiled, too. When he stared a little rudely, she smiled the sweeter.

"It is almost impossible," she apologized, "to remember everything across four years. I dare say there are a great many things of which you are thinking, that I have forgotten. One meets so many men when one is a debutante"——

"I should like to stake my reputation, of which I am very jealous," said Hays, "that you have not forgotten. There are some things which one does not forget, and die erste Liebe is one of them."

"Were you that?"

"I," said he, "was that—however unworthily."

Yvette shrugged.

When she did not speak the lines of Hays' face changed swiftly. A compelling youth spoke from his eyes, and the whimsical, lifting corners of his mouth. It was the look Yvette remembered.

"I've never changed," he said. "Believe me, Yvette"——

And at that juncture, rather appropriately, Whiting came back into the room.

"I found your mother," he said cheerfully, "and De Maupassant. Have you two revived your auld lang syne?"

Whiting's roses came next day upon the heels of Hays' less prodigal valley lilies.

Yvette wore the roses to the opera—and put the valley lilies in her room.

After the first act of "Aida," she questioned Whiting's pleasant hospitality abruptly.

"Tony—you know Mr. Hays well?"

Whiting shrugged. He drew his chair a little nearer, and lowered his voice.

"Fairly well, no intimately. Likeable chap, eh? Something of a gallant cavalier. Where did you know him?"

"He went about with the La Branches the winter I came out," said Yvette.

"Like him?" asked Whiting carelessly. "By the way, I've asked him to a little dinner I'm having next week—for you."

"A dinner you're having for me?" said Yvette.

"Thought you'd like it—an old friend and all that," said Whiting. He sat back in his chair as the curtain rose.

Yvette heard very little of the music that night.

When she went home, she put the bowl of valley lilies downstairs in the library on the plea that their perfume was too heavy.

"It sickens me," she said, more or less truthfully.

Another thing she did was not so wise. She resurrected from a box in the depths of a clothes closet a package of letters and read them through deliberately. The dawn came in at the window when she had finished. They were long letters, for the most part, and there were rather a number of them. The last one was enlightening.

"I accept your decision," it said carefully, "but I can't help believing that this is not the end. Suppose we call it tomorrow's tangle, and trust to fate to unravel it. You may be right. In any case, there is nothing more now for me to say. You have closed the subject."

"It was a very easy acceptance—of my decision," said Yvette to herself. "He never cared. If he had"——

Without finishing the sentence she went to bed, just as the streets were waking. She did not go to sleep at once, but then when she did she slept till noon, which somewhat recompensed her.

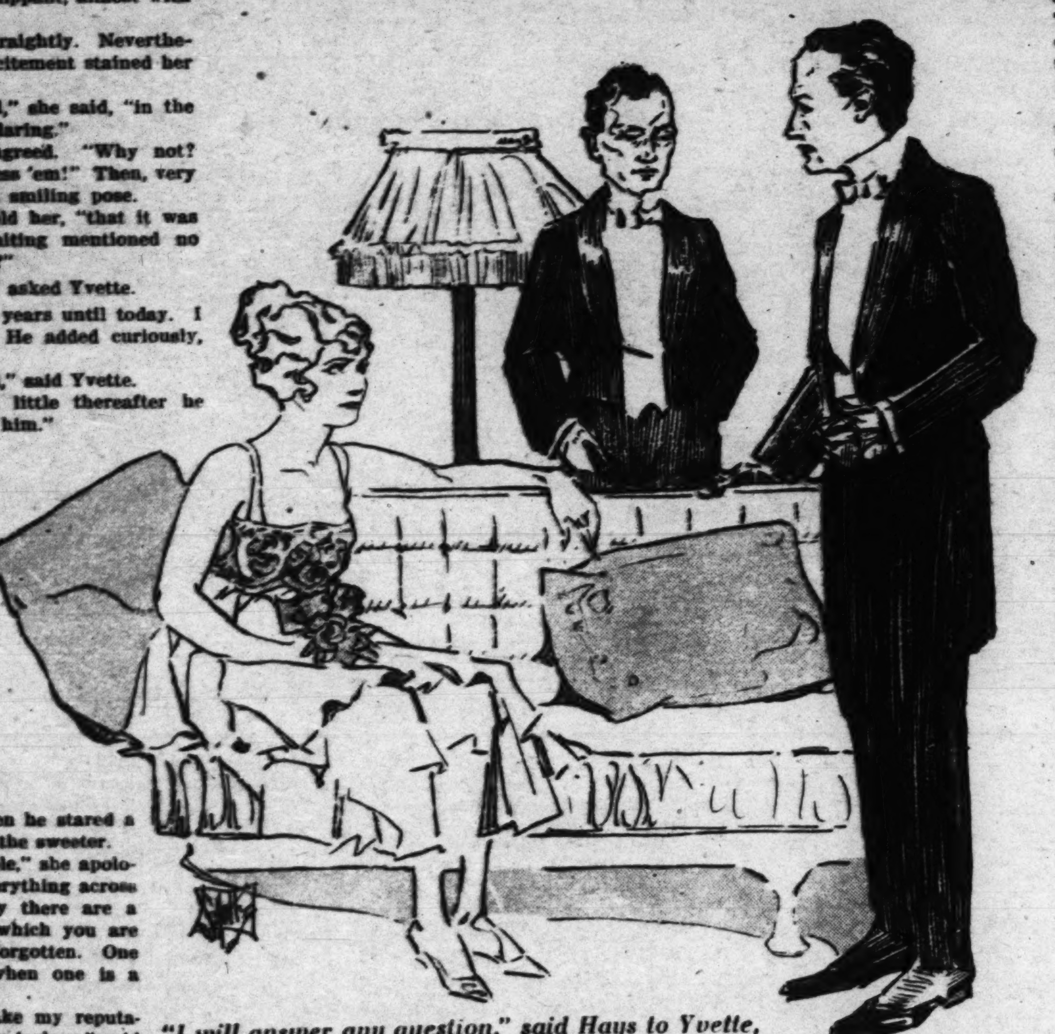
It is not one of the conditions for a successful betrothal that memories return.

Yvette was unhappy.

She endeavored to be natural with Whiting, and succeeded in displaying to his keen gray eyes an undue effusiveness. She endeavored to be natural with Hays, and by her resultant coldness convinced him easily that she was afraid of the old feeling. She endeavored to be natural with her mother, who had memories of her own concerning Hays and her daughter and was therefore pacing the watch tower, and succeeded only in arousing in the maternal breast a small simoon of anxiety.

In herself, Yvette was prey to a variety of emotions. Her nerves wore to fiddlestrings, and her nights were sleepless treadmills. She desired to be loyal to Whiting, but the lure of the first love called her insidiously. Also she said to herself—as does many another beloved one—that matrimony allows one no rain checks, and having purchased a ticket one must, willy-nilly, sit through the entire performance or go forth into outer darkness with no prospect of returning.

The thing faintly alarmed her—for the first time.



"I will answer any question," said Hays to Yvette, "that you wish me to answer."

In contradistinction to each other she placed certain reluctant facts.

Whiting was nearing middle age. Hays was in the very prime of youth, daring, denied and dark—three potent D's.

Whiting loved her. Hays might or might not—a fact entirely in his favor by the very beauty of its uncertainty.

Whiting's hair was ebbing and his waistcoat obtained an almost imperceptible prominence. Hays was lithe as an Indian, and his hair thick as leaves at Vallombrosa.

Add to this: Whiting had money. Hays had not.

This last line is, of course, an inconsiderable factor. Another obscure line of reasoning is that she had given her word to Whiting; and once, a long four years ago, she had refused it to Hays, who had accepted that refusal, as his conduct had instigated it, without enormous regret.

Yvette, as I said, was unhappy.

She saw Hays often, and he made love to her so cleverly that only her wish, which was perhaps the paternal progenitor of her thought, could have been sure just what he was doing.

Also, she saw Whiting, seven days out of the week, and he made love to her less subtly, at the same time arranging ways by which the other man should have his opportunity.

"I'd like you to see something of Hays," said Whiting on one occasion. "You don't dislike him, do you?"

"On the contrary," said Yvette; but just how much on the contrary she neglected, quite naturally, to add.

Hays himself urged the question with rather more effect. Having come back, he desired to pick up the threads that his departure had broken. Yvette, more poised, more sought after, more delicately experienced in every way, appealed strongly to his appreciation. Possibly that appreciation acquired something of its fervency from the fact that Yvette was now behind the plate-glass window of another's prospective ownership. Men are like that. In any case, the appreciation was fervent, and its expression unmistakable. At first, for a little, he fenced, he experimented for the weak spot in her armor, and he fired from ambush. Then he came boldly into the open.

"You loved me once," he said. "You women don't forget."

"I cannot listen to you," Yvette rebuffed him uneasily.

"You could listen fast enough, if you'd forgotten."

Which shot went home, and Yvette winced.

"You're afraid," he said, "that I can make you care again."

"I am afraid of nothing," said Yvette, but she would not look at him.

"Yvette," he said, with sudden passion, "it's like a flame consuming me, for all I thought myself so strong. I've forgotten all the other women I ever knew, and they've been more than two or three. You cared once—you've got to care again."

His hand shook while he said it, and it was true that Yvette had cared—once. There you have the makings of a very probable de capo, but time passed without a climax, and it came to be the night of the little dinner which Whiting was having for Yvette. He had it in his bachelor apartments, with Mrs. de la Fuente, an imposing evidence of propriety, at the head of the table.

In the center of the table which was lit with rosy-shaded candles was a bank of pale orchids, and around the table—it was rather small—were Whiting, Yvette and Hays. I have said that Mrs. de la Fuente presided.

"But Tony," said Yvette, a little nervously perhaps, "are we your only guests?"

"Why, there's a camaraderie, I think, about these little dinners," said Whiting.

There was, however, small camaraderie about that little dinner. Mrs. de la Fuente alone talked determinedly and lightly on many subjects. Yvette ate little, and laughed a good deal. For the two men, Whiting was cheerfully silent and Hays taciturn. The courses came and went and eventually dinner was over. When the coffee cups were empty, Whiting led the way to his library.

"There's a fire," he said, "an open fire, which I find is always first aid to sociability."

About a quarter of an hour later he appealed to Mrs. de la Fuente:

"I have been hoping all day that you would play for us."

Mrs. de la Fuente rose with a pleased flutter.

"Ah, but I am old-fashioned," she protested. "I have not the music of today."

"I don't know your equal," said Whiting, "for 'Lucia' and 'Aida' and 'Trovatore'—all the real tunes."

He led her to the grand piano, which occupied almost all of the room adjoining the library, and then came back to the fire.

"Celeste Aida" followed him, sighing upon the air.

"Well!" said Whiting, pleasantly conversational. He stood with his back to the fire, one hand in the pocket of his trousers, and looked from Yvette to Hays.

"Well, what, Tony?" said Yvette.

Hays crossed his legs, and looked at the fire.

"What have you decided?" asked Whiting.

"I!" said Yvette. She said it sharply, being startled.

"And Hays," said Whiting. He spoke quietly, beneath the music.

Then Hays looked at Yvette.

"What d'you mean?" he inquired. "I don't quite get you, my dear fellow. Is it a joke?"

"Shall I explain?" asked Whiting.

"If you please," said Yvette, her chin lifting proudly.

"I fancy," said Whiting after a considerable pause, "it won't be any too easy. Still, I've arranged this little dinner with a view to explanations, where two or three are gathered together, y'know. Yvette, have you ever found me unreasonable?"

"No," said Yvette.

"Or exacting?"

"No."

"Or unfair?"

"No—no!" She answered vehemently.

"Then you will answer a question if I ask it?"

"I will answer any question," said Yvette, "you choose to ask me."

"Thanks," said Whiting. He turned curtly to Hays. "Never knew me to be anything but square, did you?"

"So far as I know," said Hays with the barest trace of a sneer.

"Then you will answer a question?"

"Concerning whom?"

"Concerning us three," said Whiting quietly. He added, lifting his voice a trifle, "Ah, don't stop, Mrs. de la Fuente! Give us the immortal sextet."

"I will answer any question," said Hays to Yvette, "that you wish me to answer."

"Good!" said Whiting cheerfully. "Now then—here's the thing in a nutshell." He spoke swiftly, but rather low. "Do either or both of you wish me to release Yvette from her promise to marry me?"

The fire of seasoned logs crackled like thorns beneath a pot, and the immortal sextet flooded the room with melody. Otherwise ensued a silence.

"You're pretty frank, aren't you?" said Hays at length.

Yvette said nothing, only looked.

"It would hardly escape me," said Whiting, still with the same pleasant quiet, "that this is a triangle. Your firm sent you here, Hays, a couple of weeks ago. I had heard of you before you came. Gossip dies hard. I had heard that you were once extremely attentive to Miss de la Fuente. You're young, you're interesting, you have it on me every way but one. I wanted to be absolutely fair to the lady who had done me the honor to accept me, so I saw that she met you again—I saw that she met you rather frequently. I gave you every chance. I knew that old affairs sometimes rejuvenate themselves. You'll admit you've had fair play?"

He looked from Hays to Yvette, and back again. Yvette sat very still, all her delicate color faded, her dark eyes fixed on Whiting's face.

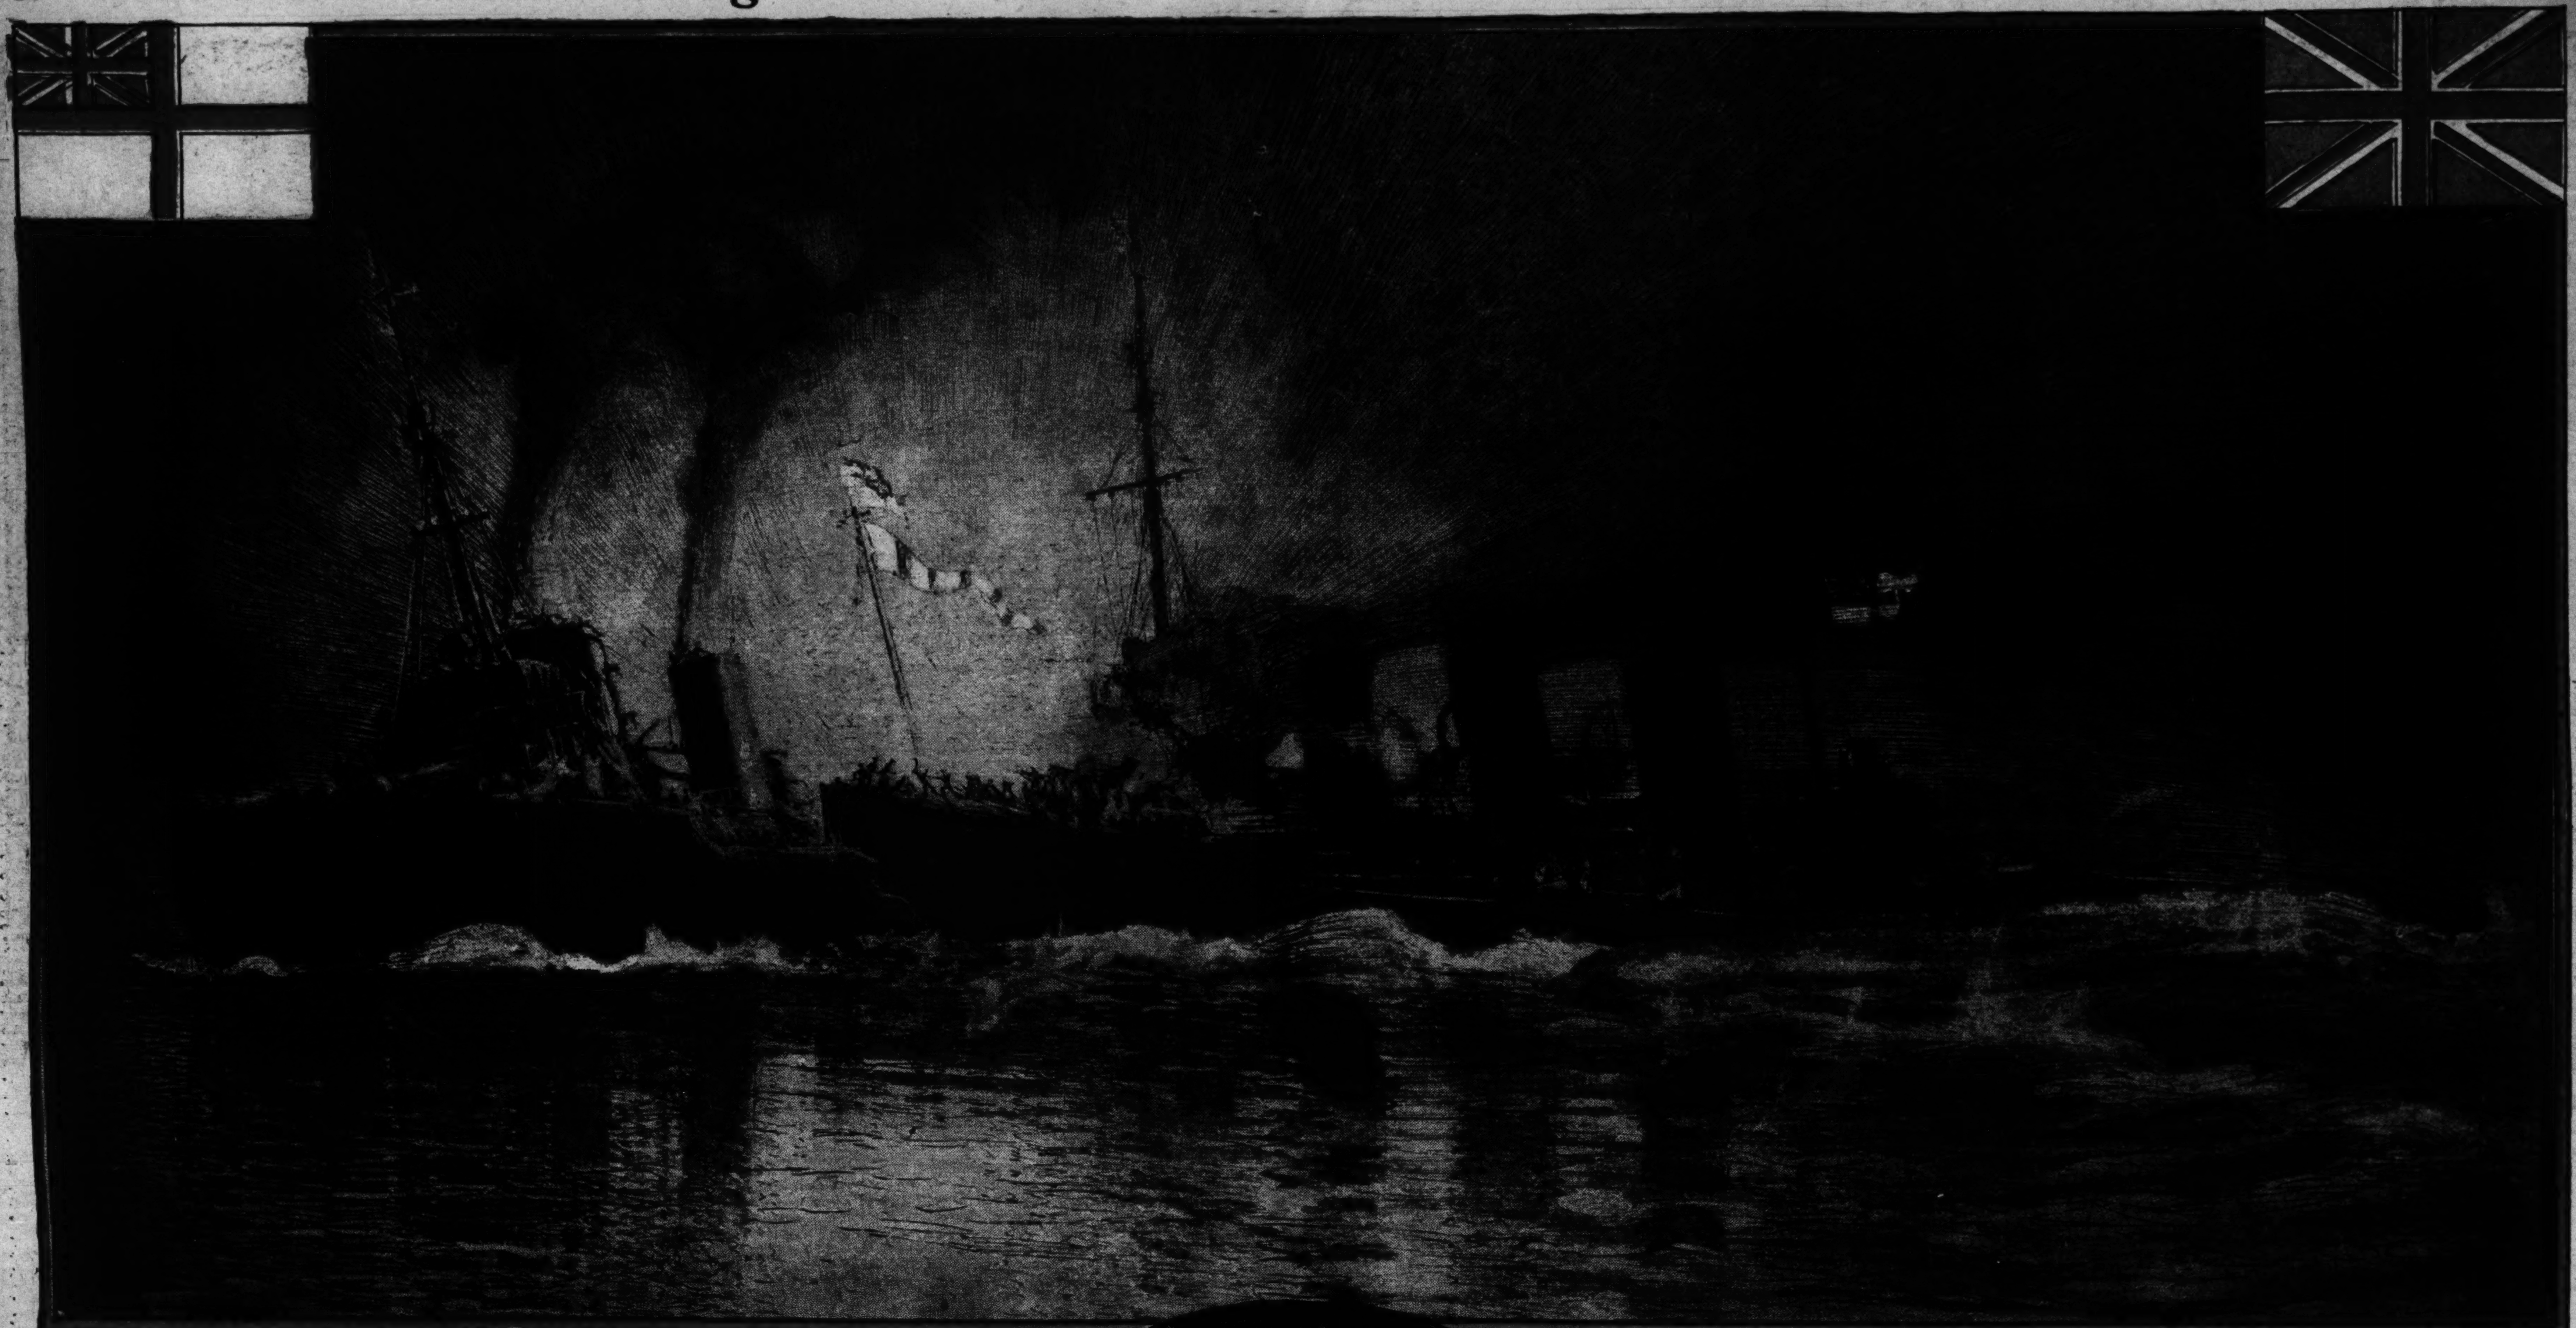
When British Jack Tars Fought Like Those of Nelson's Day

The Strangest Naval Battle of the War



MODERN war, with its long-range guns and scientific appliances for wholesale killing, is vastly unlike that of the old days, they have been telling us ever since the nations of Europe began their grapple in the summer of 1914. The exception which proves the rule was the fight between two British and six German destroyers in the English Channel on the night of April 20.

In this engagement British jack tars had a taste of the sea fighting that was in vogue in Lord Nelson's day. For the first time in a great many years two warships actually clashed together and the crew of one boarded the other. The once familiar cry of "Out cutlasses, and at 'em!" rang across the deck of the Briton and there was hand-to-hand fighting a-plenty.

The matter-of-fact account of the fight furnished by the British Admiralty has been supplemented by stories from the lips of men who took part in it, which have just reached this country. Together they form a thrilling narrative of one of the most blood-enlivening "scraps" of the war and furnish the amazing information that the entire battle, in which at least two Germans were destroyed and the rest of the ships engaged considerably damaged, lasted only five minutes.

The British ships which went into the engagement against such great odds were the destroyers Broke and Swift. The former was commanded by Commander Ambrose M. Peck and the latter by Commander Edward R. G. R. Evans, who is by way of becoming one of England's greatest naval heroes. He was second in command of Capt. Scott's Antarctic expedition and was made a Commander in the navy in recognition of his services as an explorer. He was the youngest man of that rank in the service, being only 34 years old when appointed. Recently he has been placed in command of England's entire destroyer flotilla.

The night of April 20 was intensely dark. The Swift and Broke were on patrol duty in the channel and were proceeding in a westerly course when, at 12:40 a. m., the Swift sighted an enemy flotilla going east at high speed. They were within about 600 yards range, and hardly had they been sighted when the British heard their fire gongs and they opened fire all down the line.

Commander Peck immediately decided to ram the leading enemy destroyer, knowing full well that he was taking desperate chances. But at his order the wheel of the Swift was turned around, and with every occupant of the bridge temporarily blinded by flashes, she was driven straight for the enemy. She missed, but fortunately shot through the line unscathed. She turned, and in doing so torpedoed another boat in the German line. Again she dashed at the leading boat, which eluded her the second time and fled into the darkness, with the Swift in pursuit.

When the enemy had been sighted the Broke was steaming astern of the Swift and when the latter vessel darted out of the line the Broke launched a torpedo at the second German destroyer. The missile hit and then the Broke opened fire with every gun that could be trained upon the enemy. The Germans had been stoking furiously and the glow from their every funnel lighted up the scene sufficiently for the Commander of the Broke to decide upon his tactics. He swung around and rammed the third enemy destroyer at full speed, striking her fair and square abreast the after funnel.

Thus locked together, the desperate hand-to-hand encounter of the two vessels then began. The Broke swept the enemy's decks at point-blank range, with every gun available—those of the main battery, the "pompoms," rifles and pistols. In the meantime, the remaining two destroyers in the German line were pouring a devastating fire upon the Broke. The foremost guns' crews had been reduced from 18 to 6, but Midshipman Donald A. Gyles, 17 years old, in charge of the forecastle, kept all the foremost guns in action, and though wounded in the eye, helped the depleted gun crews to load. Here is the story of the encounter in his own words:

MIDSHIPMAN GYLES, 17-YEAR OLD HERO OF THE FIGHT —From a photograph taken in the hospital.

"I was asleep down below when the Broke and the Swift sighted the enemy destroyers. All hands were immediately called to action posts, and I went to my post forward, which was above the gun. A soft shell, fired from the enemy, hit the superstructure of the bridge, completely tearing away one side and killing and wounding several of our men and also killing and wounding a number of men who were serving the port No. 2 gun below.

"I was struck by a fragment of shrapnel in my right eye. I was also wounded in my right leg and right arm. The force of these blows momentarily stunned and floored me. The blood was flowing from my eye and running down my face, so I had to wipe it away with my handkerchief and my coat sleeve. After being knocked down, however, I managed to pick myself up and ran down to the gun below, and finding it out of action I scrambled on to the forecastle—all within two minutes. There I found only five men alive, but we were able to man the gun. Able Seaman Ingleson, whose gun was also out of action, came forward and helped us. He loaded the port gun, while I loaded the starboard gun.

"While we were serving the guns, several Germans boarded us from the German destroyer we had rammed, yelling all the time for mercy and shouting other things we could not understand. They rushed along the deck and endeavored to attack us, making a special dash at me. I pointed my revolver at them and ordered them all forward, when one burly German, a regular giant, made a lunge at me, seizing me by the right arm and trying to wrest my weapon from me. Petty Officer Woodfield aimed a blow with his fist at the man, but he managed to dodge it and ran around our gun, hoping to attack me from the rear. The timely intervention of Ingleson, who ran his cutlass through the German, settled him once and for all.

"We threw his body overboard and he disappeared. We cleared our decks of all the Germans, making several prisoners. We found two kneeling down forward in an attempt to hide themselves. They also were made prisoners."

Two minutes after she had rammed the German the Broke wrenched herself free and turned to ram the last boat in the line. She failed in this, but in turning around succeeded in hitting the boat's consort on the stem with a torpedo. While still hotly engaged with the two fleeing destroyers the Broke attempted to follow the Swift in the direction in which she was last seen, but a shell struck her in the boiler room, disabling her main engines. The enemy then became lost to sight in the darkness.

The British vessel, however, was still able to steer in the direction of a destroyer which was on fire. As the Broke approached there came an unexpected fire from the German, which was silenced by four rounds from the British, who also fired a torpedo and hit the enemy destroyer amidships. By this time the Broke was entirely out of control and unable to maneuver.

The Swift had continued her pursuit of the leading boat until injuries she had received in the earlier phases of the action prevented her from maintaining full speed. She thereupon abandoned the chase and turned. The outline of a stationary destroyer was soon discerned in the darkness ahead and cries of "We surrender," came from her. Presently the ship turned slowly over, her crew took to the water and she sank stern first. As no other enemy was in sight and the action appeared to be over, the Swift switched on searchlights and sent out boats to rescue the swimmers.

Another hero of the encounter is Able Seaman Rowles, who was helmsman of the Broke, and who stuck to his post throughout, although badly wounded by shell fire. He said:

"I had to keep my eye fixed on the Captain to receive my orders, when a shot from the leading German boat burst behind the wheel where I was standing, and the fragments struck me all over the lower part of the body. Two pieces embedded themselves in the lower part of my back and a piece in the fleshy part of each leg, but the 'dinky' pieces I did not mind. When I was undressed after the action I looked like a carrot pudding.

"Although slightly dazed by my wounds and suffering from shock, I stuck to my post, but I had to look round occasionally over the stern to get a puff of wind and a sniff of the briny to buck me up. All this time I was taking orders from the Captain through the voice tube connecting the telegraph and the helm. This kept my mind occupied. When I received orders to slew around to ram the German boat it put new life into me. With the assistance of the telegraph man, who was also wounded, I managed to get the wheel into the ordered position and then came the crash into the German destroyer.

"I saw the destroyer lying under our port side, with only her forepart visible, and then for the first time during the action I smiled, and I have not stopped smiling since. Still receiving orders through the voice tube, we went for another vessel which we saw was on fire, and which we believed to be out of action. On our closing upon her, however, she treacherously opened fire upon us, and we promptly retaliated with a few more rounds, which finished her. As I thought the action was then over, I gave way and called out to the Captain: 'I am just going to drop off, sir.' I then fell on the deck in a faint, and the next I remember I was being bandaged up."

Just what you need for the children's clothes

You have always wanted something which would wash the baby's little shirts and stockings and the children's sweaters without their shrinking or becoming harsh.

Try Lux next time.

With Lux no chipping, no shaving is necessary

All you have to do is to throw a handful of Lux flakes into a bowlful of hot water. These fine, transparent flakes melt at once, making a rich, foamy lather in a moment, which dissolves the dirt without rubbing.

Read what Mrs. Wilkie says:

"I use Lux and like it, particularly for the baby's flannels. They had become discolored from having had to dry them in the house so much of late. The first time they were washed with Lux, they returned to their former whiteness."
—Mrs. Wallace L. Wilkie, Cumberland Hill, R. I.

You, too, will be delighted with the softness and whiteness of baby's woolens and the children's sweaters. And, think of it, they actually will not have shrunk at all!

Soap should never be rubbed directly on fine delicate fabrics

Use Lux for little sister's and the baby's fine white dresses. Soap rubbed directly on these delicate garments is likely to tear and coarsen the fabrics, and by not being thoroughly rinsed out, often turns them yellow. Lux dissolves instantly and no rubbing is necessary.

Thousands of women have adopted the Lux way of washing these dainty little dresses as the one absolutely safe way to keep them soft, fresh and snowy white.

Lux can't injure anything that pure water alone will not injure.

Lux is sold by all grocers and at department stores. Get a package today. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

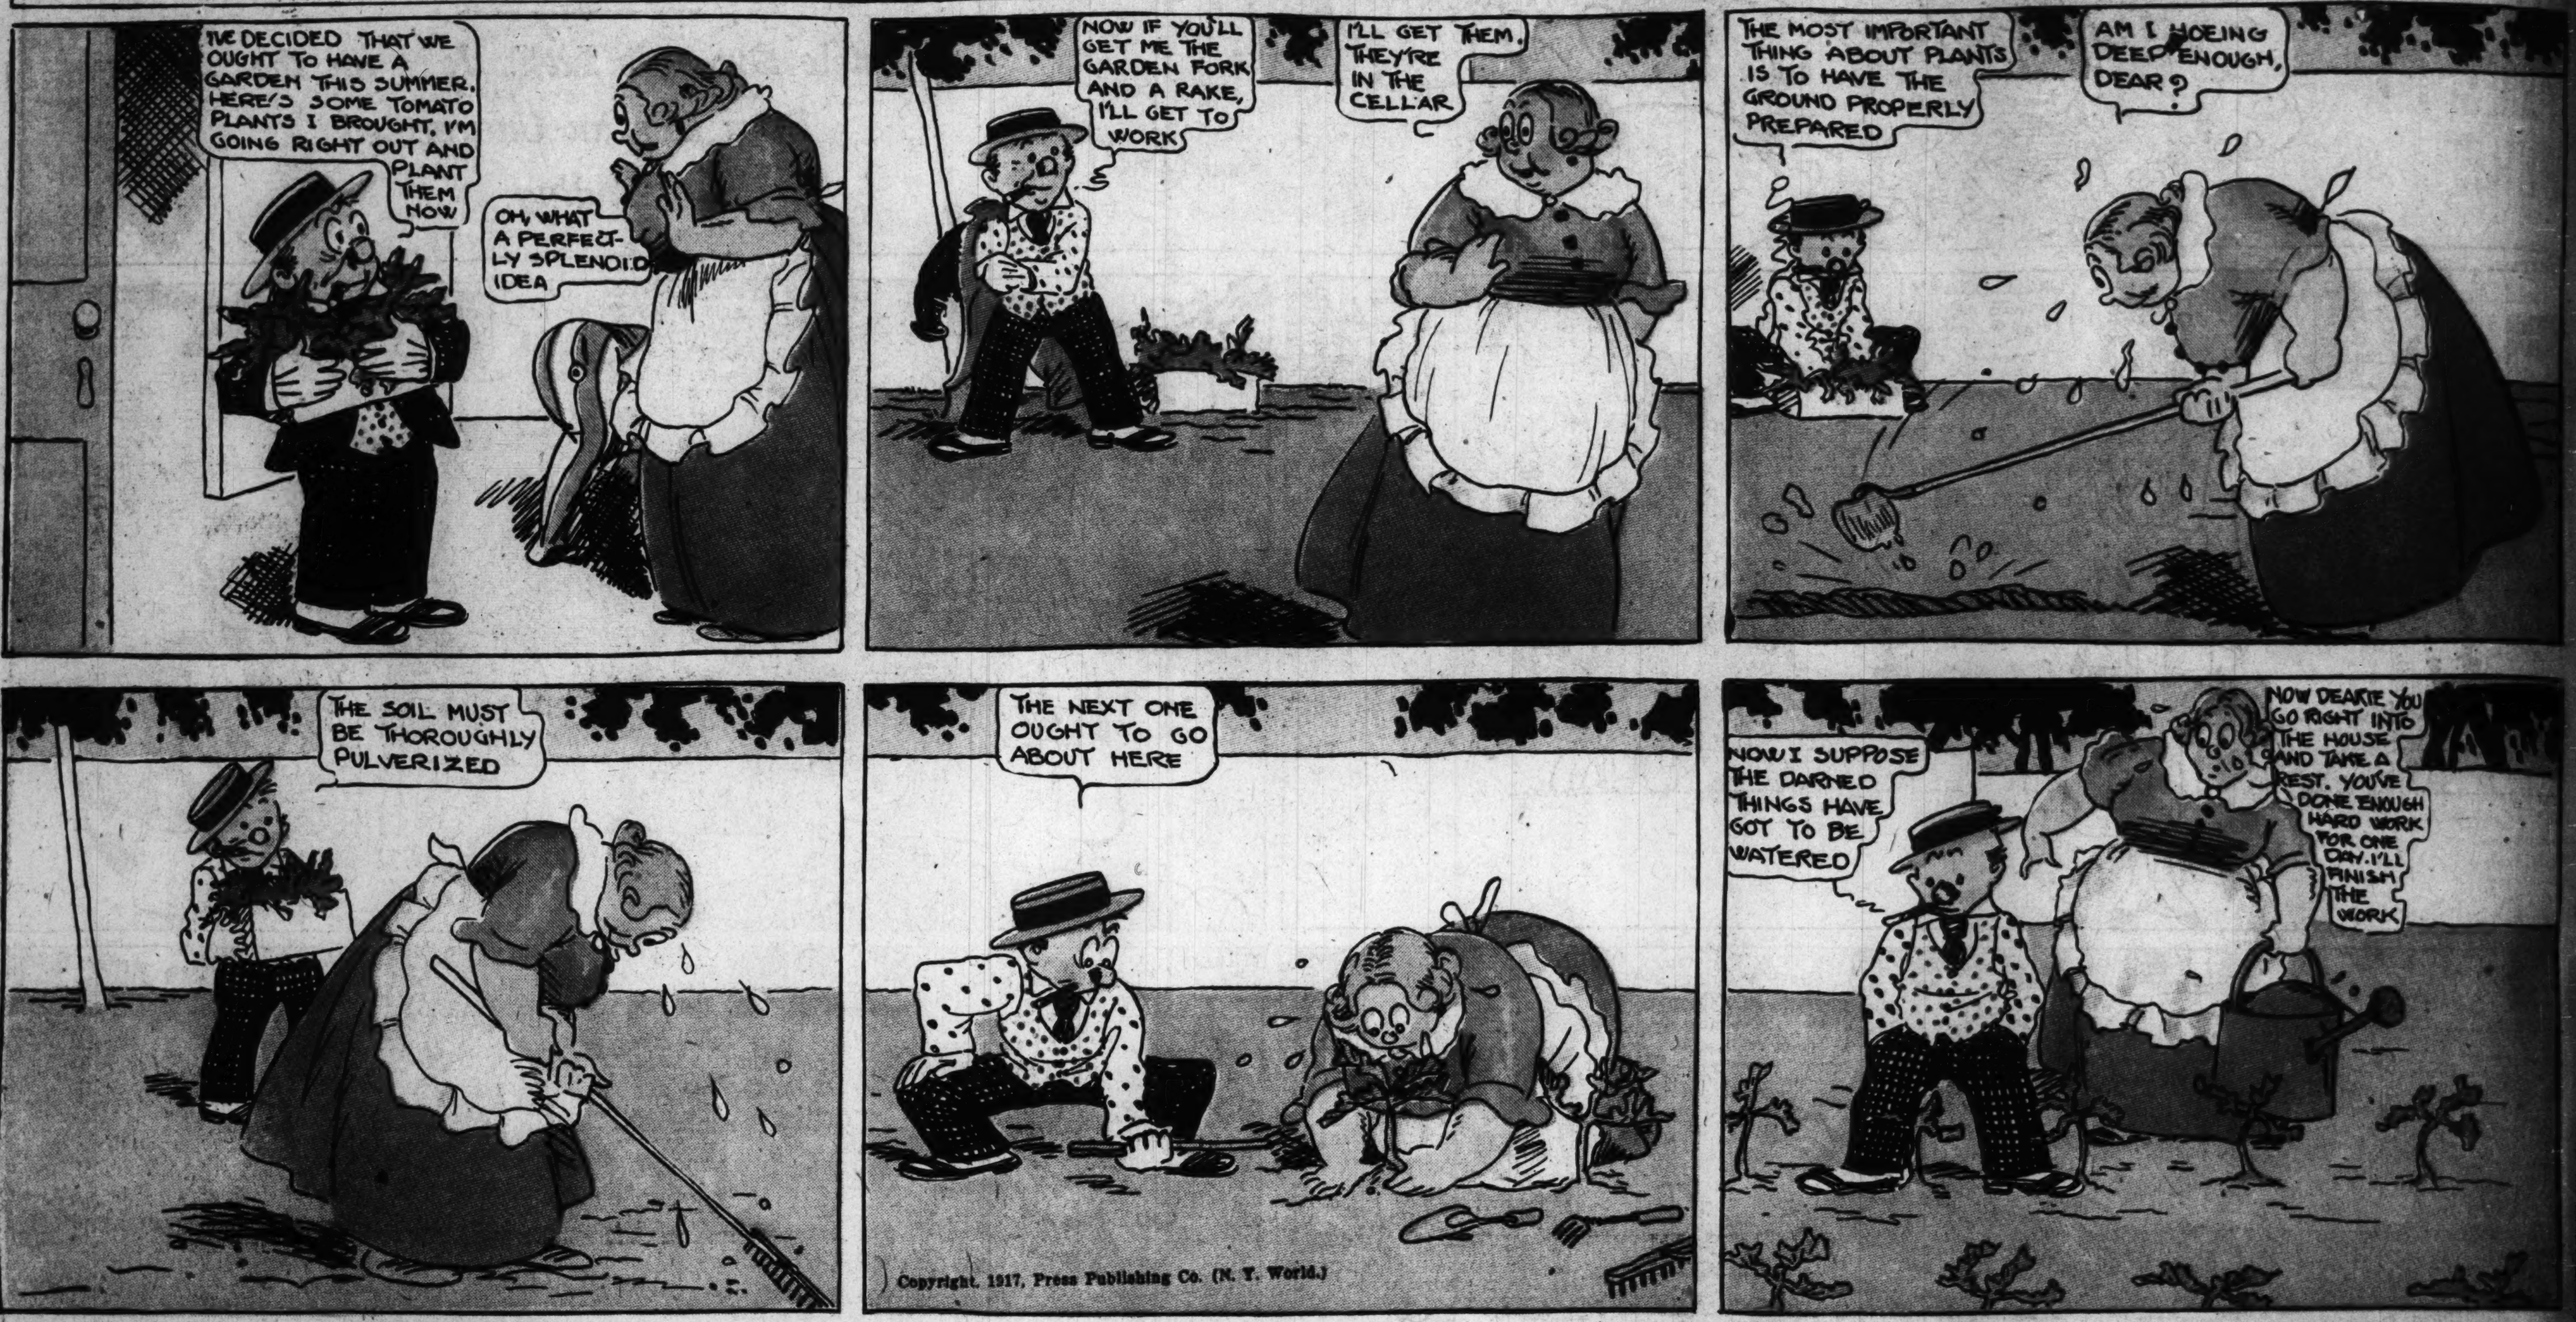
Poor Mr. W.—He's Very Apt to Overexert Himself



I'VE DECIDED THAT WE OUGHT TO HAVE A GARDEN THIS SUMMER. HERE'S SOME TOMATO PLANTS I BROUGHT. I'M GOING RIGHT OUT AND PLANT THEM NOW
OH, WHAT A PERFECTLY SPLENDID IDEA
NOW IF YOU'LL GET ME THE GARDEN FORK AND A RAKE, I'LL GET TO WORK
I'LL GET THEM. THEY'RE IN THE CELLAR
THE MOST IMPORTANT THING ABOUT PLANTS IS TO HAVE THE GROUND PROPERLY PREPARED AM I HOEING DEEP ENOUGH, DEAR?
THE SOIL MUST BE THOROUGHLY PULVERIZED
THE NEXT ONE OUGHT TO GO ABOUT HERE
NOW I SUPPOSE THE DARNED THINGS HAVE GOT TO BE WATERED
NOW DEARIE YOU GO RIGHT INTO THE HOUSE AND TAKE A REST. YOU'VE DONE ENOUGH HARD WORK FOR ONE DAY. I'LL FINISH THE WORK
